POLICE ON GUARD

Paris, June 1.
Hundreds of police threw a cordon around the Chamber of Deputies when the new Radical Parliament opened its session today, without a single member of the Sarraut Cabinet sitting on Government benches.

After hearing M. Antoine Salles, the oldest deputy, stress Franco's desire for peace, the Chamber named eleven members to devote Tuesday to validating the elections, after which a new Chamber President will be elected.

The President, M. Lebrun, is commissioning Mr. Leon Blum to form a Government.

Seventy-two Communist deputies marched into the Chamber in a body today.

M. Blum intends to read his ministerial declaration on June 9 or June 11 and immediately thereafter seek a vote of confidence. —United Press.

CUNARD SETS TWO MARKS

BUT FAILS TO BEAT NORMANDIE'S TIME

FRENCH LINER STEAMS AT 32 KNOTS

London, June 1.

The determination of the Cunard-White-Star Line and the Queen Mary's Commodore, Sir Edgar Britten, to make no attempt upon the Atlantic record on the maiden voyage which would not be consistent with due care and respect for the liner's new machinery during running-in period, was well-known. Nevertheless, as news came through of the great ship's magnificent progress for the first three days of the voyage a possibility she would beat the record without special effort began to be canvassed.

This idea was finally abandoned yesterday, however, when it was learned the Queen Mary had had to reduce speed for several hours on Sunday owing to fog, and in all the circumstances satisfaction is very generally expressed at her performance on her first Atlantic crossing, which is held to have fully justified the high hopes which her designers, builders, owners and, indeed, the whole nation, had set upon her.

The Queen Mary twice broke the record for a day's run. Between noon on Thursday and noon on Friday she covered 747 miles at an average of 29.88 knots, and on the next twenty-five hours run she did 766 miles, at an average of 30.64 knots.

For the next whole day's run her mileage dropped owing to fog to 678 miles at 27.12 knots.

On the last stage of her voyage, until she reached Ambrose Light-house, she covered 641 miles at 29.07 knots. When still some miles from Ambrose Light she slowed down to half speed, disappointing passengers who had expected a last spurt.

New York messages describe the welcome which hundreds of thousands gave to the new liner on her arrival. Many thousands standing on the roofs of houses, overlooking entrance to the Narrows, watched the last stage of the historic maiden trip. Aeroplanes hovered overhead. Crowds massed by Battery Point cheered lustily as the Queen Mary passed into the Hudson River for docking at her 50th Street berth.

NORMANDIE'S SPEED
The French liner Normandie, which arrived at Le Havre shortly after midday from New York reached a speed of 32 knots on the last lap of her voyage, according to a Paris message. This constitutes a new record for the vessel, her previous fastest speed being 31.55 knots. —British Wireless.

AUSTRALIAN VICTORY

HARD DAVIS CUP BATTLE IN U.S.

As a result of J. Crawford beating W. Allison after a five-set match yesterday, Australia won their American Zone final Davis Cup tie against United States.

Subsequently Donald Budge beat Adrian Quist in the concluding match of the series, Australia in the end winning by three matches to one. This is the first time in history that the United States has failed to win the North American Zone final, and it is the fifth time since 1922 that Australia has appeared in the Inter-Zone final.

WILD WELCOME GIVEN TO QUEEN MARY

New York, June 1.

The city of New York went mad when the Queen Mary docked at 9.03 p.m. (B.S.T.), taking exactly 25 minutes for that delicate operation. There were no mishaps, but there was one anxious moment when a tug rammed her bows against the liner's towering side and nearly capsized.

The Queen Mary left Quarantine at 7.37 p.m. amid a pandemonium of deep-throated and shrill sirens from hundreds of craft of all sizes. Her triumphal progress to the $10,000,000 pier built specially for her, was frantically cheered by millions of holiday-makers along the waterfront.

Windows, roofs and sky-scrapers were black with people. Union Jacks fluttered from all the highest buildings, and hawks in the streets did a roaring trade in the same flags, pennants, models of the Queen Mary and even nautical caps.

ALMOST ONE HOUR BEHIND

QUEEN MARY'S TIME ACROSS ATLANTIC

FRENCH LINER KEEPS RECORD

New York, June 1.

The official time of the Cunard-White-Star liner, Queen Mary, for her voyage from Cherbourg to Ambrose Lightship was revealed to-day as:

4 days 12 hours 24 mins.
Her average speed was thus 29.13 knots per hour.

The Normandie's time for her maiden voyage from Cherbourg, during which she captured the Blue Riband of the Atlantic from the German and Italian challengers, was:

4 days 11 hours 33 mins.

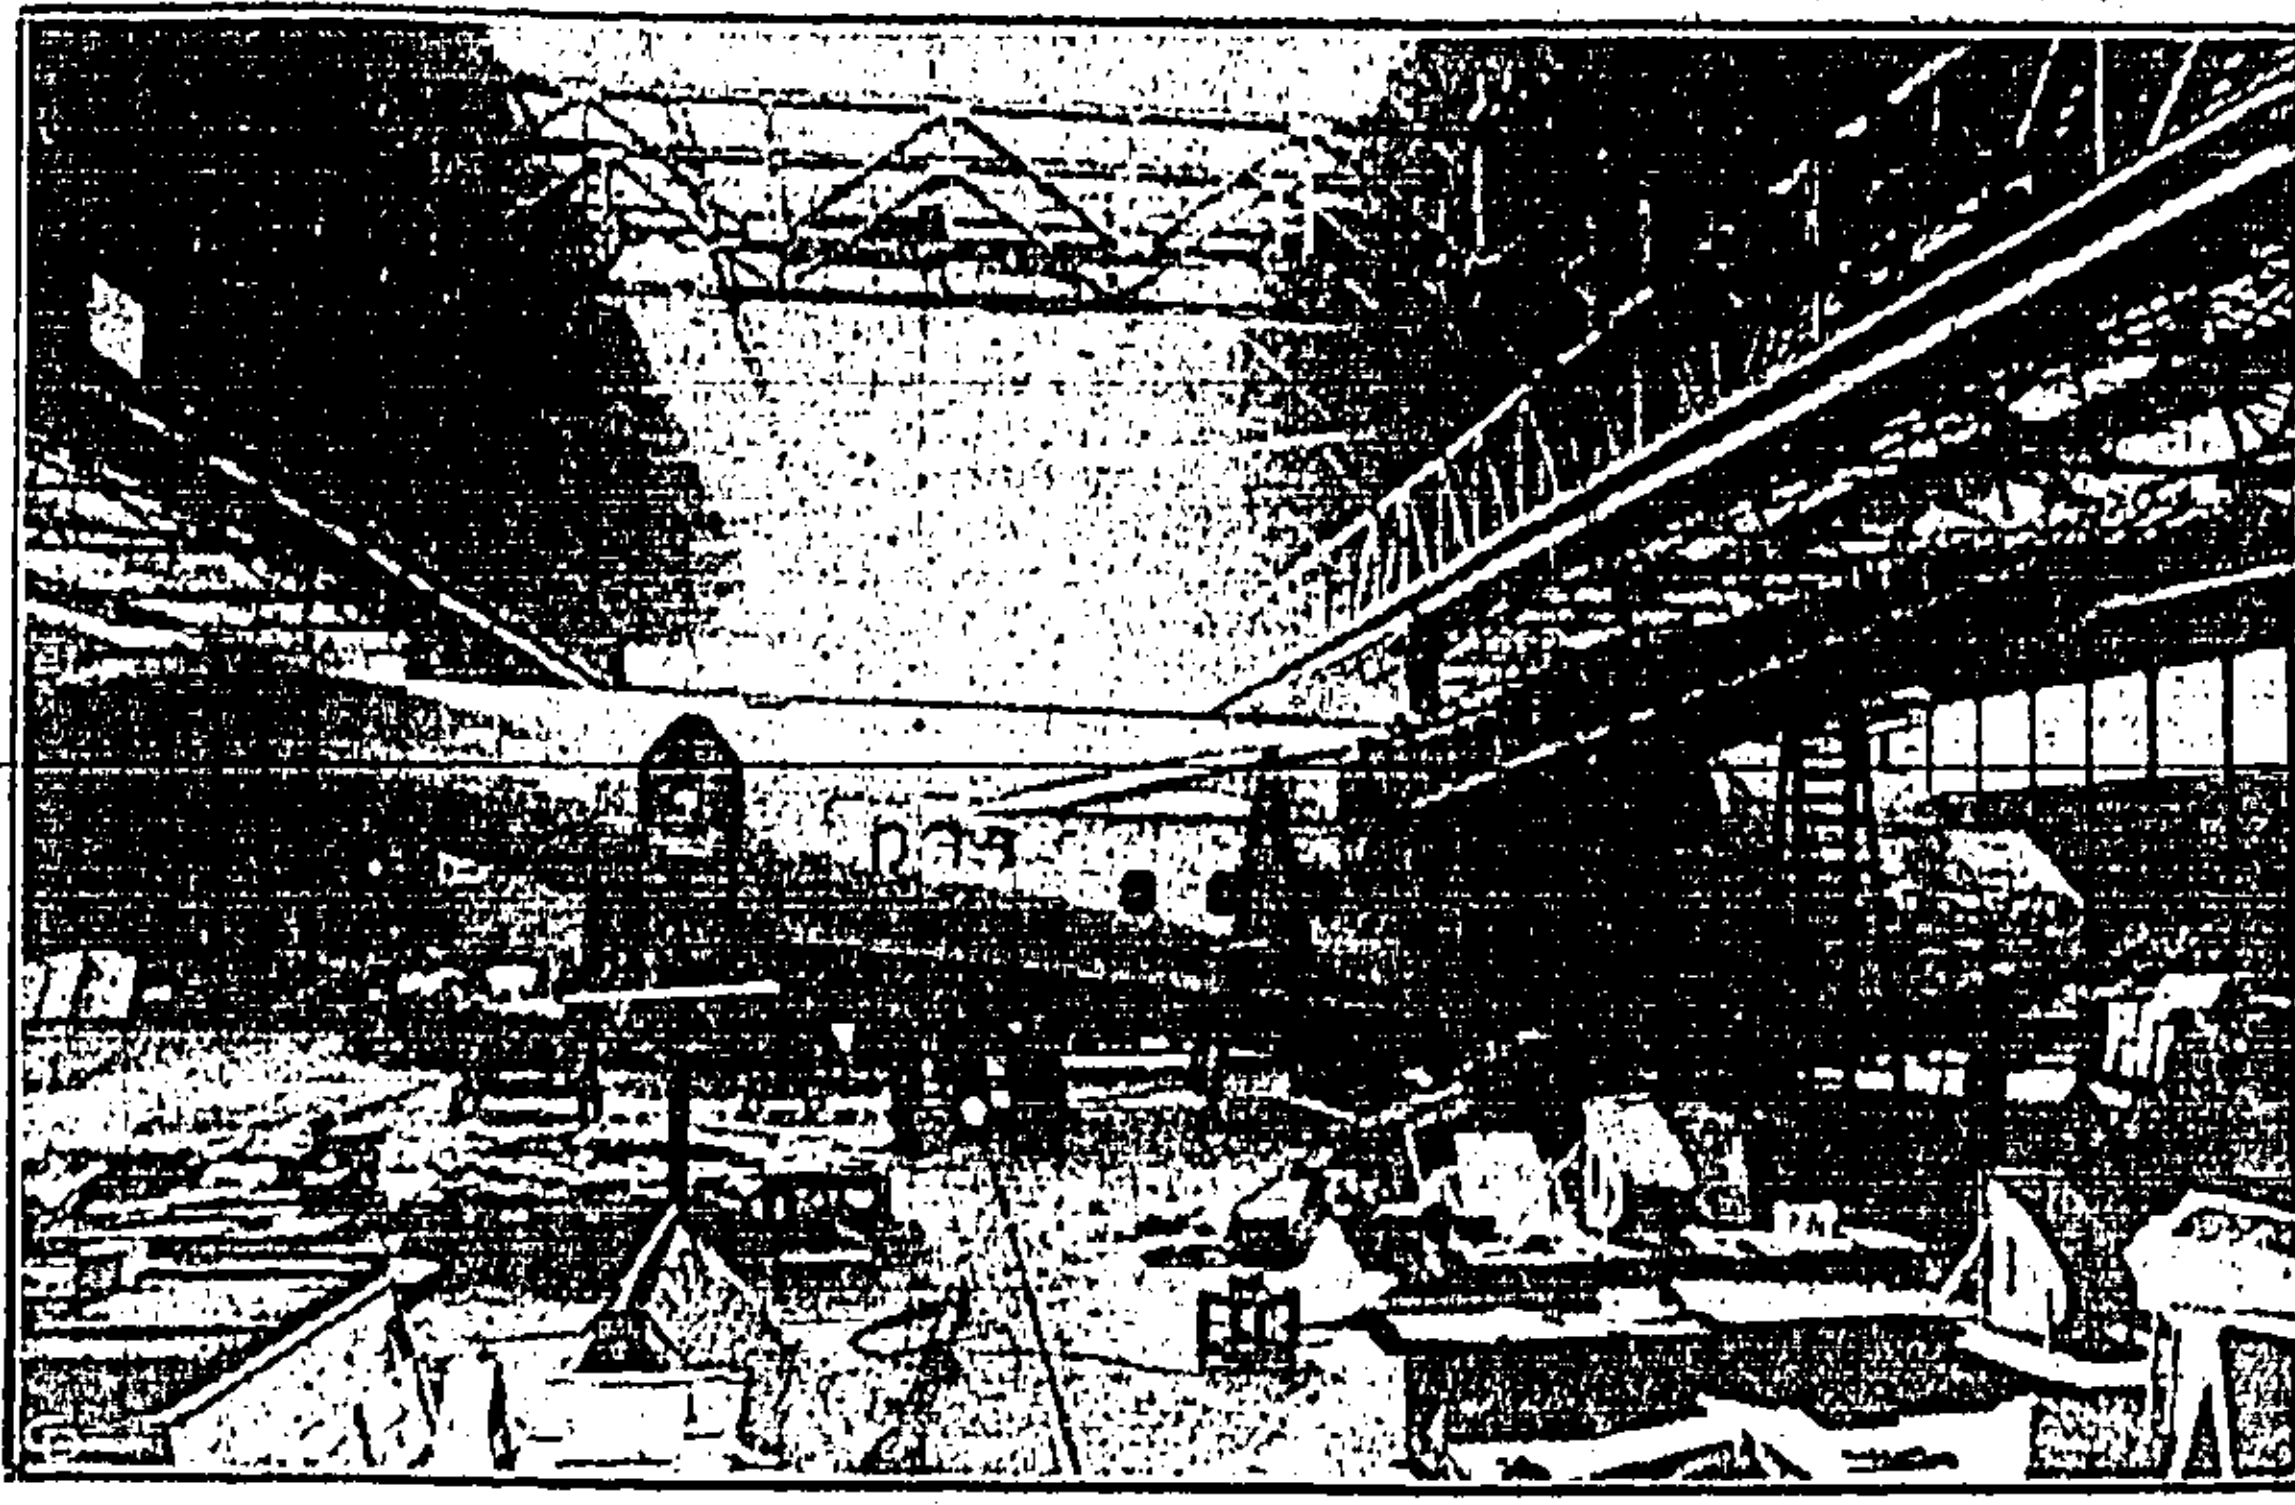

The Normandie is still Queen of the Atlantic. But the Queen Mary, slowed by fog for a day and not driven at her best speed at any time during the crossing, was even so only 51 minutes behind the French record. —Reuter.

LONDON DISAPPOINTED

London, June 1.

Some disappointment is naturally felt here at the Queen Mary's gallant failure to capture the Blue Riband of the Atlantic on her first voyage, but there is every confidence that it is only a matter of a short time before the ship achieves her ambition by a substantial margin, given favourable weather conditions. —Reuter.

BRITISH BID ON ATLANTIC AIR ROUTES

The next British craft to draw the attention of the world to the North Atlantic will be one like that pictured above, a giant monoplane, which will test the feasibility of a mail and passenger service between Britain, Canada and the United States. These mighty machines cost £1,500,000. They are flying boats, and a fleet of them will be ready to take the air some time this summer. It is hoped that they will cross the 2,000 miles of ocean in approximately ten hours.

It was announced to-day that two judges, and a prominent politician would be subpoenaed and questioned. The investigator also plans to question personally Mr. McCrea, the Michigan State Prosecutor regarding the charge that he applied for membership in the Black Legion.

Meanwhile the state drive to smash the Legion has steadily advanced and spread to include the Canadian authorities which are investigating the mysterious death of an American resident, found hanged to a tree on a small island in the Detroit River, near the Ontario shore, several months ago. —United Press.

Government To Purchase All Grain

STABLE PRICE IS ITALY'S AIM

Rome, June 1.
All the grain grown in Italy, imported into Italy will be purchased in bulk by the state under a decree approved to-day by the Cabinet.

The Government's object is to stabilise the price in the interests both of producers and consumers. Grain required by producers for their own consumption and seed will not be purchased by the Government. The purchase of the grain will be entrusted to semi-state financial institutions, which are already authorised to grant credits to farmers. —Reuter Special.

COOL HOLIDAY WEATHER

London, June 1.
Cool, overcast weather during the Whitsuntide holiday has resulted in crowds showing a preference for indoor places of entertainment, and museums, theatres and cinemas have had large attendances.

Many outdoor events, however, have drawn spectators in great numbers, as well, and bathing, walking and camping have been popular. The roads have been somewhat less crowded than was anticipated, and it is hoped the result will be seen in fewer accidents than in previous years. —British Wireless.

Brussels, June 1.

The retiring Prime Minister, M. De Van Zeeland, has declined to attempt to form a new Cabinet.

It is believed M. Emile Vandervelde will be called upon to assume the duty of the Prime Minister. He is at present a Minister without portfolio.

At a meeting of the Socialist Party, M. Vandervelde to-day outlined the task of the new Government as a closing of the way to Fascism and extending the policy of economic and revaluation. —Reuter Bulletin Service.

WOMEN DEMAND VOTES

AND DEPUTIES CHEER

Paris, June 1.
A suffragette demonstration was a noteworthy feature of the formal opening of the new French Parliament.

Before the opening the women surrounded the Chamber carrying posters reading, "Good luck to the new Legislature, but don't forget us."

Later, the doyen of the Legislature, 70-year-old M. Antoine Salles, had just finished his speech when the feminists suddenly appeared in the public galleries, which—filled—like magic. They spread their posters over the sides of the galleries. Some of them read, "French women must vote."

The deputies, led by the extreme Left, loudly applauded, but—ushers rushed the gallery and tore away the posters.

RAIL FARES SLASHED

BUT BUSES CUT STILL LOWER

New York, June 1.

Railroad passenger fares throughout the nation fell to the pre-war level of 2 cents per mile for coaches and 3 cents for Pullmans, eliminating the 50 per cent. Pullman surcharge, as ordered by the Interstate Commerce Commission to become effective to-day.

However the situation, as it is affecting the Eastern carriers, is becoming chaotic, with 23 railroads suing in the Federal Court of New York seeking to have the order set aside.

In the meantime, the bus companies have cut their rates to 1 1/4 cents per mile. —United Press.

INVENTION THAT MAY END PERIL TO SUNKEN SUBMARINES

THERE are shortly to be placed in the hands of the Admiralty details of an invention that claims to do away with many of the perils of submarine navigation. Mr. W. Lawlor, of York-st., Dublin, is the inventor, and his device is described as a "means for locating sunken submarines and supplying requisites to the crews thereof."

Briefly, it will enable a sunken submarine to be located easily and to be supplied with fresh air and food until the vessel can be raised.

Hundreds of lives have been lost in submarine disasters, the main reason being the difficulty in locating the sunken vessels.

In some cases days have elapsed before they have been found. When the M2 went down in West Bay, off Portland in 1932, 60 lives were lost. M2 was not located for days despite the most intensive search that has ever been known. It was not until a year later that she was brought to the surface.

Probably if she had been fitted with this new invention, the crew would be alive to-day.

HOW IT WORKS

An expert told how the device will work.

"Directly the crew know they are trapped, they release a plug which sends a float attached to hundreds of feet of line rushing to the surface," he said.

"Hours—even days—will be saved by rescue vessels, for they will immediately see the float—it can be illuminated by night—and they will send down a diver."

"He will descend to the seabed with a pipe two or three inches in diameter which he will fit into a special socket in the submerged vessel."

"A tap on the side of the submarine will act as a warning to the crew to remove a plug, and the pipe will supply the trapped men with air. No longer will they die a lingering and painful death from asphyxiation or lack of food."

"Water, hot soup, and even food of small bulk will be sent down to the men."

"If there is a rough sea there will be no need to attempt to raise the sunken vessel until weather conditions are favourable."

"The men will be able to live fairly comfortably until they are rescued."

"We hope that the invention, which costs little, will be adopted by the Admiralty."

Another Baby For Marathon

PROUDLY exhibiting ten birth certificates registered since Mr. Charles Vance Millar died nearly 10 years ago bequeathing £100,000 to the Toronto mother bearing the largest number of children in that time, Mrs. Arthur Hollis Timleck, one of the leading entrants of the "Baby Marathon" declared herself confident that she would be the winner.

Mr. Timleck's tenth baby girl weighing 4lb. 3oz., was born a week ago. It's her last, she declared, adding "although I am sure I shall win the prize it will not make me the least bit happy unless I can share the fortune with several other mothers in the race."

"There is enough money for all, and too much for a single family," challenged Mrs. Timleck, whose new baby, fast asleep, happy, and healthy, lay in a clothes-basket before the open fire.

Man Seeks Divorce from Wife Who Went to Fortune-Tellers

Paris, May 20.

A man made an application for divorce in the Paris courts to-day because, he claimed, his wife consulted clairvoyants, palmists, and crystal-gazers to such an extent that all her house-keeping money was spent on "looking into the future."

Counsel for the husband said the wife spent anything from 1s. to £5 every time she was "shown the future." She not only consulted spiritualists but also relied on fortune-telling by cards, by coffee-cup dregs, and by the crystal.

"The husband will tell you," continued counsel, "that if he happened to mention at the breakfast table that he thought the new Government now being elected his wife would hurry off to a fortune-teller that same day and greet him in the evening with:

"According to the crystal gazer, the election results will be the contrary."

LED TO QUARRELS

"Again, the husband was in the habit of making small investments on the Stock Exchange. If the wife found out, she would make his life unbearable by warning him against certain investments."

"The crowning annoyance came when the wife began to take a violent objection to certain friends of the husband, because, she said, she had been warned that some 'dark man' or 'tall, handsome blond man' would ruin their happiness."

"Naturally this led to quarrels, and would be a Left Government, particularly when the wife alleged that certain of the fortune-tellers had made references to 'other women.'"

UNDERMINED HEALTH

"My client was prepared to meet the enormous expense of this fortune-telling craze for a time. But he also found that the effects of the forecasts were so depressing that they began to undermine his wife's health, making her in a perpetual state of excitement and nervousness."

"For this reason, the husband feels that he can not continue to live happily with her. She lives continuously in the future..."

The case, which came before the Tribunal of the Seine, was adjourned.

to be one of her names because of the kindness of Mrs. Blanche Schraeder, neighbour who helps me with my household duties daily. Catherine is our nurse, and Margaret is the name of our woman doctor."

Baby Blanche is Mrs. Timleck's 17th child in 18 years.

REGISTER SAYS BRIDE IS A "BOY"

Engaged Couple's Dilemma

Paris, May 21.

MADELEINE AIMEE, a pretty, eighteen-year-old Paris typist, is in love and wants to marry.

But there is a great obstacle in the way. Three days ago she and her prospective bridegroom, bank clerk Anatole Ciboulle, called at the town hall of the Sixth Paris district, where Madeleine was born, to take necessary steps.

The official looked at the register.

"I am sorry," he said to Madeleine, "but I cannot marry you to any man."

He held up the register. It said clearly, "Madeleine Aimee. Male sex."

"But I swear I am a girl," cried Madeleine.

To-day the young couple sought the help of a famous lawyer, Mr. Giustucci, who is to do his best to obtain a court decision establishing that Mlle. Aimee is a girl.

"The Queen Mary is Out of Date" —Scientist's "Foolish" Attack

EXPERTS DENY CHARGES

AN extraordinary criticism of the liner Queen Mary, in which the ship is described as being old-fashioned in design, too slow, and unsuitably engined has just been made in a scientific paper called Armchair Science.

The attack is made by Professor A. M. Low, the noted writer on scientific matters.

Already his opinions have aroused a storm of controversy. Leading men in the engineering and shipping world heatedly refute Professor Low's statements.

Professor Low's arguments are that:

Her gangways and masts are reminiscent of the oldest sailing ships;

She should have had internal combustion engines instead of turbines;

She should have had a speed of 50 or 60 m.p.h.

When these views were placed before Cunard-White Star officials they described the criticisms as "ridiculous."

The head of a well-known firm of marine engineers said the attack was based on misconception.

"The Queen Mary has been designed by the leading marine architects and engineers of the day working in co-operation," he said. "It is fantastic to suggest that they have produced a ship which is already out of date."

LAST WORD IN SILL

"The experts, after months of consideration, came to the conclusion that turbine engines were the only practicable method of propulsion for the liner."

"That makes funnels a necessity, otherwise passengers and crew would be asphyxiated by fumes."

In Professor Low's modern liner the vessel would be entered from the stern. Trains would run into this along a specially constructed road, so that passengers could drive to cabins or move along travelling stairways as if ashore.

This the marine experts characterised as a "completely impractical and an entirely unwanted complication."

Fish Fight Mosquitoes

FREEDOM COLONY OF MALARIA

A little fish, called Gambusia affinis, is helping to free Papua, which is governed from Australia, from the malaria mosquito, says Austral News.

According to the government medical officer's report, the fish were introduced into Papua from New Guinea, in 1933, and where they had been placed, they had eliminated the mosquito larvae. Some were placed in a lagoon, and a big flood carried them to neighbouring lagoons. In five months all the lagoons were swarming with the fish and the mosquito had been entirely eliminated. One lagoon, of six acres, which teemed with the larvae had been cleared in three months, and the fish had bred to countless millions.

FAMILY DUG-OUTS (ALL CON., H. & C.) FOR £200?

BOMB-PROOF and gas-proof underground houses for all, costing from £200 upwards.

That is the aim of investigations being carried out by Mr. Alan Daly, an Elstree architect, who announces that he has been commissioned to build a £30,000 underground mansion beneath a Hertfordshire meadow for a millionaire.

Mr. Daly will not reveal the name of his mystery millionaire who is going to earth, but he says the house is to have over 20 rooms—four reception rooms, four bathrooms, eight or nine bedrooms, and servants' quarters.

It will be 12ft. below the surface, and will have a 4ft. thick concrete roof.

PERISCOPE VIEWS

There will be air conditioning, and artificial sunshine will stream through artificial windows which will look out on scenic landscapes. A different landscape for each season of the year will move into position at the touch of a switch.

The house is to be approached by tunnels leading from the nearest road. On the surface over the house will be a garden with trees, lawns, and tennis courts.

An ornamental fountain is to camouflage a periscope.

HEALTHY, TOO

"I am now going thoroughly into the question of costs of underground building," Mr. Daly said.

"With mass production methods there is no reason why houses should not be built under the ground to be completely bombproof at 50 per cent. above the normal cost, and I hope it will be possible to build single bombproof rooms for the ordinary householder at about £200 each."

"With air conditioning, artificial sunshine, and proper damp-proofing, the underground house would be just as healthy as an ordinary country house."

'YES'

Says Mr. Milton

HICCUPS

FIVE YEARS'

New York, May 20.

"Hic! Yes, it's quite true."

I've been hiccupping five years to-day," said the voice over the telephone. It was the voice of Robert Milton, seventy-six-year-old farmer, of Blue Springs, Missouri, who celebrated his quinquennial of hiccupping by hiccupping some more.

"Hic! hic!" came over the wires. "Herman, that's the guy at the grocery store, hic! gave me a bottle of grape soda. Said I should like it, but I've been hiccupping ever since."

FORTY-TWO DOCTORS

"Yes, I've tried all the remedies. Forty-two doctors have tried to stop it, hic! Some of my banker friends told me to drink twelve glasses of cold salt water. I drank eleven, hic! and decided that the cure was worse than the ailment. It made me so sick I had to go to bed."

"My wife Elsie thought she would cure me by frightening me. One night she crept up behind me and pulled my hat down over my face, hic! I was as scared as hell, but, hic! I started hiccupping again."

"Some one else suggested lumps of sugar soaked in vinegar, hic! no good."

"Somebody prescribed drinking mineral water from a cup covered with cloth, hic! I got worse."

"REAL MONEY"

"I offered one thousand dollars, hic! and that's real money, to a doctor to prepare some kind of hic! magic medicine, but, hic! he died before perfecting the formula."

"Then somebody told me to put a paper sack round my head and breathe through it, hic! But you couldn't live like that."

"Often I hiccup two or three weeks at a spell, and then have a respite of five or six days. This is one of my bad spells. Hic! Hic! Hic!"

"They told me an operation might cure me, hic! but I don't care for those surgeons' knives."

"I guess, hic! I shall keep this up until I die, hic!"

CLIPPER BUILDER SAYS HUGE PLANES WILL SOON GIRDLE EARTH

New York, June 1.

With aviation now prepared to establish regular operations over the seven seas, it will be possible within a few years "to reach any point on earth within two or three days of comfortable travel aboard large passenger airliners which will compare favourably in every respect with medium-sized steamships," according to Igor I. Sikorsky, internationally-known designer and builder of aircraft.

"The fact that we are so close to this accomplishment is not the result of any particular development or invention," Mr. Sikorsky said in an address before the New York Museum of Science and Industry here last night.

"It is the consequence of a series of accomplishments and developments which cover various phases of aircraft design, construction, engines, accessories and methods of operation. In particular, the development of radio and navigation, gradual refinement of engines, increase in take-off power, and the controllable propeller greatly contribute to the fact that routine operation with comfort and payload is now possible over such distances which a few years ago could be crossed only at the cost of great effort and all the hazards of a stunt flight."

Mr. Sikorsky said his company had done a great deal of engineering research and that it was prepared to produce flying craft of from 40 to 75

MINERS ALLEGE BREACH OF AGREEMENT

Birmingham, Ala., June 1. More than two thousand iron miners in U.S. Steel's subsidiary plant, the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railway Company, have struck, charging U.S. Steel with attempting to break all agreements. The mines affected include Muscoda, Wenonah and Ishpeming.

Gundlach was heard in Muscoda, but the Company Guards blocked the entrance of the offices and would not give information.

The miners oppose substitution of the tonnage for the hourly basis.

Two Deputy guards were wounded from ambush and it is reported that a man believed to be a negro was killed at Muscoda.—United Press.

THE SOCIAL EVIL

TOUT ACCOSTS EUROPEAN CONSTABLE

Requested by the police to take a serious view of the case, Mr. S. F. Balfour, at the Central Magistracy yesterday, passed sentence of three months' hard labour on Yeung Hon, 22 years, unemployed, who was charged with soliciting for prostitution on Saturday night. The defendant denied the accusation.

Police Constable Macvey testified that he was on special duty at the junction of Pedder Street and Des Voeux Road Central when the defendant approached him and, in the course of general conversation, the defendant said, "I know you are number six. Are you on leave to-day? What are you doing here?" Witness replied that he was looking for something to do and the defendant suggested dancing. Witness told him that he did not dance, and the defendant asked witness if he was interested in a particular girl that was standing round the corner. Witness replied in the negative and the defendant then suggested that the witness should go with him to see defendant's girls.

Witness told the defendant it was rather late and the defendant suggested making an appointment to meet him the following day. Witness then arrested the defendant.

Defendant: "The witness beckoned to me."

E. C. Macvey: "That is not true. I do not know him. I presume he knows my number because he has seen me on uniform duty."

Defendant stated he was asked by the constable to get a girl.

The Magistrate convicted the defendant and passed sentence of three months' hard labour.

A young woman, Lo Pat-mui, 25, absented herself on a similar charge and forfeited bail of $25.

Sub-inspector T. K. Whelan prosecuted in both cases.

Stocks: Securities were in moderate supply, but sentiment continues cheerful. Warner Brothers earned 48 cents per share for the 20 weeks ended February 29, against a loss of $133,515 during the corresponding period of last year. The Paramount Picture Corporation earned $718,022 during the quarter ended March 31. The Times Business Index for the past week is 90.4 as compared with 100.3 the previous week.

Cotton: Continued dry conditions in the East and the elimination of Senator Smith's amendments to the Commodity Control Bill had a steady effect on the market. The outlook favours higher prices in the absence of relief in the Eastern Belt.

What: There are no rains in the North-West and there are complaints of drought in Canada, but the harvest is beginning in the South-West and hedging is now imminent. The visible supply shows a decrease of 1,200,000 bushels. The Canadian visible supply has decreased by 2,533,000 bushels.

Corn: Sentiment is bearish on fine weather conditions and rapid planting.

Rubber: It is reported that automobile production is larger than had been expected.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

MARKET IRREGULAR YESTERDAY

New York, June 1.

Swan, Culbertson & Fritz Dow Jones summary of yesterday's market:—The market to-day ruled and closed irregular. Steel shares led the early rally, gaining over one point on the outlook regarding increased operations during June. Dealings in motor issues were lighter, though prices were fractionally higher. Most chemical stocks declined. Utility securities were mixed, but the undertone was firm. Oil issues were narrow. Mercantile and building stocks were higher. Metals were dull. The market for bonds was higher. Stocks on the Curb Exchange were irregularly higher.

Swan, Culbertson & Fritz Wall Street Journal comment on 30/5 market:—"The quick over-subscription of the Treasury's new cash issue is a foregone conclusion. These bonds are expected to command a premium of at least a full point when trading begins. Automobile profits this quarter will probably be the largest since June, 1929, quarter. Brokers believe that railroad and utility securities will lead any sustained advance. Some Wall Street authorities believe that price-cutting in the whiskey industry will spread in the coming months. The distribution of 'Soldiers' Bonus' will probably increase radio sales. The belief is held that any devaluation of the French franc could have more than a temporary effect on our markets."

Bachelor Judge's "I Can't Spell 'Brassiere'"

By PATRICK FORREST

AS she smiled at Mr. Justice Charles in the King's Bench Division, Mrs. Evelyn Rickard, the wife in an "entirement" case, heard him say that she must go into the witness-box and give evidence.

Mrs. Rickard's husband, a bank clerk, alleges that she was "fired away" by Mr. Norman Lee, a film director, who gave her "crowd" work; but Mr. Lee denies that he had anything to do with her leaving home.

Mr. Justice Charles made it clear that she must give evidence, after questions about her earlier life had been put to her husband.

WORK AS CHAUFFEUR
Mr. Rickard stated that she had been married to a man from whom she separated at the age of 20. (Husbands at a London hotel when in her teens.

Censor at the War Office during the war.

Manageress of a large Bond-street shop.

Chauffeur to a man, for whom she did "one-finger typing."

It was also stated by another witness that she is "a brilliant pianist, a good singer, and very versatile."

Mr. Rickard, in his evidence, said that while he was in hospital, after a motor accident last October, his wife visited him "wearing blue beach pyjamas, a powder blue jumper—a very open-work one—and a totally inadequate brassiere."

HER FUR COAT
Mr. H. C. Leon (for the defence) said that his instructions were that Mrs. Rickard did not wear brassieres.

After a discussion between Mr. Leon and Mr. Rickard as to what constituted this garment, Mr. Justice Charles, who is a bachelor, remarked:

"I don't even know how to spell it..."

FORERUNNER OF REFORMATION FAMOUS EXHIBITION AT OXFORD

Oxford, Apr. 27.

There was opened at the Bodleian Library, Oxford, to-day an exhibition of books connected with Erasmus; the scholar and writer, who is held to be a forerunner of the Reformation, the fourth centenary of whose death falls this year. The exhibition is to remain open until the end of June.

The astonishingly productive literary career of Desiderius Erasmus, of Rotterdam, extended from 1495 until his death in 1536, impeded, yet seldom entirely interrupted by serious illness.

Of his earliest publications—a letter recommending Robert Gaguin's "History of France," slipped in at the end of the work apparently to fill space that would otherwise have remained blank, and some poems published in a slender volume, "De Causa Natalitii Pueri Jesu" ("Of the Birthplace of the Child Jesus")—the Bodleian has copies of the third and second editions respectively.

Erasmus was a restless traveler, and he paid three visits of some length to England, during which he came to both Oxford and Cambridge. He was brought over by his pupil, the Earl of Mountjoy, in 1499, and made a number of friends, with whom he remained on terms of intimacy for the rest of his lives.

qualifying to meet Australia in the Inter-Zone contest this year. France is Germany's only serious opposition in the European Zone and the odds will be greatly in favour of Germany should these countries meet.

It was to Germany that Australia lost last year in the final of the European Zone, the Germans going on to lose gallantly to the Americans in the Inter-Zone final.

CRAWFORD RECKLESS

A later message from Reuter, describing matches at Germantown, says that Crawford volleyed recklessly yet with precision. His success was due to forefulness, as he took risks despite the importance of the occasion.

Nevertheless Allison was not up to championship form. Quist often netted easy shots against Budge, and lacked the American's astonishing stamina and speed.

was at Thomas More's house that he wrote "Moriae Encomium" ("Praise of Folly"), a copy of which, with pen and ink sketches by Hans Holbein the younger, is now at Basel.

Association with John Colet, Dean of St. Paul's, and founder of St. Paul's School, led to him taking part in revision of some of the school text books. He revised William Lily's "Libellus de Constructione" ("Handbook on Construction"), and the Bodleian Library has the only known copy of the first edition.

The Bodleian possesses eight autograph letters of Erasmus, of which four are shown. One was written within six weeks of his death and is signed "Erasmus of Rotterdam, from a sickbed."

There are also in the exhibition copies of portraits, statues and medals of Erasmus.

A "Touch Of The Sun".

Many people at this time of year get what is commonly known as a "touch of the sun", the outstanding feature of which is a blinding, devastating headache.

Whilst it is true that heat and glare are responsible in some considerable degree for these hot weather headaches, the fact that they do not attack everybody proves that the general condition of the health also has much to do with them; thin blood, faulty digestion and weak, ill-nourished nerves are predisposing causes.

So sufferers from summer headaches should give immediate thought to improving the condition of the blood, for in this way they will also strengthen their digestive processes and revitalize every fibre and nerve of the system.

One of the most important constituents of good, healthy blood is iron, iron means health and vitality too! Modern foods often do not contain enough of this precious mineral, hence the need for an iron tonic such as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

This remedy supplies iron in a form which your system readily and speedily assimilates. As your blood becomes enriched with this iron, your nerves and whole body are strengthened, headaches and other health troubles vanish, and you soon again enjoy abounding energy and robust health.

If you are feeling run-down, or are suffering from any of the consequences of impoverished blood, indigestion, nervous disorders, headaches, general debility, rheumatism, scurvy, women's ailments, do not delay, but begin a course of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to-day, the "iron tonic" which has stood the test of time! Sold by chemists everywhere.

£10,000 AIR RACE

London, June 1. The well known South African industrialist, Mr. Schlessinger, has provided £10,000 prize money for an air race from London to Johannesburg, starting on September 15.

The race is open to aircraft and pilots of the British Empire, and it is hoped that the winner will reach Johannesburg in two days.

The Royal Aero Club has agreed to organize and manage the race which will be flown on a handicap basis via the mail route down the East coast.

Mr. Schlessinger's object is to encourage fast commercial flying and draw the attention of the Empire to the exhibition at Johannesburg, which is opening on September 15.

The proposal has received the approval of the South African Government and the British Air Ministry.

Filipino Filers
A. Arnaz and J. de Calva, the Filipino fliers who arrived here last week on the first leg of their flight from Manila to Europe, received word yesterday that they are free now to set out on the rest of their journey.

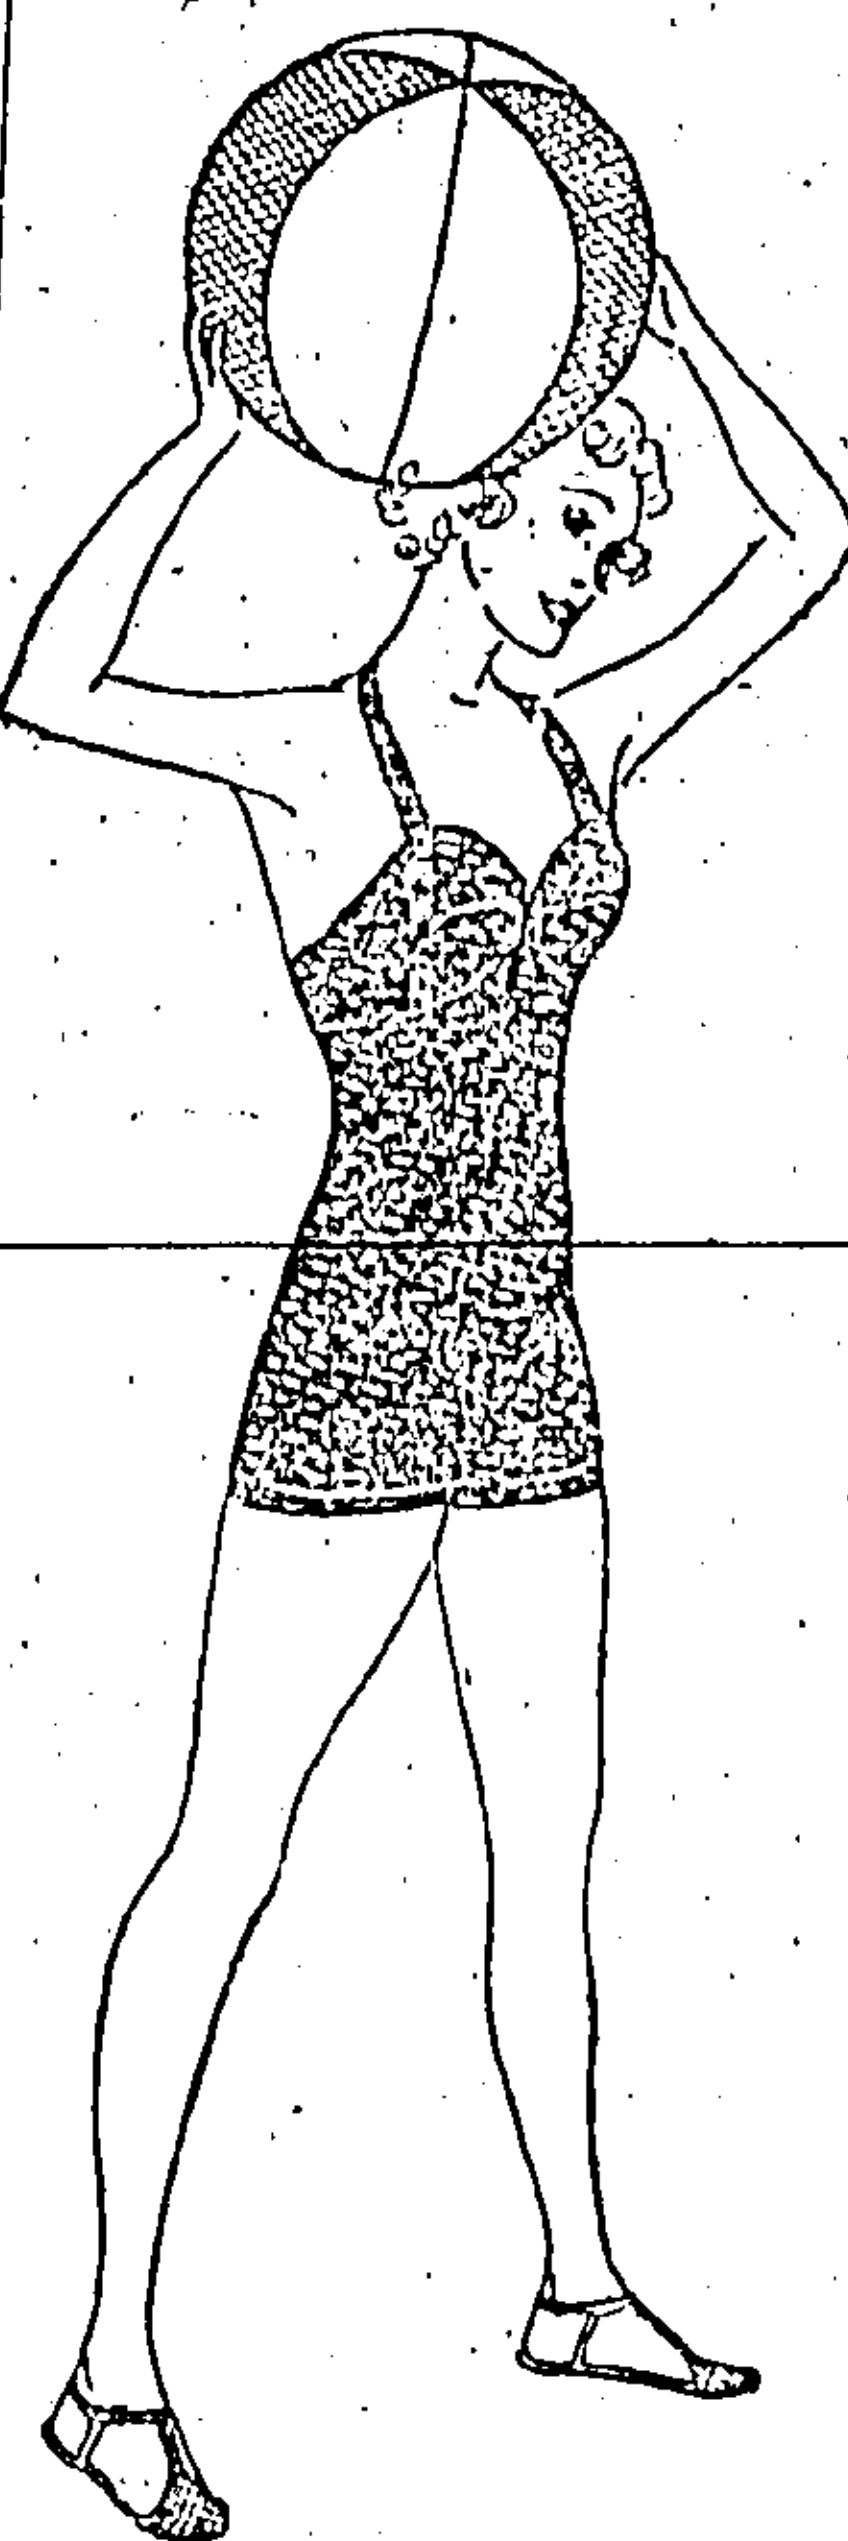

A cable was received yesterday by Mr. L. Ildelfonso from Manila, Herald which read "Bond, deposed, proceed flight, Mabuhay." The last word is a Filipino word which has no exact equivalent in English but which wishes them every success on their project.

The bond referred to in the cable is one which had to be made with the A.P.C. to ensure an adequate supply of oil and fuel at every stopping place on the fliers' route to Europe.

When the two men will take off is not yet decided but it is expected to be early morning, and on the first day when the weather makes flying at all safe.

Dorado Delayed
The Dorado was delayed at Penang yesterday awaiting the arrival of the main line service from London. If the weather is fine she will leave this morning 3 a.m. Malayan time, and will be here at 6 p.m., provided that she is not delayed by weather.

DEFENCE AGAINST AIR RAIDS

The question whether effective means can be taken against air raids is much in the public eye at present. The view generally held is that in any future war on a large scale big cities would be almost completely at the mercy of air raiders. Past experience, however, has shown that the advent of new weapons of war has almost invariably been followed by new and more effective methods of defence.

In coping with increased dangers from the air there will probably be no exception to the rule. Defence experts have not been idle in latter years; the result is that vast improvements have been made in anti-aircraft guns, not only in the height to which they can fire, and the rate of firing, but also in the methods of aiming. Naval men are said to be much happier about the safety of warships now than for many years past, the reason being that modern anti-aircraft guns have become much more deadly than hitherto. But, as an expert has pointed out, it is not wholly upon anti-aircraft guns that the defence is relying. During the war, a wire apron was designed for the protection of London from night raids. This consisted of a steel net suspended from kite balloons, and it is believed that this device has been greatly improved since the war. Any aeroplane crashing into the net was practically doomed, and the mere knowledge that the nets existed had a psychological effect on pilots of raiding aeroplanes. Apart from their deterrent effect upon raiding aircraft, aprons have the advantage of limiting the area upon which anti-aircraft fire need be concentrated. Thirty or forty of these nets at different heights would be a very powerful weapon in defence. From America comes news of yet another anti-aircraft weapon. This consists of an instrument which picks up an aeroplane when it is as much as fifty miles distant by measuring the heat of its exhaust. This instrument has been tested in secret by the United States army, and it is stated that it was so effective that the searchlight batteries were waiting for the appearance of raiding aeroplanes long before they came into sight. Another weapon is the shell said to have been invented containing a gas which when mixed with air yields an explosive mixture. The shell is fired in the neighbourhood of a raiding aeroplane, and when it bursts the explosive gas is released. A few seconds later the time fuse ignites the explosive mixture of gas and air, and the aeroplane gets a severe shaking, in much the same way as a submarine is shaken by the explosion of a depth charge under water. These are only some of

NOTES OF THE DAY

The most ardent supporters of the Soviet regime in Russia, outside that country, know little about it and less about its trends. They speak of it as Communism and Red Rule, but the fact is that social, political and economic policies in Russia are widely incompatible with Communism. What the Communists want is a classless land. What is happening in Russia is the growth of a new aristocracy. It is the new intelligentsia there that is forming a separate social stratum. One writer who has travelled thousands of miles through the Soviet Republics, says that Russia is succumbing to "capitalistic vulgarity unredeemed by capitalist work-manship," and "the proletariat, initiating itself with artless complacency into the forgotten graces of the bourgeoisie, is—for the moment—faintly and pathetically reminiscent of a savage in a top-hat."

The culture of Russia is the same as the so-called culture in any other land. The Government encourages jazz, gives free advice about permanent waves, and puts a premium on sport. The culture that is being inculcated, is anything and everything. It may be poetry or ping-pong, arithmetic or the rumba. This culture is only for the urban dwellers; the peasants have to be satisfied with bread. As for the Red Army, it has been introduced to polo, among other of the graces of life.

The proletariat, the class that remains defined, has all initiative and efficiency strangled by red tape. There is what the correspondent quoted describes as "a network of check and counter-check that invades the recesses of everyday life and devastates the national energy." The theoretical efficiency supposed to be applied to the collective farms brings in its wake ignorant managers, poor crops and wretched livestock. In effect, the Soviet Union is a paradise for the few and a prison for all. In commenting on conditions there, The London Times says:

"No man is free, and only the dumb are safe. Your friends are encouraged to store up merit for themselves by quoting a verbal indiscretion to the State Police. Your child may win a decoration by sending you to exile by revealing the fact that you habitually overthe measures being devised to offset new dangers from the air. Others are being kept secret. It is, at any rate, reassuring to feel that air-raiders are not likely to have things all their own way should a major war again break out.

IN VIEW of the serious disturbances between Jews and Arabs in Palestine, and having regard to the outbreaks there in 1922, 1929, and 1932, it is just as well to recall the events which have in a large measure produced them. It is all the more necessary to consider the matter because, bearing in mind the nature of the Arab and the nature of the Jew, and weighing the reasons which have brought them to the present conflict, it is difficult to believe that the conflict can ever end. As things are it cannot.

On November 2, 1917 (we took Jerusalem on December 9 following), the Foreign Secretary, the Earl of Balfour (then Mr. Balfour) issued his famous Declaration to the effect that his Majesty's Government viewed with favour the establishment in Palestine of a National Home for the Jews, it being clearly defined that it was in no way to prejudice the civil and non-Jewish rights of communities in Palestine.

To-day Lord Balfour's name is still hallowed by the Jew and reviled by the Arab. Mr. Lloyd George, who was Prime Minister at the time of the Declaration, has never been publicly identified with the Zionist movement, and therefore, strange to say, from our point of view does not enter into the picture. Mr. Lloyd George has never visited Palestine, but Lord Balfour ventured there on July 24, 1918, to lay the foundation-stone of the Hebrew University. Later, when visiting Damascus he had to be smuggled out of the country owing to the sudden rising among the Syrian Arabs against him in sympathy with their Palestine brethren.

I was on duty in Jerusalem two days before Lord Allenby made his historic entry, and was responsible for his safety. In those days the religious element among the Jews was very strong. Practically they were all Orthodox. It is a different story to-day.

Tel-Aviv was then an oasis. Now it has a population of about 150,000, with cinemas, hotels, cafes, jazz bands, sports clubs, and other so-called amenities. It even boasts of a symphony orchestra, while the "colonies" are hives of industry, engaged in all kinds of agricultural pursuits.

By Joseph Broadhurst
(Late Superintendent C.I.D., Palestine, Late Chief of Police in Jaffa and Tel-Aviv)

and undoubtedly aggravated by the Hitler regime in Germany. In the establishment of this National Home for the Jews exorbitant sums have been paid by Jews to Arabs for land which was worthless prior to the former's advent. Fortunes have been made in illicit commission, but, as there are little or no morals in regard to such matters in the country, a man who has failed to enrich himself by such means is regarded as being a fool. However, people in this category are very few and far between.

There is no income tax. The Government held an inquiry as to whether one should be introduced. The Arab had the impudence to assert that the Jew would keep duplicate books, while the Jew replied that the Arab would keep no books at all. The Arab hates the British for fostering Jewish immigration, and the Jew in retaliation carries on a campaign against the Government for restricting it.

The advent of civilisation has not impressed the better class of Arab. He looks upon the Jew as his natural enemy, and is firmly convinced that one day he will have a rude awakening, to find the land of his birth finally and totally in the hands of the invader.

The fellahin, or peasant, however, cares little, and minds his own business accordingly. Then, again, Jews in Egypt seem to be unmindful of their co-religionists in Palestine, owing, I presume, to their minority and avoidance of politics. They are never molested by the Egyptians.

To-day the Jews in Palestine are a very mixed crowd indeed. The strength of the Arabs lies in the fact that they are one. They speak the same language and their religion is shared between the Moslem and Christian Faiths, the majority being in the former's favour, but they are united in the antipathy to the Jew.

The Arab is docile and childish, and by kindness can be easily led. On the other hand, many of the Jews come from Russia, Poland and Rumania, and being so accustomed to generations of oppression seem automatically to react to truculence when they land in Palestine and realise that they are now free men.

It is true that, since the Turkish regime, the Jew has brought Palestine out of a slough of despond and into a state of animation and progress; how long this trend of progress is to last is a thing for anxious thought. Is the condition ephemeral or macrobiotic? The only arable land is along the littoral and in the plains of Esdraelon, where cultivation by the Jew is intense, while the hills of Judea and Galilee are useless. Attempts have been made to find water in the Beer-Sheba region, in the hope of extending Jewish enterprise; but only barrenish dribbles have been discovered.

The major industry and export trade of the country is citrus. Everyone who had money to spend or burn purchased virgin soil or ready-made groves, all at fancy and ridiculous prices. Now, although the peak of production is far away ahead, the home markets have reached saturation point. Spain and other countries compete with Palestine, and Palestine, being mandated territory, does not share with our Colonies a reduction in Customs tariffs.

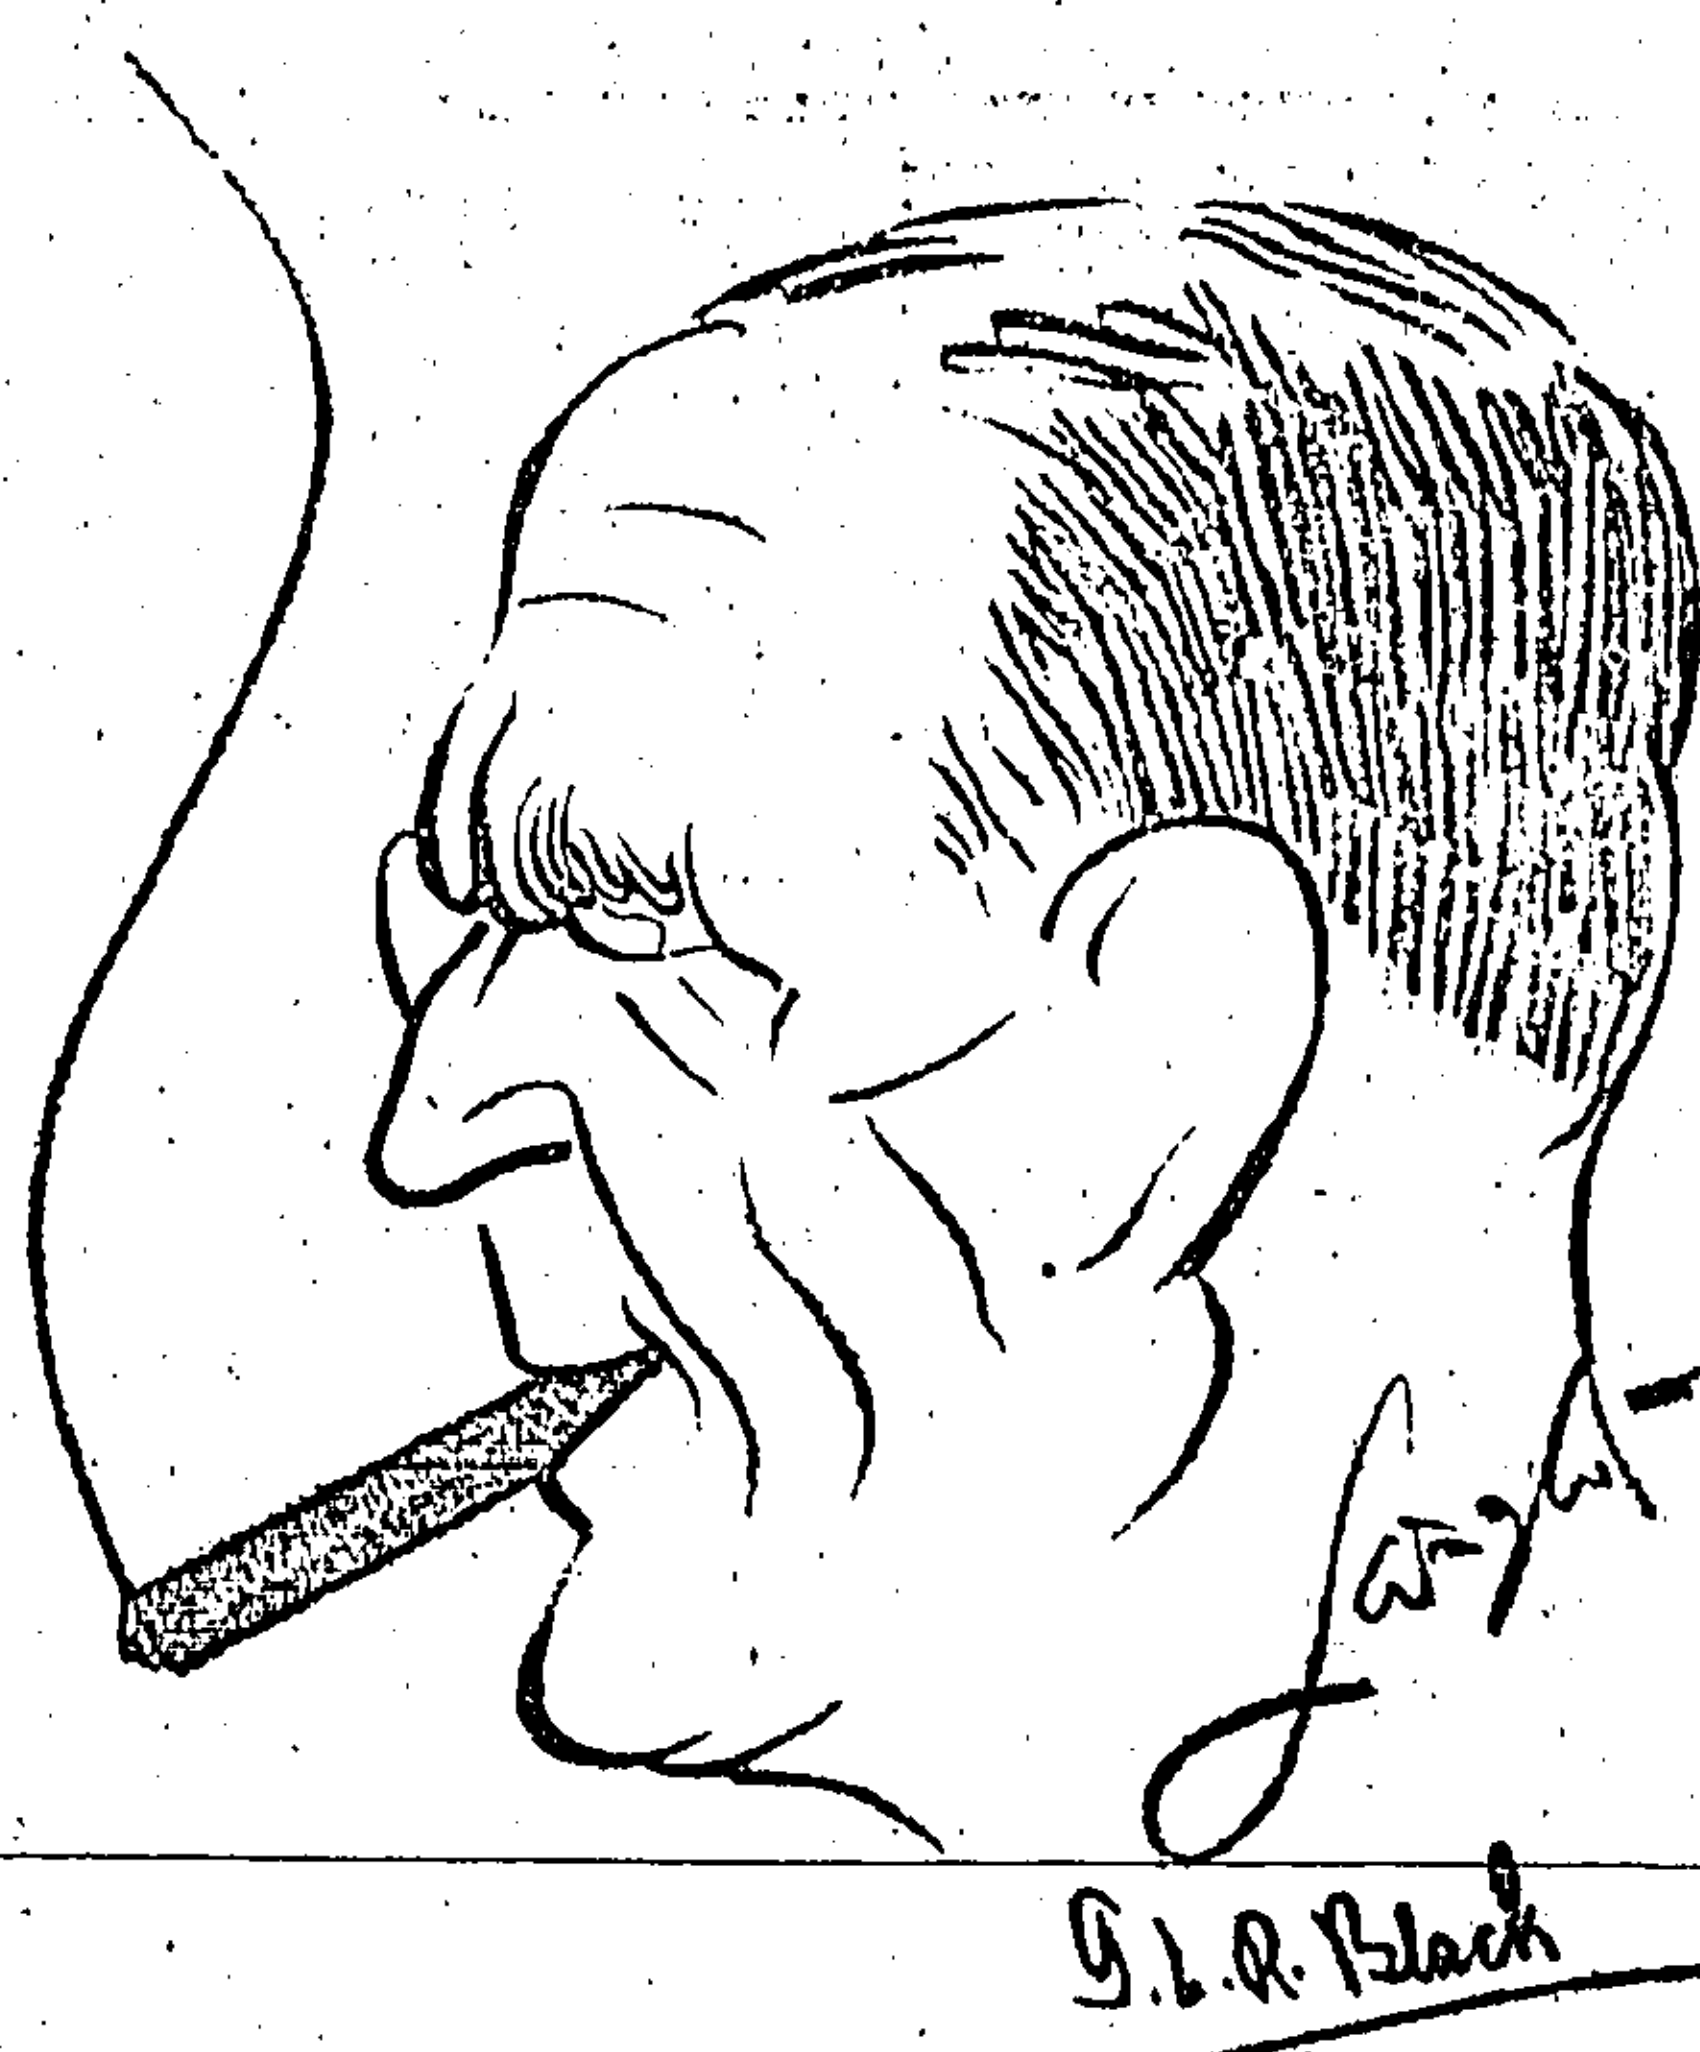

Imports far transcend exports; in fact, there is no comparison. Therefore, economically, the situation is false and unsound. Recently the Jew sought to join hands with the Arab in protesting to the Government over the unhealthy situation of the citrus industry. The Arab merely turned a deaf ear, because he welcomed any disadvantage the Jew could be placed in. In other words, the Arab landlord has made his pile out of the Jew, and now wishes him to Hades. If he could now efface the Jew it would give him more scope.

The hatred of the Palestinian Arab for the Jew is inherent and will never be eradicated in spite of the blandishments of successive Colonial Secretaries. We have Russian v. Pole, Turk v. Armenian, South Irish v. British, German v. French, and, finally, a great section of the world against the Jew.

The British Government want to give Palestine a Legislative Council. The Jew objects, as he rightly avers that the Arab would have a preponderance of votes; so the position is status quo ante. The Arabs of contiguous countries want a federation among themselves, similar to that of Iraq. If this ever happens, then good-bye to the Jew, for the Arab will become paramount.

The Jew wants to live in peace, but this can never be. The Arab, as he feels it his right, will always be the aggressor. The trouble now preceeding will not end; if it does, it will only be a lull in the trend of events, and no proclamation of the Government condemning disturbance, and expressing determination to maintain order, will have the slightest effect. Such proclamations have always been issued when the damage was done, and they have as much effect as that of water on a duck's back.

The maintenance of public order in Palestine is a serious business. During the time that I was Chief of the Police at Tel-Aviv and Jaffa I personally never experienced any incivility from either Jew or Arab. But that did not make my policeman's lot a happy one.

"WOMAN IN RED" RETURNS HOME

WEEPS AS THEY SEND HER BACK TO RUMANIA

MRS. ANNA SAGE, the "Woman in Red" who betrayed Jack Dillinger, ex-public enemy No. 1, to Federal police in Chicago and decoyed him to his death before their guns outside a cinema, reached Queens-town, Ireland, last month in the liner President Harding.

She was on her way to her native Rumania, under a deportation order.

Mrs. Sage claimed bitterly that she has been "double-crossed" by the police.

She said: "All I wanted for my part in the Dillinger affair was that a deportation order against me should not be executed. The men who wanted Dillinger so bad said they'd take care of my case."

She received about £1,000. But she still has to go back to Rumania, which she left for America when she was aged seven-teen.

She is now forty-four years old, dark-complexioned, with a broad, almost colourless face, in which jet black eyes shine bitterly, and then fill with tears as she talks of "double-crossing" by the police.

In a queer mixture of Chicago American and Rumanian accents Mrs. Sage told in abrupt, staccato sentences how she bargained Dillinger's freedom for her own.

"I never saw Dillinger until ten days or so before they got him," she says. "It was an accident that brought me in touch with him. Polly Hamilton, who used to work at my hotel, was broke, and I let her stay sometimes in my apartment. She brought in Dillinger. He called himself Jimmy Lawrence."

"I did not know who he was until one day when he was reading a paper to Polly he showed her a picture, and said: 'They've put me somewhere else to-day.' I told Polly to get Jimmy out of the house. She didn't know who he was, and didn't turn him out. I became scared and went to Zarkovitch."

Sergeant Martin Zarkovitch, of the East Chicago police, called in Melvin Purvis, head of the Department of Justice agents in Chicago.

Says Mrs. Sage:—"I told Mr. Purvis I would put on my hat if we were going any distance on the following Sunday, and would be barcharged if we went to the Biograph cinema. As we were leaving the apartment that Sunday I asked Jimmy if we were going far. I said I wanted to put on my hat if we were."

"He said we would go to the Biograph. One of Purvis's men said I had no hat. That let him know where we were going."

After the pictures, when Dillinger and his two women companions had walked about forty feet, some one slipped up behind him and put a bullet through the killer's brain.

Presentation of medal by Governor of Macao last week, to Mr. Lam Siu-lai, a well-known citizen of Macao, for his charitable work. Mr. Lam is a brother of Mr. Lam Cheuk-wing, of Hongkong, director of the Tung Wah Hospital.

WHY FILM STARS ADOPT BABIES

Motherhood Means Loss Of Salaries

Norma Shearer's £80,000 Sacrifice

Hollywood, May 28.

A CANVASS of homes of leading actresses here has disclosed that film stars who yearn for motherhood but feel they cannot afford it are acquiring adopted babies with increasing frequency.

There is near Chicago a clearing house for motherhood—a scientifically conducted establishment which selects perfect babies from those brought to it by mothers unable to support them and delivers them into the custody of film stars.

Altogether this institution has found homes for 3,000 babies in the past few years.

Liberty—a well-known American periodical—gives an interesting list of the more prominent actresses who have acquired babies in this fashion. It points out that the inordinate cost of motherhood for Hollywood stars is responsible for this growing practice.

MIRIAM HOPKINS Visited clearing house for her foster-son.

They have to abandon magnificent salaries for months on end and they have to consider the producers, who naturally object to substitutes in pictures on which they may already have spent millions of pounds.

Also actresses often find, after a year's absence from the screen caused by motherhood, that their public has left them. Helen Twelvetrees, for instance, estimates that she sacrificed something like £40,000 for the privilege of having her son Jack. The initial cost was a year's salary, amounting to £26,000. To this had to be added the fact that she lost the leading part in "A Bill of Divorcement," which went to Miss Katharine Hepburn. Miss Norma Shearer sacrificed an even larger sum for her son, Irving Thalberg, and her daughter, Katherine. She took two maternity leaves from the screen, each year losing £80,000 in salary.

Warned by these losses, Miss Miriam Hopkins visited the famous clearing house and found her little Michael, a handsome blond boy, who looks just like her.

A BROTHER FOR HER. A star who imitated Miss Hopkins's example was Miss Gracie Allen, wife of Mr. George Burns, who took from the institution little Sandra, and then anxious lest Sandra as the only child might grow up to be selfish, asked the institution for a brother for her.

The institution had in Ronald John just what she was seeking—"a baby with the exact colouring Sandra had at his age, so that the two actually looked like brother and sister."

Mr. Al Johnson and Miss Ruby Keeler adopted a black-eyed youngster, part Irish and part Jewish, and Miss Keeler suffered by this adoption no interruption in the receipt of her salary.

Miss Barbara Stanwyck, who bravely announced that she intended to have two babies of her own, whom she named in anticipation Michael and Kathleen, finally adopted a red-haired baby, nine months old, called Dion.

BABY'S FILM DEBUT. Miss Zasu Pitts fell in love with the adopted baby of Miss Barbara Stanwyck, and when that actress died adopted the little boy herself. Mr. Wallace Beery has an adopted daughter, Carol Ann, aged four, who has already made her debut in "China Seas," and Mr. Harold Lloyd, though blessed with children of his own, has adopted Peggy.

Other foster-parents are Miss Constance Bennett, whose son Peter, now five, comes from the clearing house, and Miss Gloria Swanson, who with two daughters of her own, has acquired a son called Joseph.

UNIVERSITY GROUPS TO STUDY SOLAR ECLIPSE

JUNE 19TH TREK TO RUSSIA

Cambridge, Mass., June 1. Elaborate spectroscopic studies of the sun's outer layers will be made by Harvard and Massachusetts Institute of Technology scientists now en route to Soviet Russia to observe the June 19 solar eclipse.

The band, headed by Prof. Donald H. Menzel of Harvard, will set up their instruments near Ak-Bulak in the southern Ural mountains, centre of the totality belt. Eight women scientists are members of the party.

The scientists have at their disposal the most modern instruments available for detecting rare chemical gases and elements. These will be focused on the sun's outer layers—chromosphere and corona—in efforts to establish definitely their chemical content.

Previous observations have pointed to existence of a new element, coronium, although scientists suspect it may be some well known element—such as oxygen—reacting under conditions peculiar to the sun.

The Harvard expedition hopes to substantiate or disprove the coronium theory. The observations, chiefly spectroscopic, will be made by "still" and "movie" cameras. Two movie devices will record the eclipse throughout its various stages. Still machines will make records at one second intervals during the height of the phenomenon.

Other studies will be made on the effect of the eclipse on radio signals. Measurements will be made on the reflection of radio waves from the ionosphere—the earth's outer atmosphere—which serves as a reflecting ceiling—to determine the sun's influence over this layer.

The Harvard-M.I.T. expedition is being made at the invitation of Dr. Boris P. Gorasimov, director of Pulkova observatory in Leningrad and former associate professor at Harvard.

Ak-Bulak was chosen as the site for observations because clear weather is more certain there than in other points in the totality belt. The eclipse will be along a 76-mile belt from the Mediterranean sea, across Greece, the Black Sea, Russia and Siberia into the Pacific ocean. It will not be visible in the Western Hemisphere.

In addition to Dr. Menzel and Mrs. Menzel, other members of the expedition include Dr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Boyce of M.I.T., Dr. R. E. Atkinson of Rutgers, Jr., and Mrs. A. H. Benford of Oxford, Jackson Cook, M.I.T., Mrs. Wallace H. Brude of Ohio State, Miss M. O. Crowe of Albany, N. Y., Miss Catherine Stillman of Vassar, and Miss Henrietta Swope, Dr. and Mrs. Irving Gardner, Henry H. Patterson, Paul King, J. A. Pierce, H. Selvidge and E. P. York, all of Harvard.—United Press.

12 Would-Be Brides Disappointed

OLD SOLDIER SOUNDS HIS MIND

A dozen hopeful women, nearly all septuagenarians and all wearing new dresses, waited one day last month at the Institution of the Plymouth (Devon) Guardians expecting an immediate proposal of marriage.

Their hopes were in vain. The 76-year-old prospective bridegroom, an old soldier, who had declared his intention of choosing a bride from the Institution, had found her elsewhere. He proposed to a neighbour and was accepted.

NICARAGUA REVOLT

NATIONAL GUARDSMEN'S BID FOR CONTROL

Managua, June 1. National Guard revolutionaries attacked the Presidential palace, but were repelled following two hours machine-gunning.

The casualties are unknown. Later several bullets struck the office of the American Minister, Mr. Boaz Long, but no damage was caused.

The National Guards continue to storm Port Acaesano.

The Government is still in control. It is believed that eight hundred men are supporting President Saca at the Palace.

Mr. Fletcher Warren, Secretary of the American Legation, rescued several gallies who were caught in the line of fire. They included C. H. Lyerly and S. J. Calvert (Americans) and L. W. Jackson, an Englishman.

It is reliably stated that five loyalists were wounded and two National Guardsmen killed. Sixteen Guardsmen were wounded, two seriously.

The revolt followed the President's refusal to recognize the Guardsmen's overthrow of several local governments.—United Press.

LEAGUE CRISIS

ETHIOPIA'S CASE TO COME UP

The League of Nations is prepared to stake its future on the outcome of Argentina's demand for an extraordinary session to act regarding the annexation of Ethiopia.

Formal notification of Senor Guinazu's demand will be made this week, automatically convoking the Assembly.

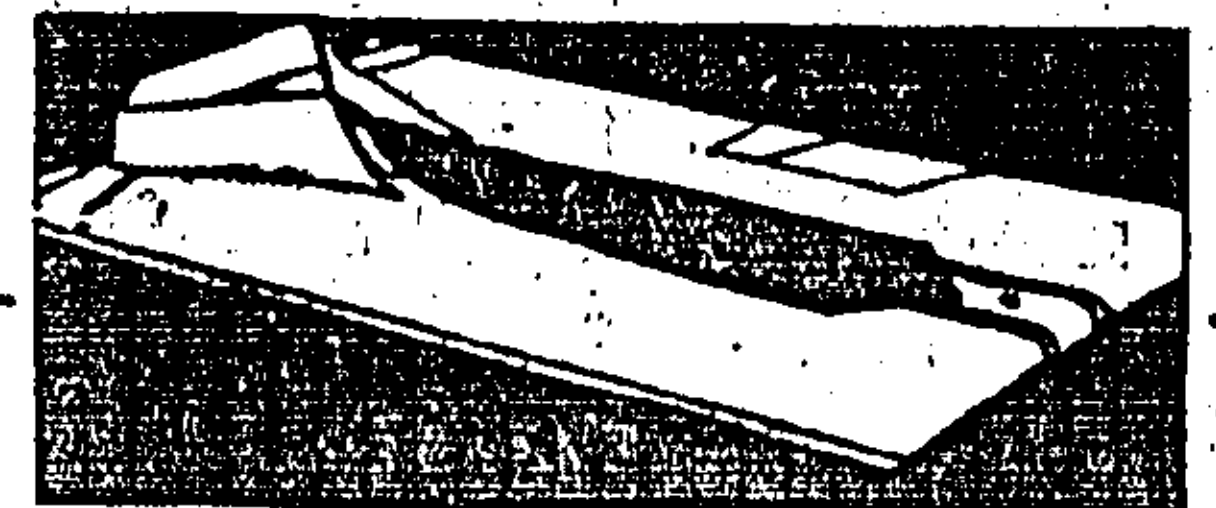

A canvass revealed that the small Powers' delegates welcome the meeting. However, many fear the League may be shaken if the discussions reveal wide divergences of opinion.

The Little Entente, the Balkan and Baltic Powers and some British Dominions' delegates approve the Argentine initiative, provided it does not result in lifting sanctions.

Informed quarters believe the Argentine delegate, prior to making his demand, secretly consulted London, Paris, Prague, Madrid and other capitals.—United Press.

BRITISH JUSTICE HELD UP AS MODEL FOR AMERICAN COURTS

San Francisco, May 25.

The promptness and justice of British judicial procedure was both recognised and commended here in a special report of an American Legion crime committee, urging immediate amendments to the state penal code as a remedy for crime conditions throughout the state.

"Humane" British judgment was praised by the committee in its report, which submitted five projected code amendments designed to eliminate court delay and penal laxity.

"Certainty of punishment is more efficacious than barbarity," the report said. "China, where torture and death are still practised, is a lawless country."

"Great Britain, where punishment is humane, but prompt and sure, is one of the most law abiding countries in the world."

California delay in bringing a man to trial, while cases are pending on appeal, was rapped in the report, which said "delay in the administration of justice breeds doubt as to its integrity."

The committee criticized long appellate procedure which "hampers the administration of the law." As indicative of delay, the committee cited the case of George Hall, who killed a state police officer and legionnaire at Yreka, California, in 1933.

"Three years of postponement of Hall's execution caused a lynching, endangered lives in an attempted prison break and bred widespread disrespect for judicial procedure," the committee said.

It strongly recommended as code amendments:

1 Final determination of criminal cases within 90 days of conclusion of a trial.

2 Segregation of convicted prisoners according to age, mentality, criminal record, type of crime and prison conduct.

3 Employment of able-bodied prisoners at useful labour during maximum possible number of hours.

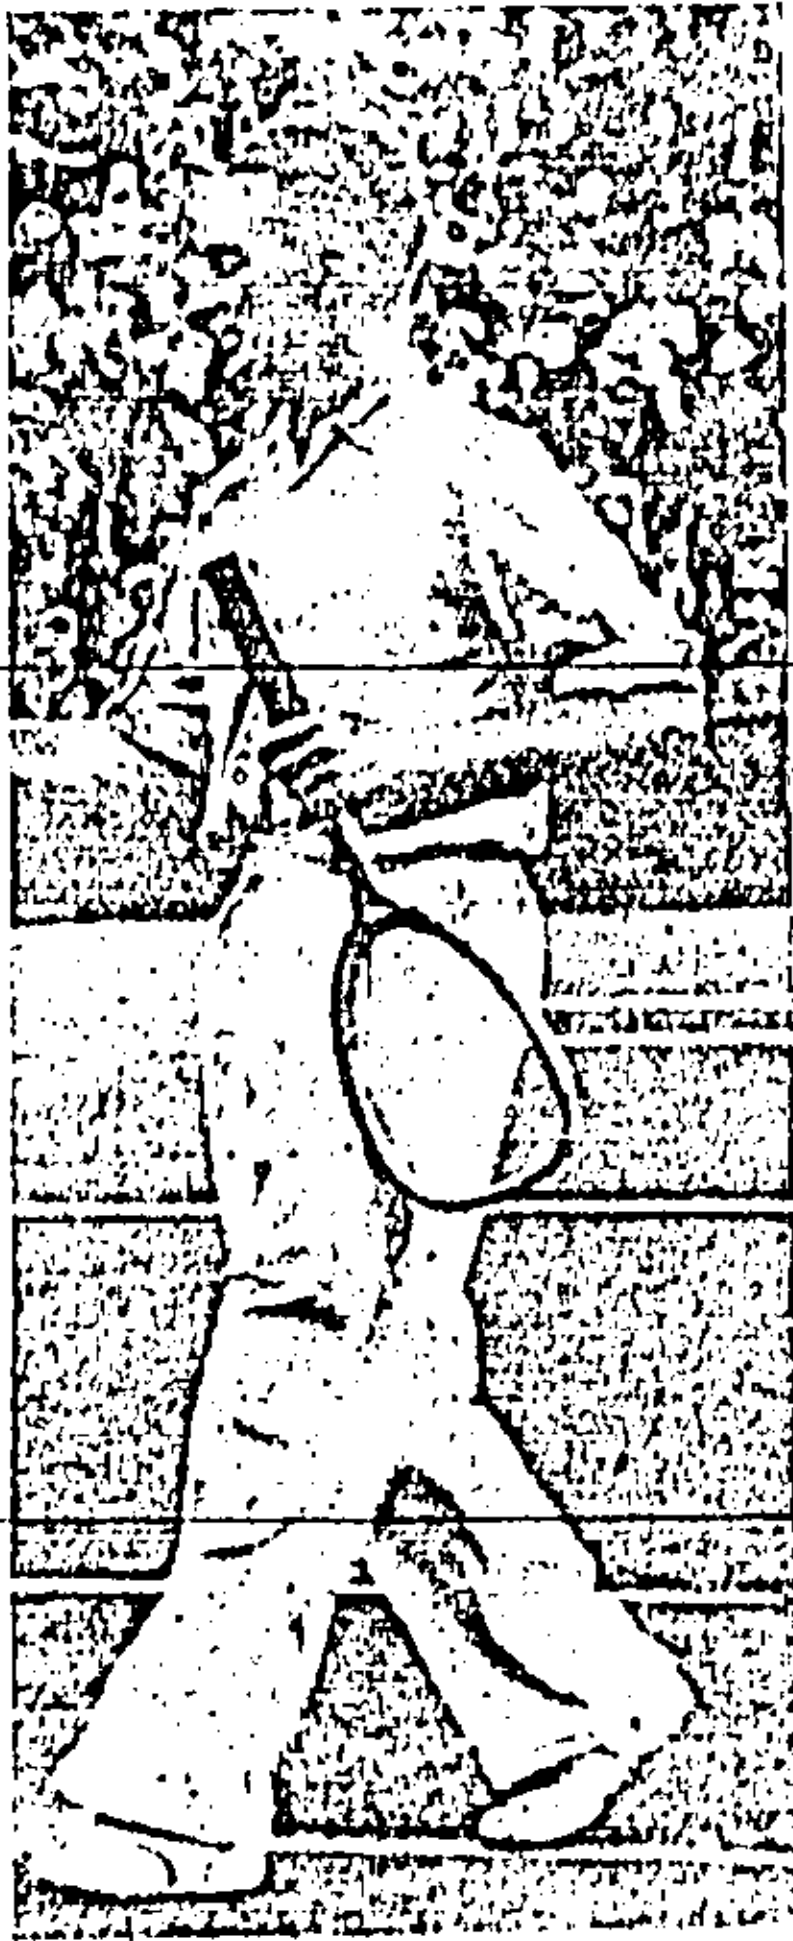

4 Removal of maximum terms of sentence, discharge to be granted only after prisoner has proved rehabilitation following his release from prison.

Increased supervision over paroled convicts until time of final discharge.—United Press.

AUSTRALIA DEFEATS AMERICA IN DAVIS CUP

Hazardous Volleying By Crawford Does Trick

JACK CRAWFORD

BUDGE WALLOPS QUIST

Germantown, Pa., June 1.

United States fought to the utmost to avoid defeat to-day in the American Zone final of the Davis Cup but failed. Jack Crawford beat Wilmer Allison after five sets of nerve-racking tennis in the first match of the day to give Australia a winning lead of three rubbers to one.

Afterwards Donald Budge went on the court and slew the youthful Quist in three sets, but there was little interest in the result.

A Renter message says that Crawford beat Allison 4-6, 6-3, 4-6, 6-2, 6-2, while Budge beat Quist 6-2, 6-2, 6-4. The Americans made a gallant effort to retrieve a well-nigh hopeless position. Allison played tip-top tennis for three sets, but Crawford, driving immaculately down the "Texan," as he did against Austin in the Challenge Round last year, Allison lost his touch after the ten minutes interval between the third and fourth sets, whereas a refreshed Crawford increased the pace of his shots and launched attack after attack to monopolise the court.

Allison was playing a losing game in the last two sets which the Australian won with the total loss of four games.

WHIRLWIND BUDGE

Budge, determined to make the final score look better, set about Quist in the same way as he did about Crawford on Saturday, but this time met with feeble opposition and swept through three sets to a spectacular victory.

Quist could make no impression on the lanky Californian, who sent over a stream of punishing drives on both hands and made judicious raids to the net with telling results. Budge rushed through the first two sets winning each in the eighth game. Quist made a bid in the third set, but he could only extend it to the tenth game.

Thus Australia has qualified for the Inter-Zone final which will be played at Wimbledon on July 18, 20 and 21. This will be the fifth time in which Australia has contested an Inter-Zone final during the last 13 years. She reached this stage in 1934, but lost to the United States at Wimbledon after Crawford and McGrath had won the first two singles. Prior to 1934 Australia had figured in three Inter-Zone finals and two Challenge Rounds. In 1923, the first year in which the competition was divided into zones Australia beat France in the Inter-Zone final, and lost to America in the Challenge Round. The following year this was repeated, France first being beaten, only the Australians to fall before the Americans. In 1925 the Inter-Zone final was again reached, but then France took revenge by winning.

Attractive Tennis Programme

A full programme of "A" Division tennis league matches have been arranged for this afternoon, but it is extremely doubtful whether any will be played owing to the sodden state of the courts.

K.C.C. are at home to the Chinese Recreation Club first string, this being the chief encounter of the afternoon, but another extremely interesting tie is that between I.R.C. and Club de Recreo at Hoonkumpu.

If the matches are played indications are that I.R.C. will beat K.C.C., that L.R.C. will just about nose out the Recreio, that South China will beat H.K.C.C. and that C.L.C. "B" gain a narrow decision over U.S.R.C.

Here are the matches, the home teams appearing first.

K.C.C. (2) v. C.R.C. (1)
I.R.C. v. U.S.R.C.
H.K.C.C. v. Recreio

TO-DAY'S LAWN BOWLS MATCHES

In Pairs Championship

The six outstanding first round matches in the Hongkong lawn bowls pairs championship are due to be played this afternoon. This morning's rain is bound to leave the greens very heavy, and unless the weather improves it is possible some of the matches will not be played.

Kowloon Dock green is the venue for two matches, while others are being played at K.B.G.C. Police, Civil Service and Hongkong Football Club.

If any, or all of the matches cannot be played to-day they will be automatically transferred to Monday, June 8.

Here is the programme for this afternoon, all games being due to start at 5 o'clock.

F. Cheeseman and J. G. Gill v. W. L. Walker and H. A. Rose (Kowloon Dock Green).

C. A. Stevens and C. G. Silva v. A. Stevens and J. A. R. Selby (K.B.G.C. Green).

F. A. Machado and H. F. Rozario v. J. MacDonald and A. M. Holland (Kowloon Dock Green).

T. Coleman and G. N. Mitchell v. D. C. B. Alves and F. V. V. Ribeiro (Police Green).

J. L. Silva and H. A. Alves v. F. M. el Arculli and A. Baker (C.S.C.C. Green).

C. H. Basto and J. J. Basto v. A. E. Condes and J. Cavanagh (H. K. F. C. Green).

Great Britain and the United States (holders) halved the third international match for the Curtis Cup, and the last putt of the day, a seven-yarder which Miss Jessie Anderson, of Perth, holed at the 18th to win hole and match, saved us from defeat.

That we did not win, after all the high hopes, was an unmitigated disappointment, and once again it is not the golf but the mentality where we seem to have gone wrong.

Of the American side Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare was heroine, for she not only halved her foursome, but won her single; of the British, Mrs. Holm and Mrs. Garon may be said to divide the honours, with a share for Miss Anderson on account of that historic putt.

Miss was driving across the course when play began, reducing visibility now and again to the extent of a No. 1 iron. When the mist lifted it was because a bitter north-easterly wind had freshened. Small wonder that both teams took far gloves for between the shots, and Mrs. Cheney took refuge in a big top coat between each striking of the ball. Small, equally, that their match took three hours to play.

The first foursome showed Mrs. Garon, as always, the supreme and perfect partner, and Mrs. Vare converted from the listless "don't care" of practice rounds to an electrified wire whose play was a delight to watch. You may see the concentration coming out as she steps to the first tee for the big match, so you could in little Miss Patty Berg, runner-up to her in last year's American National Championship, and just the player to delight the gallery, because she is so entirely oblivious of them. For her the ball and the club and the hole exist—and absolutely nothing else in the world.

NERVOUSNESS—A LESSON. Nervous she undoubtedly was; even the first hole was not sufficient excuse for the putting and puttings which went on as she scaled it, but it never took her mind off the business in hand—a very valuable lesson to some of our players slightly older than her.

The truth had better be told briefly and at once. Miss Wanda Morgan entirely failed to do herself justice, and her putting was a thing to make British onlookers weep in sympathy with the weather. Mrs. Garon, on the other hand, was superb, getting out of the many bunkers she was put into with supreme ease, and playing the attacking shots into the bargain.

Mrs. Garon's side turned 1 down and lost the next, but America took three putts at the 11th. Mrs. Garon holed a long run up at the 12th, and the match was square again. For the second time a stylic came to Great Britain's rescue at the 13th and the side was 1 up after winning the 16th. Then came one of Miss Morgan's tragic little putts missed at the 17th and America was downy. Miss Morgan rose finely to the occasion and put her iron third two yards from the pin, so that they won the hole and hence the match.

In the second foursome, America's pair, Mrs. Cheney and Mrs. Crews

FILIPINO OLYMPIANS' FORM

UPSET BY BAD CONDITIONS

But Impress With Exhibitions

Never before has Hongkong seen in simultaneous action such a galaxy of athletic luminaries as yesterday when, on the occasion of the visit here of the Philippine World Olympic delegation, exhibitions were given in swimming, track and field events, basketball and boxing. Unhappily weather conditions were unfavourable and in neither swimming nor athletics, did the visitors come within distance of Olympic time records.

Albeit they gave some extremely entertaining performances. Naturally they swept the board when in opposition to Colony talents. A typical example of their superiority was given when Wilfrid Lawrence, Hongkong's best distance swimmer, was left over a length in arrears by N. Christiansen. The Filipinos also filled first and second places in the 100 yards free style with Norman Lee of Hongkong swimming third.

Lau Po-hoi gave a creditable performance in the 100 yards backstroke and but for misjudging his distance would have made a closer race of it. N. Christiansen, who last week established a new Far Eastern record in this event, demonstrated a magnificent style and great power of stroke.

One of the most attractive swimmers on view was A. Alpad, who deputised for T. Idefonso in the 200 yards breaststroke. He turned in a first class performance to win at the expense of Wong Lu-man and Fung Chung-yu, in 2 mins. 34.2/5 secs.

The detailed results and times follow.

50 yards free style handicap (members only).—1. Simonsen, 2. E. Gutierrez. Time: 33.2/5 secs.

100 yards free style.—1. J. Adjaludin (P.I.), 2. J. Obial (P.I.), 3. Norman Lee. Time: 55.1/5 sec.

Norman Lee, free style handicap (members only).—1. A. Gutierrez, 2. A. Noronha. Time: 73.3/5 sec.

100 yards backstroke.—1. N. Christiansen (P.I.), 2. Lau Po-hoi; 3. Yeung Lu-kwan. Time: 65.3/5 sec.

200 yards breaststroke.—1. A. Alpad (P.I.), 2. Wong Lu-man; 3. Fung Chung-yu. Time: 2 min. 34.2/5 secs.

30 yards free style handicap (Indies).—1. Mrs. McMahon. Time: 33.1/5 secs.

440 yards free style.—1. Adjaludin (P.I.), 2. W. Lawrence; 3. Norman Lee. Time: 5 min. 15.2/5 secs.

Medley relay race (three men—50 yards).—Backstroke N. Christiansen (P.I.) and Lau Po-hoi, breaststroke A. Alpad (P.I.) and Wong Lu-man, free style J. Obial (P.I.) and Chan Chan-hing. Won by P.I. team. Time: 1 min. 22 secs.

(Miss Maureen Orcutt) lived up to an unbeaten record in international foursomes. That Mrs. Crews had the better of Miss Barton in length was perhaps immaterial except in morale; what was counting was the fluffing of chips by Miss Barton and the missing of her putts by Mrs. Walker. Such is not her habit and the American pair, 5 over 4's for the match, having got rid of a deficit of 2 early in the round, never looked back.

Four Athletes For Modern Pentathlon

At the conclusion of the British Modern Pentathlon championships at Aldershot recently, the following team of four, one being a reserve, was chosen to represent Great Britain at the Olympic Games in Berlin:

Lieutenant J. A. McDougall (Duke of Cornwall's L.I.), Captain C. P. D. Legard (6th Royal Inniskilling Dragoons), 2nd Lieutenant A. F. M. Jack (Royal Engineers) and Lieutenant D. A. Pringle (Royal Signals).

Lieutenant McDougall won the British championship, and Captain Legard was runner-up.

Other results were: Wright beat Gray on points; "Battling" Rio lost to Ross on points; McBeattie lost to Morgan on a technical K.O.; and Glendon beat Raven on points.

AM these fights were over three rounds. McBeattie was unlucky in slipping in the first round and knocking himself out so effectively

Christiansen Sets New Far East Record

BACKSTROKE PERFORMANCE

Manila, May 30. Adolf Lils Christiansen, the Philippines' entry in the 100-metre backstroke event in the World's Olympic swimming meet, cracked the Far Eastern record in that event yesterday afternoon to turn in the only record-breaking performance in the farewell appearance of the Philippine delegation before their departure for the Berlin games.

Christiansen, swimming without any competition and against time only, negotiated the backstroke event in 1:10.4 which is four-tenths of a second better than the Far Eastern mark set here in 1934 by the Japanese, Kawasu, runner-up in this event at the Los Angeles Games in 1932.

It was the fourth time Christiansen bettered the Far Eastern mark in the backstroke event since he started training for the Berlin Games. He has been clocked at 1:07, 1:08 and 1:09.

Fair time was made by Teofilo Idefonso, veteran backstroke, in the 100-metre breaststroke event yesterday. He negotiated the distance in 2:47.5 which is two seconds slower than his own Far Eastern and Philippine records. Jikirim Alajudin and Arasad Alpad, two More swimmers, finished second and third, respectively. Jikirim, who paced the trio, lost out in the last lap when Idefonso began to stretch out. Jikirim's time was 2:49.8 and Arasad's was 2:52.5.

Jose Obial, who will represent the Philippines in the sprints, swam the 100 metres event in 1:02.

AND THEY BOXED AFTER ALL!

Programme Called Off—Then On

In spite of the announcement made during the morning that the boxing display by the Filipinos would not take place, a last minute decision to the contrary was made last evening, the visitors boxing each other in exhibition bouts. The rest of the programme consisted of bouts between Hongkong boxers.

Felipe K. Nung (111 lbs.) was in aggressive mood against his compatriot Oscar de Larranzabal, and kept the bigger man on the run most of the time. Nung gave evidence of being well endowed with a powerful left which his knowledge of the science of the game earned a lot of approval from the 200 odd spectators.

The willingness of the Filipino lads to mix in and have a real scrap with sparring gloves was a pleasant feature of the programme. In the next fight between Gabuca and de Castro, the former weighing out at 126 lbs. and his opponent at 146, both men went for it hammer and tongs and were warmly applauded for a fast and engaging contest.

Gabuca, the Philippines' leading featherweight was not in the least perturbed by the extra weight of de Castro. He used his feet and hands with fine skill and de Castro rarely landed a telling blow, although it was clear he possessed a keen punch.

The scraps between the Hongkong men were something of an anti-climax, although some of them went all out to provide the onlookers with some excitement.

Col. Hall beat "Iron" Bux, Jr. after a hard-hitting but unscientific three-rounds engagement.

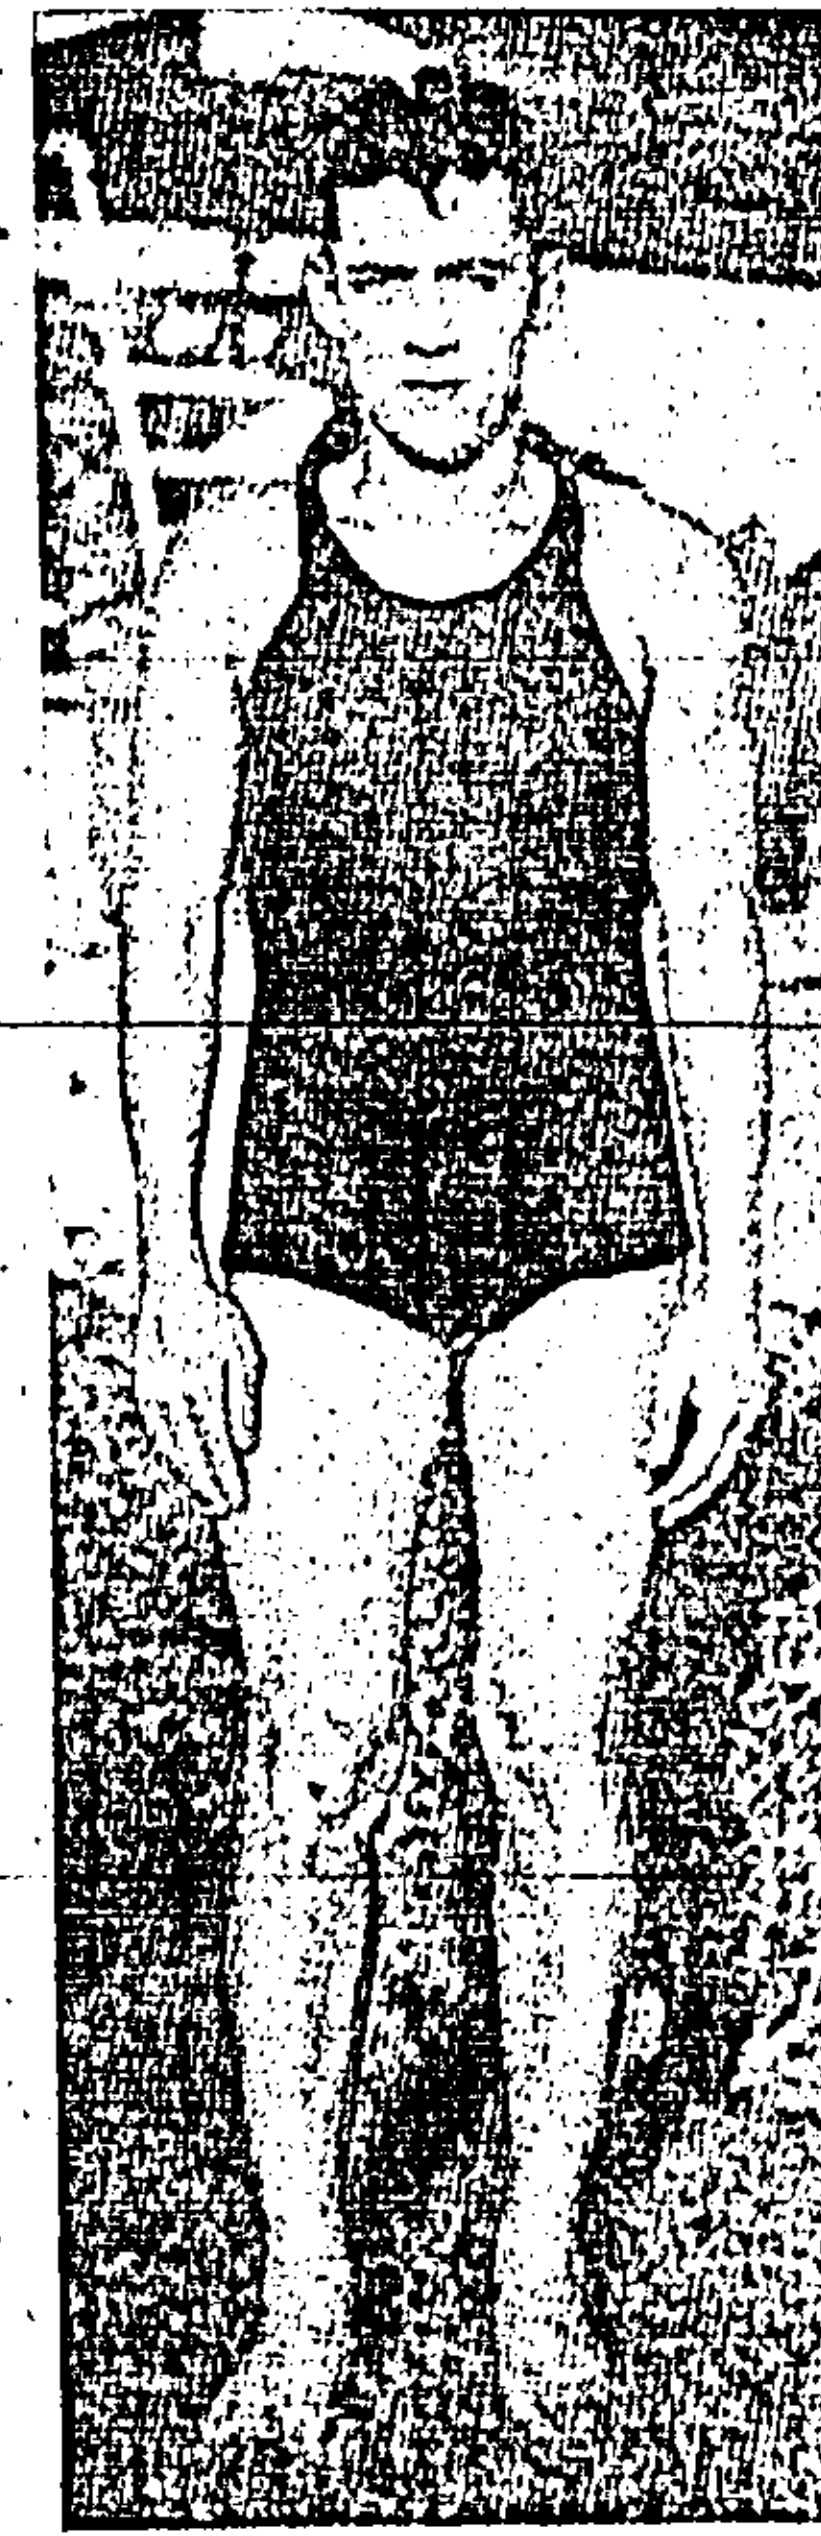

"Battling" Gutiz was awarded the verdict by the referee in the third round of his scheduled six-rounds match with Young Panchito. It was a milling contest with little or no head paid to the finer points of boxing.

Two popular British soldiers, Wheelan and Owens were billed for the next scrap, added interest being invented in the encounter by the fact that they met recently at the Area Championships when Wheelan gained a points decision. Last night they went in for some vigorous and entertaining toe-to-toe fighting and quite rightly the judgment was a draw. It was a happy little fight which greatly pleased the crowd.

Other results were: Wright beat Gray on points; "Battling" Rio lost to Ross on points; McBeattie lost to Morgan on a technical K.O.; and Glendon beat Raven on points.

AM these fights were over three rounds. McBeattie was unlucky in slipping in the first round and knocking himself out so effectively

France Expects To Win Two Olympic Boxing Titles

HOPES ON LIGHT HEAVYWEIGHT AND FLYWEIGHT CHAMPIONS

Two Olympic boxing titles are already counted upon as the property of France when her team of boxers meet the world's best amateur sluggers at the Berlin Games in August.

The two boxers who are expected to turn the trick are veterans as far as non-professionals are concerned for both of them took part in the last Olympics at Los Angeles in 1932. The first, light heavyweight Roger Michelot lost in the final and was crowned European champion, while flyweight Gaston Fayaud was eliminated in the first round by the Hungarian Stephen Enakes, who went on to win the Olympic title. In 1931 Michelot went to Chicago with a French team and won the Golden Gloves title.

GREATLY IMPROVED

"These two men have improved greatly since 1932," Paul Rousseau, president of the French Boxing Federation, told United Press. "While it is risky to make any predictions so far ahead of time and without personally knowing the foreign fighters, I confidently expect these two youngsters to give a good account of themselves and possibly score triumphs for France in Berlin."

Of the two Fayaud is undoubtedly the classier fighter. In March he won the French flyweight crown for the fourth successive time and in April won the British crown for the second year running. Fayaud, who is 26, is fast, clever and boxes with the sureness of a professional. In winning the British title in 1935, he accomplished something that no other Frenchman had ever done before.

Michelot is the more experienced and has been light-heavyweight champion for six years. Despite his outstanding class he had to give his best to take out a close victory against Jean Dequerre, France's latest find. It was his experience that proved the deciding factor and it is this experience that will win him his Olympic post and possibly an Olympic victory. He is a hard hitter with either hand and is unusually wily for an amateur.

NOT A LARGE TEAM

France will not send a large team to Berlin. Rousseau said that only seven men would be sent to the German capital, which is one representative from each class except the heavyweight. There is no man "worthy of representing his country in this class," sadly reflected the French president.

While a great hope is held out for the other five men of the team, they are nevertheless counted upon to make a creditable showing with two of them looked upon as semi-finalists and finalists. These two are featherweight Robert Wagner and lightweight Francois Aupetit, both of them champions in their respective categories.

Wagner is a comparatively new in the game and succeeded to the title held in 1935 by Robert Peyre, who was not able to defend it. Both men are on a par but it is far more likely that Wagner will be picked to go to Berlin. Despite his lack of experience Wagner is fast, strong and very game. These qualities coupled with the fact that he is a southpaw may decide the issue in his favour.

Aupetit won the title for the first time this year. If the games were a full year away he might be included with Fayaud and Michelot. He was the revelation of the season but is still too crude to get by the strong foreign competition in Berlin. Roger Tritz, middleweight champion, will have to fight it out with Jean Andreotti for the Olympic post. Tritz successfully defended his title in a very close fight with Andreotti. As Tritz, because of his style of boxing—holding and stalling—is not very popular here, it is quite likely that the younger Andreotti will be picked for the team.

CAMP TRAINING

Pierre Bonnet, bantamweight champion, and Robert Grante, middleweight titleholder, may round out the team. The latter is not very sure for Jean Despenax, the latest find, is pressing him closely for the post.

As the team will not be designated until the last week in July anything may happen between now and then. All of them have plenty of fighting to do in the next two months and some lads not heretofore considered as prospects may forge ahead of the present favoured ones.

Rousseau told United Press that all of the likely prospects will be sent to the military camp at Joinville, on the outskirts of Paris, in July where they will undergo intensive training. During the last week, he said, the team will be picked and "they will be sent to Berlin on the 28th in order to give them a full week to adjust themselves and become acclimatized to the new conditions. One thing you can be sure of. That is that when my boys get into the ring in Berlin they will give a good account of themselves for French fighters have always done well in foreign rings."

FRENCH OLYMPIC SWIMMING PROSPECTS VERY BLACK

Jacques Cartonnet Will Be Notable Absentee From Berlin

Paris. France's Olympic swimming hopes have always been rather black. This year they are blacker than ever.

Jean Tardif, the best French swimmer extant, took second place in the 400 metre free-style event at Los Angeles in 1932. If he finishes as far up as fourth in Berlin in August, his performance may well be considered exceptional, considering the progress made by American and Japanese swimmers since the last Olympics. Tardif, if anything, has deteriorated.

The one straw of hope to which the French cling is a possible Olympic victory by their water-polo team. The Federation officials say there is a good chance for victory in Berlin but with the same breath they admit the existence of high grade competition. The last time the French sent a water-polo team to the Games, they won the Olympic title. That was back in 1924. Hungary won it in 1932 and is a heavy favourite to repeat. Germany, Belgium and Holland, at worst still be considered on a par with the French team. The Federation's hope is not likely to be realized.

ONLY DOZEN COMPETITORS

France's swimming team to Berlin will probably not exceed a dozen competitors men and women included. This is partly due to lack of funds and to lack of first class swimming material.

The most notable absentee will be Jacques Cartonnet, until recently the holder of two world records: the 200-yard and 200 metre breaststroke. The strong-headed, lacy but pleasant, he has been consistently in hot water with the Federation. At present he is very much in that body's bad graces.

Repeated failures to make appearances at meets at which he was scheduled to swim forced the Federation to take sanctions against him. Furthermore he has always shown strong antipathy against systematic training methods, which further irritated the august body. The final blow was Cartonnet's ultimatum that he would gladly represent France at the Olympics, but only on his own terms. Naturally the Federation has decided not to include him on the team.

Tardif, whose best time for the 400-metre free-style is 4' 47", will be France's representative in this event. He is by far Europe's best swimmer at this distance but that bit of glory won't get him far against the American and Japanese swimmers. Tardif will also participate in the four-man 800-metre relay. The other three swimmers are Alfred Nacache, Marco Drener and Rene Cavalero. Their best time is 9' 20". If they finish among the first six, said a member of the Federation, "we consider that progress."

The spring-board diving assignment will be handled by Roger Heinkel. He is inferior to Henri Ponsard, French champion who recently retired and who finished seventh at Los Angeles. The other distances and events will not have French entries.

Prospects of a woman's triumph are still dimmer, with the excellent field of American and Dutch swimmers as opposition. France's women swimmers will be making their Olympic debut.

Rene Blondeau, who will participate in the 100-metre free-style, has only 1' 8.8" to show for her best time.

Her sister Therese, who will be France's representative for the 100-metre back-strokes, has 1' 21" as her fastest time. The third swimmer, 16-year-old Louise Fleuret has turned in 6' 47" for the 400-metre free style. These times will not even qualify these girls for the semi-finals in Berlin.

Spring-board champion Mme. Roby Poirier and a 400-metre four-woman relay, which will probably include the Blondeau sisters and Mme. Fleuret, will round out the women's team.—United Press.

DISAPPOINTMENT OF CURTIS CUP RESULT

everywhere except on the green. In fact, at the start of the round she even holed some good putts and the match was square with five holes played. Then after reaching the long 7th in two impressive shots she took 3 putts and allowed Mrs. Vare to emerge from the deep gully on the left to snatch a half. Three putts again at the 8th, where Mrs. Vare made one sure. Mrs. Glutting, at the 9th, and instead of being 2 up, Miss Morgan was 1 down. Her 4 at the 10th squared matters, for Mrs. Vare had three putts there, but after that Miss Morgan could not win another hole, and Mrs. Vare won as she richly deserved by 3 and 2.

Mrs. Holm, meanwhile, had only played one bad shot and one bad hole against Miss Patty Berg. Mrs. Holm was level 4's, omitting the 5th, and was one of the only players all day to reach the long short 14th into the teeth of the ever-strengthening wind from the sea. Still all square. News drifted across the hills that Mrs. Garon was level 4's too, was 3 up, 4 up, and then the joyful fact appeared in person. She had won 7 and 5.

But Miss Barton was 2 down by then to Miss Glutting, and there were only five holes left to play. Miss Barton attacked bravely, then, got down in one putt to win the 14th, nearly holed a chip at the 15th, won the 16th and went to the last hole only 1 down. But a pulled second and a worse bush meant she could no more than halve the hole, and there was the whole match standing square again.

Mrs. Walker had been believed to be in extremes, 3 down and 4 to go. But all her fighting Irish blood rose then, whilst Mrs. Crews had become miserably chilled with the ever-increasing wet and cold; they came to the last green with every chance of Mrs. Walker winning that hole too, to halve her match. Her long putt nearly went down, but she missed the return, and there was Great Britain urgently needing the only remaining match out to halve on the day.

Miss Jessie Anderson, after winning the first hole in a great 3, had been last heard of 2 down with 0 to play; later news still was of her bunkered at the 16th. But she came out grandly, and holed a 3-yrarder to win it in 3. Mrs. Cheney unaccountably taking three putts. "All square and the 17th halved. Both nicely on the 18th in 3. Mrs. Cheney, putting first, put her eight-yarder stone dead. Miss Anderson was left with one a trifle shorter for her match and Great Britain's half. She studied it just long enough, struck it perfectly, and it dropped.

A cheer went up which avowed the echoes in the mist-shrouded hills. Great Britain was saved, and it was a Scot who had done it.

Summer CAN'T LAST for Ever

... even in Kashmir, Garden of India. But this romantic story tells of the Summer of Love, which can last for ever!

—By MARGARET FERGUSON

CHAPTER 6

He hadn't been gone two seconds when the door opened and Lady Bannister came in, accompanied by a man, tall and very distinguished in perfectly-cut dress clothes.

"My dear," she said, "do forgive me for rushing in on you, but here is someone who is very anxious to meet you, and I'm sure you'll be equally delighted to meet him. Mr. Guy Servat, Miss Petrovna."

"Miss Petrovna?" she said. "I must rush back to my show, if you like to begin to learn now to be a dancer?"

She was gone, leaving Phillida and the tall man looking at each other. Guy Servat with little amused smile, Phillida wide-eyed and white-lipped.

"Miss—er—Phillida," he said slowly. "But not—I think—Petrovna, the ballet dancer, in spite of what Lady Bannister whispered into my ear."

"No—of course not." Phillida's lips were drier than ever. To have Guy Servat of all people, the great London producer of ballet, of every kind of stage and film dancing, in the audience to-night! It was the limit of cruel luck.

"I never said—I mean—" Then she turned round, looked at her face. "Well, I let them think it. I pretended I was a great dancer in-cognito. I've always dreamt of being one, you see, and up here—suddenly it seemed quite easy to pretend I was one. Really, I'm a secretary."

Guy Servat let his eyeglass drop out of his eye and without it he looked much less formidable and grand; much more human.

"I see... but you have the stuff of a great dancer in you. Your dance to-night... of course anyone who knew anything about it would know in one minute that you had had no training... but you have grace and the dancing spirit and beauty. Would you like to begin to learn now to be a dancer? I am out here on a holiday, studying Indian dancing for a new show I am to produce, also I keep my eyes open for near possibilities and talent. If you will come back to London and work hard for two or three years—perhaps you will not have to pretend that you are Petrovna to be admired as a dancer."

Slowly Phillida sat down on the sofa, staring at him, scarcely breathing, her lips parted.

"You... you think I could learn? That I'm worth bothering about? I would... And then she stopped abruptly. Christy had come back, a glass clinking with ice in his hand.

"Oh, I'm sorry! I didn't know..."

"It's quite all right. I am just going back to my seat. I hope we shall meet again soon—Miss Phillida."

The door shut behind him and Christy put the glass down on the little table beside Phillida.

"There," he said, and then, in a raspy voice, "Drink it. You look tired out... you little silly... darling! Don't."

For suddenly she was crying, sobbing her heart out and clinging to him. His arms tightened round her, his lips pressed against her hair, until she lifted her face and their lips met and she stopped crying.

Christy...

"Now," he said quietly, "Have your drink and tell me the news. Is Servat going to give you a chance? He's a wonderful man, you know..."

"A chance?" Phillida drew herself away and stared at Christy with held breath. "You mean... a chance to train as a dancer? But then—everyone thought that I was Petrovna. You didn't?"

"No, I'm afraid I didn't," Christy said with a little smile. "You see when you were travelling in the Calcutta mail train, I was on it, too. I had dinner at a table near to yours!"

"You knew all the time that I was—pretending!" Phillida straightened her slight shoulders. "I'm not going to make all sorts of excuses—I was doing it, suppose Kashmir just went to my head—I felt I had to do something mad and crazy. It was sweet of you to pretend to believe me."

For a moment tears stung her eyes, and then she suddenly turned round, colour rising in her face.

"But—did you know Guy Servat was going to be here to-night, Christy?"

Was that why you asked Lady Bannister to ask me to dance?"

"All you want," Christy said firmly, "is a chance. Anyone can see that you've got the makings of a lovely dancer in you. Servat would see it in half a second, if he had the chance of watching you. The moment I heard he was coming up here on a quick visit—well, it was all very easy. Now you'll be famous in no time."

"Christy!" Phillida came up to him and stood in front of him, looking up into his face with wide, grave eyes. "Just now you—you called me 'darling' and you kissed me. Did it—did it mean anything?"

She saw his face tighten and turn quite pale.

"Phillida... of course it meant that—I love you. But—that doesn't matter now—now that Servat wants to take you up. I'll come and see you dance in London."

He was interrupted by her arms flung suddenly round his neck and her cool face pressed against his.

"Christy! Darling, has any one asked me which I'd rather do? Go and slave to be a stupid dancer on the idiotic London stage—or marry someone that I love and be just an ordinary wife? Because if you simply won't ask me—I'll have to tell you myself."

THE END.

"Hands Across the Table"

A diverting piece of funny business, crammed with lively action, snappy chatter and laughs galore is the romantic comedy, "Hands Across the Table" which will be seen at the Oriental Theatre on Wednesday and Thursday with lovely Carole Lombard and Fred MacMurray in the leading roles of this fun fest. A laugh riot from start to finish, the merry proceedings of "Hands Across the Table" centres around the attempts of a poor but ambitious manufacturer to live up to an agreement that each shall marry money, with love a negligible factor. Many hilarious complications result as the two not out to keep their bargain, until both fall in love, examined by the Company's Surveyors.

Donnelly is also good in a small role.

ALTERS SUMMER
EVENTSLondon, June 1.
Court mourning has altered considerably usual summer events, a programme for the season revealed to-day.
The Royal Garden Party, generally held in July on the Thursday before Goodwood, has been cancelled.
Two afternoon receptions are to be held July 21 and 22 instead of the usual courts.—
United Press.Midshipmen And Cadets*CHANGES IN UNIFORMWith the sanction of the King, the uniform of Paymaster Midshipmen and Paymaster Cadets who enter the Naval Service after September 1 has been brought into line with that of other midshipmen and cadets.
It has been approved that they shall wear the round jacket on occasions when this garment is worn by midshipmen and cadets.
Paymaster Cadets will therefore have a buttonhole of white twist, with a corresponding button, and Paymaster Midshipmen, the traditional white midshipman's patch or "turn back" with notched hole of white twist and button on the collars of their round jackets, under dress coats, or "monkey jackets," and white tunics.In addition, they will have a narrow stripe of white cloth, indicative of the accountant branch, on the cuffs of their round jackets, and monkey jackets, as well as on the shoulder strap of the great coat, watch coat, white tunic and white mess jacket, and will also wear the dark on the same occasions as midshipmen and naval cadets.
Instead of the round jacket, Paymaster Cadets now wear a jacket similar to the naval mess jacket, with the white distinctive stripe on the cuffs, and Paymaster Midshipmen a frock coat and a sword.
The wearing of the white midshipman's patch, which has been about the middle of the eighteenth century, and the dark, are innovations so far as junior officers of the accountant branch are concerned.
The white patch, however, with the distinctive narrow purple stripe on the cuff, has been worn for some years by Midshipmen (E) under training as engineer officers at the Royal Naval Engineering College at Keyham.Mr. Cecil Forster Walsh, the European journalist who was arrested while he was shooting rats from a ricksha in Bugis Street, Singapore, has sailed for Italy to have an audience and interview with Signor Mussolini, the new master of Abyssinia.Mr. Walsh, who has been writing articles for English and South African newspapers during a tour of Malaya, China and Japan, wrote to Mussolini from Singapore asking for the interview on behalf of South African newspapers. Mr.
Walsh told Mussolini that South Africa was very anxious to know all about Italy's policy and future intentions in Africa.Mussolini replied in courteous terms. In the letter, Il Duce said that he would be pleased to explain what Mr. Walsh asked.
The letter from Mussolini was received by Mr. Walsh at the Metropole Hotel not long after he was fined for the rat-shooting incident.SHOTS AT 4 A.M.Mr. Walsh, who came to Singapore from Shanghai, got into a ricksha and the puller took him down Bugis Street.
The puller was startled to hear a loud report just behind him. With his first shot, Mr. Walsh hit a big grey rat in the neck.
He fired another shot and missed.
The next development was the arrival of two Malay policemen.
They arrested Mr. Walsh as he sat in the ricksha with a smoking revolver in his hand.
The shooting took place at 4 a.m.FINED $25Mr. Walsh was charged with having had possession of firearms without a licence and with having discharged firearms. He was fined $100 in default two months' rigorous imprisonment, on the possessionWILL TEACH BOY

BY BRIAN SEGRUE

A GIRL—whose soldier sweetheart she had never seen but whose romance had grown by correspondence—ran grief-stricken to tell his father the news of his death.Miss Ivy Niven, of Luke-street, Shoreditch, E.C., an attractive brunette, aged 21, became acquainted by mail with Alfred Michael Coles, aged 24, who was with the 1st Middlesex Regiment on foreign service.FOUGHT IN FIVE WARS*AUSTRALIAN NONAGENARIAN DIESWilliam K. Bryant who fought in five wars has just died at Ipswich, Queensland, aged 97.He was born in Brisbane in 1839, says Austral News. At the age of 13, he signed on the Victory, which was then a receiving ship under Admiral Wellesley. On the outbreak of the Crimean War, he landed on the Peninsula with the naval brigade. He was present when the first fort on the Black Sea was taken, and he remembered well the bombardment of Sebastopol. At the time he was serving on the Lord Howe, a three-decker with 125 guns.In 1865, Mr. Bryant rejoined the Victory, and in 1867 was sent out on a 52-gun frigate to the Indian Mutiny. He took part in the march to relieve Cawnpore and in the capture of Delhi. He returned to England only to find himself, immediately after, sent out to the Chinese War in which he won the V.C. for sealing the walls of an enemy fort and gaining valuable information. Subsequently he took part in the Boer Wars and in the American Civil War in which he fought with both Federals and Confederates. Afterwards he took up land near Philadelphia, but returned to Queensland in 1882.They planned to set up a home together and he was actually on his way home with the regiment when he was found hanged in a barrack bathroom at Singapore.When Miss Niven read of the tragedy she hurried to see Coles's father.He found that cable had been sent to him at a former address and the neighbours did not know his new address. He returned sadly to his home in Ashford-street, Shoreditch, to tell his wife."I WAS WORRIED" Miss Niven told me that her sweetheart's last letter seemed very happy. "He was looking forward to being home for good later this year—and of meeting me for the first time," she said."Until last January we wrote every three weeks. Then letters stopped. I was worried and wrote and asked him what was wrong, but I got no answer.""Since then I have been hoping and hoping for another letter—perhaps it is now in the post and it may tell me what was wrong."
Coles also stopped writing to his family in January. All his letters home had showed how he was longing to see them again.In one of his more recent letters he wrote:"I must economise now, as the time is getting short and I cannot come home with nothing in my pocket. ... So you have a room waiting for me, eh, mum? You are a one for doing these nice things."
Other references are to his sister's children. "I am longing to see the children again," he wrote. "I am counting the days and even the hours."
As soon as we Three Musketeers mother, father, and son are together let the rest go hang if they want to."charge, and $25, in default three weeks' rigorous imprisonment, on the second charge.
"I thought the big rats in Bugis Street were a good thing to shoot," was the only excuse he offered the court.The magistrate asked Mr. Walsh whether he had enough money to pay.
He replied that he had some in hand and was expecting more from England.
He paid the $25 fine in court, and settled the $100 fine within the required period of one week.LUCKY JOURNALISTIn view of the busy time which Mussolini has and the busier time ahead of him, Mr. Walsh is considered a lucky journalist to have been granted a special interview by Mussolini.Mr. G. Ward Price, of the Daily Mail, which has shown some sympathy to Italy in the war with Abyssinia, is one of the few foreign journalists who have been granted a similar favour recently.Want To Buy An Island?*FIVE FOR SALE
IN OUTER
HEBRIDESAt an upset price of £4,000, five of the most fascinating islands in the Outer Hebrides have come into the market. The islands are Ensay, Lingay, Groay, and the Larger and Lesser Saghays. Ensay is the largest, measuring approximately three miles in length and a mile and a half in width.All these islands are situated between South Harris and North Uist, in the legend-haunted tides-way known as the Sound of Harris.
Their climate is surprisingly mild; and the soil, which is peaty and sandy, is exceedingly fertile.For generations Ensay has remained the property of the Stewarts of Ensay, whose family burying-ground at Lukenyrye, on the mainland of South Harris, lies in one of the most picturesque and secluded parts of all Scotland.
Ensay itself is within a twenty minutes' journey by motor-boat from Obbe, where to this day may be seen the derelict piers and buildings constructed by the late Viscount Lever, and began to develop Obbe—hitherto the most desolate of islands—into an industrious and thriving town.Immediately below Ensay House, whose windows afford one of the loveliest views of the Sound of Harris and of the cliffs of Harris beyond, stretches a fine crescent of sand, from which a stone staircase leads up to the sea-gate, admitting the traveller by sea to the precincts of the house itself.ANCIENT FONTNear at hand stands the ancient Chapel of St. Columba, which was restored about twenty years ago.
Close to the chapel's entrance may be seen a stone basin of great antiquity —probably an ancient baptismal font.
A little ivy scrambles over the chapel wall, and veronica scents the doorway. The chapel is referred to by Milton in his inimitable "Description" (circa 1695), wherein mention is made of the discovery of a grave on the west side of Ensay, in which were found a pair of bones scales and a small hammer, both of which were finely polished.The islands of Groay and Lingay offer fine pasturage. During low tide the latter can be reached dry-shod from the shore of North Uist.
The Saghays group, which includes the islands of Quilam, lies between En-say and the shore of South Harris, quite close to Obbe. No member of this group has been inhabited for a considerable number of years.
According to Martin, already referred to,
"since don't live on this island and when they chance to be carried thither among the Corries, they die quickly after."The sea-ways in and around these islands are rich in Hebridean legend and tradition. They are the habitat of the Clan MacCodrum, the Children of the Seals, and also of the Clan Andy of the Widgeons. The natives of these parts still recount the legends of the Clan Andy that forfeited human form for that of the long-tailed loch or widgion.STARTED 'OXFORD

DOCTOR ATTACKED
ASSAULT ON DR. J. W.
COLBERTTrenton, June 1.
Dr. John William Colbert, who was acquainted on May 26 of charges of attempted murder of his wife by poisoning, was the victim of a mysterious attack in his office last evening.
According to a report made by Dr.
Colbert to the American Consulate this morning, an unknown foreigner entered his office, where he was working, at a late hour. The man wore his hat pulled down over his forehead, and the lower part of his face was covered with a handkerchief.Before Dr. Colbert had time to interrogate the visitor, the latter attempted to knife him through the heart. The doctor managed to ward off the blow, but an instant afterwards was knocked unconscious by a blow from a blunt instrument on the head, and remained senseless for half an hour. Meanwhile the assailant had made his escape.—Reuter.A United Press report adds that when the unknown assassin made the attack on Dr. Colbert he said: "You bloody American! I'll kill you!"
Although he was not seriously injured, Dr. Colbert remained unconscious for several minutes, after which he telephoned to the Police and returned home without assistance. Dr. Colbert was examining his accounts in his office at 9.30 p.m. when entered.Printed and Published for the Proprietors by FRANKLIN P.

DARING PIRACY IN H.K. WATERS

CAPTURE JUNK AT PISTOL POINT

BUT SUSPECTS CAUGHT

A daring piracy, in broad daylight, just outside Lyemun Pass occurred at noon on Sunday when a cargo-boat, bound from Hongkong to Haumun Village, was boarded by four men armed with revolvers and knives and taken to a place unknown to them where they were detained for one day.

Three of the men alleged to have participated in the piracy were recognised at Shaukiwan yesterday afternoon and arrested.

The boat which was used in the piracy has also been located and seized by the Police, who are now pursuing further inquiries in the matter.

Chu Tam-shing, 35, master of the boat, reports that he arrived at Shaukiwan at 10 p.m. on May 28 with a cargo of goods from Haumun Village for the Kwong Yu Hong firm. At 5 a.m. on May 29 he left Shaukiwan with three foks on board and sailed for Haumun Village, taking with him a cargo of 20 tins of kerosene, 10 cases of matches, four boxes of sugar, four yards of cloth, two packets of needles and three bars of soap to the total value of $81.92.

The boat reached Lyemun Pass at noon on the same day. A small junk boat which had been following him for half an hour then came alongside his boat. There were six men on this craft. Four of them, armed with revolvers and knives, boarded his cargo-boat and while one of the armed men stood guard the others tied up the crew with ropes. The boat was then taken to some unknown place and all the cargo was taken away.

Chu Tam-shing and his three foks were allowed to leave at 9 p.m. the same evening in their own boat. They proceeded to Shaukiwan and reported the matter to the Police.

While walking on the praya at Shaukiwan on Monday, the master of the three men whom he recognised as being the pirate boat. He had been arrested.

The boat used by the pirates was later located by the Police but the cargo has not been recovered.

400 DISCHARGED IN RIVER SCHELDT?

London, June 2.

La Santa Maria, which was reported on May 29 to be en route to China with a $20,000 cargo of arms, originally destined for Ethiopia, has arrived in the Thames, free of cargo. She is now moored off Silvertown.

It is reported her cargo of munitions was unloaded into barges in the channel, near Antwerp, and that thereafter the ship sailed for London.

The arms were consigned from Finland, first reports stated, and when it was unable to deliver them to Ethiopia she is said to have made a number of fruitless calls attempting to sell her cargo in various ports. Her cargo was once actually discharged at Tangier, but was later towed aboard.—Reuter.

Premier, M. Leon Blum
Foreign Minister, M. Yves Delbos

Paris, June 1.

Hundreds of police threw a cordon around the Chamber of Deputies when the new Radical Parliament opened its session to-day, without a single member of the Sarraut Cabinet sitting on Government benches.

After hearing M. Antoine Salles, the oldest deputy, stress France's desire for peace, the Chamber named eleven members to devote Tuesday to validating the elections, after which a new Chamber President will be elected.

The President, M. Lebrun, is commissioning Mr. Leon Blum to form a Government.

Seventy-two Communist deputies marched into the Chamber in a body to-day.

M. Blum intends to read his ministerial declaration on June 9 or June 11 and immediately thereafter seek a vote of confidence.—United Press.

WILD WELCOME GIVEN TO QUEEN MARY

New York, June 1.

The city of New York went mad when the Queen Mary docked at 9.03 p.m. (B.S.T.), taking exactly 25 minutes for that delicate operation. There were no mishaps, but there was one anxious moment when a tug rammed her bows against the liner's towering side and nearly capsized.

The Queen Mary left Quarantine at 7.37 p.m. amid a pandemonium of deep-throated and shrill screams from hundreds of craft of all sizes. Her triumphant progress to the $10,000,000 pier built specially for her, was frantically cheered by millions of holiday-makers along the waterfront. Windows, roofs and sky-scrapers were black with people. Union Jacks fluttered from all the highest buildings, and hawkers in the streets did a roaring trade in the same flags, pennants, models of the Queen Mary and even nautical caps.

Twelve aeroplanes dived and dipped dangerously overhead and were frequently hidden from view in the dense smoke belching from the funnels of fifty vessels which raced alongside the Queen Mary.

Customs officials, mindful of the chaos of the Normandie's arrival on her maiden voyage, had 250 inspectors aboard the liner.

Passengers' tips to the stewards on the big British steamer are estimated at $5,000 for the four-day voyage.—Reuter.

ANTI-SANCTIONS FRONT SEEN

Vienna, June 2.

Dr. Kurt Schuschnigg, Chancellor of Austria, whose recent coup d'etat made him the virtual Dictator of the state, is facing prospect of a civil war as a result of his ousting of Prince von Starhemberg from his position as Vice-Chancellor and Commander of the Heimwehr.

Dr. Schuschnigg has started for Venice "for a vacation on the seashore."

However, it is believed the Chancellor will seize this opportunity to confer with Signor Benito Mussolini, and to seek a formula for Austro-German peace, thus enabling an anti-French and anti-Soviet front in the event of Paris and Moscow continuing to press sanctions against Italy.

Many believe that Signor Mussolini will support Dr. Schuschnigg, in spite of the fact that Prince von Starhemberg is commonly considered the Italian Dictator's protegee.

Dr. Schuschnigg's movements appear to brighten the prospect of an Austro-German accord.—United Press.

BUT FAILS TO BEAT NORMANDIE'S TIME

London, June 1.

The determination of the Cunard-White-Star Line and the Queen Mary's Commodore, Sir Edgar Britten, to make no attempt upon the Atlantic record on the maiden voyage which would not be consistent with due care and respect for the liner's new machinery during running-in period, was well-known. Nevertheless, as news came through of the great ship's magnificent progress for the first three days of the voyage a possibility she would beat the record without special effort began to be canvassed.

This idea was finally abandoned yesterday, however, when it was learned the Queen Mary had had to reduce speed for several hours on Sunday owing to fog, and in all the circumstances satisfaction is very generally expressed at her performance on her first Atlantic crossing, which is held to have fully justified the high hopes which her designers, builders, owners and, indeed, the whole nation, had set upon her.

The Queen Mary twice broke the record for a day's run. Between noon on Thursday and noon on Friday she covered 747 miles at an average of 29.88 knots, and on the next twenty-five hours run she did 766 miles, at an average of 30.64 knots.

For the next whole day's run her mileage dropped owing to fog to 678 miles at 27.12 knots.

On the last stage of her voyage, until she reached Ambrose Light-house, she covered 64 miles at 29.07 knots. When still some miles from Ambrose Light she slowed down to half speed, disappointing passengers who had expected a last spurt.

New York messages describe the welcome which hundreds of thousands gave to the new liner on her arrival. Many thousands standing on the roofs of motors, overlooking entrance to the Narrows, watched the last stage of the historic maiden trip. Aeroplanes hovered overhead. Crowds massed by Battery Point cheered lustily as the Queen Mary passed into the Hudson River for docking at her 50th Street berth.

NORMANDIE'S SPEED

The French liner Normandie, which arrived at Le Havre shortly after midday from New York, reached a speed of 32 knots on the last lap of her voyage, according to a Paris message.

This constitutes a new record for the vessel, her previous fastest speed being 31.55 knots.—British Wireless.

Rome, June 1.

All the grain grown in or imported into Italy will be purchased in bulk by the state under a decree approved to-day by the Cabinet.

The Government's object is to stabilise the price in the interests both of producers and consumers.

Grain required by producers for their own consumption and seed will not be purchased by the Government.

The purchase of the grain will be entrusted to semi-state financial institutions, which are already authorised to grant credits to farmers.—Reuter Special.

COOL HOLIDAY WEATHER

London, June 1.

Cool, overcast weather during the Whitstide holiday has resulted in crowds showing a preference for indoor places of entertainment, and museums, theatres and cinemas have had large attendances.

Many outdoor events, however, have drawn spectators in great numbers, as well, and bathing, walking and camping have been popular. The roads have been somewhat less crowded than was anticipated, and it is hoped the result will be seen in fewer accidents than in previous years.—British Wireless.

The disturbances throughout the length and breadth of Palestine have not abated during the past few days.

A bomb exploded on the railway which links Palestine with Egypt, near Gaza.

Bombing and sniping have been reported from other parts of the country.

Meanwhile, it is stated that further troops are being despatched to Palestine from Egypt.—Reuter.

Public uneasiness over events in North China has been allayed as a result of a reassuring statement issued by the Mayor of Peiping, Mr. Chin Teh-shun. Other officials have also issued similar statements.

The Hoped-Charhar Political Council announces its intention of assuming full responsibility for peace and order in those two provinces, thereby disposing of the rumour of a possible abrogation of authority.

Chinese and Japanese officials continue to pursue their separate investigations of the railway explosion which partially wrecked a Japanese military train.

However, the general situation in the North remains unchanged.—Reuter.

Railroad passenger fares throughout the nation fell to the pre-war level of 2 cents per mile for coaches and 3 cents for Pullmans, eliminating the 50 per cent. Pullman surcharge, as ordered by the Interstate Commerce Commission to become effective to-day.

However the situation, as it is affecting the Eastern carriers, is becoming chaotic, with 23 railroads suing in the Federal Court of New York seeking to have the order set aside.

In the meantime, the bus companies have cut their rates to 1 1/4 cents per mile.—United Press.

Rome, June 1.

At a meeting of the Italian Cabinet this morning the new constitution of the territory to be known as Italian East Africa, which comprises Ethiopia, Eritrea and Italian Somaliland, was approved.

The constitution comes into force immediately and places the huge area under a Viceroy, who will be governor-general, with five governors. The Viceroy will be assisted by a governing Council, including the highest officials of the territory, and a General Consultative Council, including six Italian citizens, not natives, chosen by the Viceroy, and six native notables.

The Governorships are Eritrea, with the capital at Asmara; Amhara, with its capital at Gondar; Galla and Sidamo, with Jimma as their capital; Harrar, capital Harrar; and Somaliland, with the present capital, Mogadiscio.

Addis Ababa will be the capital of Italian East Africa, and will have a special administration, with its own Governor.

The constitution recognises the Coptic Church and makes the teaching of Arabic in Mohammedan territory compulsory.—Reuter.

INVENTION THAT MAY END PERIL TO SUNKEN SUBMARINES

THERE are shortly to be placed in the hands of the Admiralty details of an invention that claims to do away with many of the perils of submarine navigation. Mr. W. Lawlor, of York-st., Dublin, is the inventor, and his device is described as a "means for locating sunken submarines and supplying requisites to the crews thereof."

Briefly, it will enable a sunken submarine to be located easily and to be supplied with fresh air and food until the vessel can be raised.

Hundreds of lives have been lost in submarine disasters, the main reason being the difficulty in locating the sunken vessels. In some cases days have elapsed before they have been found.

When the M.2 went down in West Bay, off Portland in 1932, 60 lives were lost. M.2 was not located for days despite the most intensive search that has ever been known. It was not until a year later that she was brought to the surface.

Probably if she had been fitted with this new invention, the crew would be alive to-day.

HOW IT WORKS

An expert told how the device will work.

"Directly the crew know they are trapped, they release a plug which sends a float attached to hundreds of feet of line rushing to the surface," he said.

"Hours—even days—will be saved by rescue vessels, for they will immediately see the float—it can be illuminated by night—and they will send down a diver.

"He will descend to the seabed with a pipe two or three inches in diameter which he will fit into a special socket in the submerged vessel.

"A tap on the side of the submarine will act as a warning to the crew to remove a plug, and the pipe will supply the trapped men with air. No longer will they die a lingering and painful death from asphyxiation or lack of food.

"Water, hot soup, and even food of small bulk will be sent down to the men.

"If there is a rough sea there will be no need to attempt to raise the sunken vessel until weather conditions are favourable.

"The men will be able to live fairly comfortably until they are rescued.

"We hope that the invention, which costs little, will be adopted by the Admiralty."

Another Baby For Marathon

PROUDLY exhibiting ten birth certificates registered since Mr. Charles Vance Millar died nearly 10 years ago bequeathing £100,000 to the Toronto mother bearing the largest number of children in that time, Mrs. Arthur Hollis Timleck, one of the leading entrants of the "Baby Marathon" declared herself confident that she would be the winner.

Mr. Timleck's tenth baby girl weighing 4lb. 3oz., was born a week ago. It's her last, she declared, adding "although I am sure I shall win the prize it will not make me the least bit happy unless I can share the fortune with several other mothers in the race.

"There is enough money for all, and too much for a single family."

Mrs. Kenny, another contestant claims 12 children born in ten years but two were not registered, and the latest was still-born.

"Let anyone in Toronto show more birth certificates than I have," challenged Mrs. Timleck, whose new baby fast asleep, happy, and healthy, lay in a clothes-basket before the open fire.

"I am going to name her Blanche Catherine Margaret. I want Blanche

Paris, May 20.

A man made an application for divorce in the Paris courts to-day because, he claimed, his wife consulted clairvoyants, palmists, and crystal-gazers to such an extent that all her house-keeping money was spent on "looking into the future."

Counsel for the husband said the wife spent anything from 1s. to 25 every time she was "shown the future." She not only consulted spiritualists but also relied on fortune-telling by cards, by coffee-cup dregs, and by the crystal.

"The husband will tell you," continued counsel, "that if he happened to mention at the breakfast table that he thought the new Government now being elected his wife would hurry off to a fortune-teller that same day and greet him in the evening with:

LED TO QUARRELS

"Again, the husband was in the habit of making small investments on the Stock Exchange. If the wife found out, she would make his life unbearable by warning him against certain investments.

"The crowning annoyance came when the wife began to take a violent objection to certain friends of the husband, whose names she said, she had been warned that some 'dark man' or 'tall, handsome blond man' would ruin their happiness.

"Naturally this led to quarrels, and would be a Left Government, particularly when the wife alleged that certain of the fortune-tellers had made references to 'other women'."

UNDERMINED HEALTH

"My client was prepared to meet the enormous expense of this fortune-telling craze for a time. But he also found that the effects of the forecasts were so depressing that they began to undermine his wife's health, making her in a perpetual state of excitement and nervousness.

"For this reason, the husband feels that he can not continue to live happily with her. She lives continuously in the future."

The case, which came before the Tribunal of the Seine, was adjourned.

to be one of her names because of the kindness of Mrs. Blanche Schneider, neighbour who helps me with my household duties daily. Catherine is our nurse, and Margaret is the name of our woman doctor."

Baby Blanche is Mrs. Timleck's 17th child in 18 years.

Engaged Couple's Dilemma

Paris, May 24.

MADELEINE AIMEE, a pretty, eighteen-year-old Paris typist, is in love and wants to marry.

But there is a great obstacle in the way. Three days ago she and her prospective bridegroom, bank clerk Anatole Cibouille, called at the town hall of the Sixth Paris district, where Madeleine was born, to take necessary steps.

The official looked at the register.

"I am sorry," he said to Madeleine, "but I cannot marry you to any man."

He held up the register. It said clearly, "Madeleine Aimee. Male sex."

"But I swear I am a girl," cried Madeleine.

To-day the young couple sought the help of a famous lawyer, Mr. Gistucci, who is to do his best to obtain a court decision establishing that Mlle. Aimee is a girl.

EXPERTS DENY CHARGES

AN extraordinary criticism of the liner Queen Mary, in which the ship is described as being old-fashioned in design, too slow, and unsuitably engined has just been made in a scientific paper called Armchair Science.

The attack is made by Professor A. M. Low, the noted writer on scientific matters.

Already his opinions have aroused a storm of controversy. Leading men in the engineering and shipping world heatedly refute Professor Low's statements.

Professor Low's arguments are that:

Her gangways and masts are reminiscent of the oldest sailing ships;

She should have had internal combustion engines instead of turbines;

She should have had a speed of 50 or 60 m.p.h.

When these views were placed before Cunard-White Star officials they described the criticisms as "ridiculous."

The head of a well-known firm of marine engineers said the attack was based on misconceptions.

LAST WORD IN STILL

"These experts, after months of consideration, came to the conclusion that turbine engines were the only practicable method of propulsion for the liner."

"That makes funnels a necessity, otherwise passengers and crew would be asphyxiated by fumes."

In Professor Low's motion picture the vessel would be entered from the stern. Trains would run into this along a specially constructed road, so that passengers could drive to cabins or move along travelling stairways as if ashore.

NO REST FROM CAMERAMEN

Fish Fight Mosquitoes

FREEING COLONY OF MALARIA

A little fish, called Gambusia affinis, is helping to free Papua, which is governed from Australia, from the malaria mosquito, says Austral News.

According to the government medical officer's report, the fish were introduced into Papua from New Guinea, in 1933, and where they had been placed, they had eliminated the mosquito larvae. Some were placed in a lagoon, and a big flood carried them to neighbouring lagoons. In five months all the lagoons were swarming with the fish and the mosquito had been entirely eliminated. One lagoon of six acres, which teemed with the larvae had been cleared in three months, and the fish had bred to countless millions.

LOVE PUTS DON JUAN IN JAIL AGAIN

Warsaw, May 28.

STANISLAV SVIETCHOVSKI, Communist leader, famous as the "Don Juan of Warsaw," was jailed again here to-day—but not for a political crime.

Some months ago Stanislaw was serving a short term in a prison. He met a fellow Communist, Alfred Rudnitski, who praised the wife who was waiting for his release. Stanislaw was out first, went to see Anna Rudnitski, fell in love with her. Anna forgot her husband.

To-day the husband was released, found Stanislaw at his home. Rudnitski slashed at Stanislaw with a knife.

Stanislaw shot and slightly wounded Rudnitski. Anna called the police and gave up her lover to them. Tonight he is in prison. She is nursing her wounded husband.

Birthday Honours Forecast

RAMSAY LIKELY TO BE O.M.

THE FIRST BIRTHDAY HONOURS LIST OF KING EDWARD VIII IS NOW BEING DRAWN UP.

The list will be comparatively short, as the King is likely to reserve the majority of the honours he wishes to bestow for his Coronation List next year.

It is understood, however, that His Majesty will probably confer the Order of Merit on Mr. Ramsay MacDonald—one of the highest honours in the gift of the Sovereign.

Both Mr. R. B. Bennett, former Canadian Premier, and Mr. S. M. Bruce, of Australia, are likely to be raised to the peerage in recognition of their great services to the Empire.

Sir Godfrey Collins, Secretary for Scotland, is expected to become a peer.

Mr. Hore-Belisha may be knighted as a reward for his work as Minister of Transport, while Dr. E. L. Burchin, Parliamentary Secretary to the Board of Trade, and Captain H. Margesson, the Chief Government Whip, are also being mentioned as likely new knights.

Work at 138 Degs. Too Much for Her

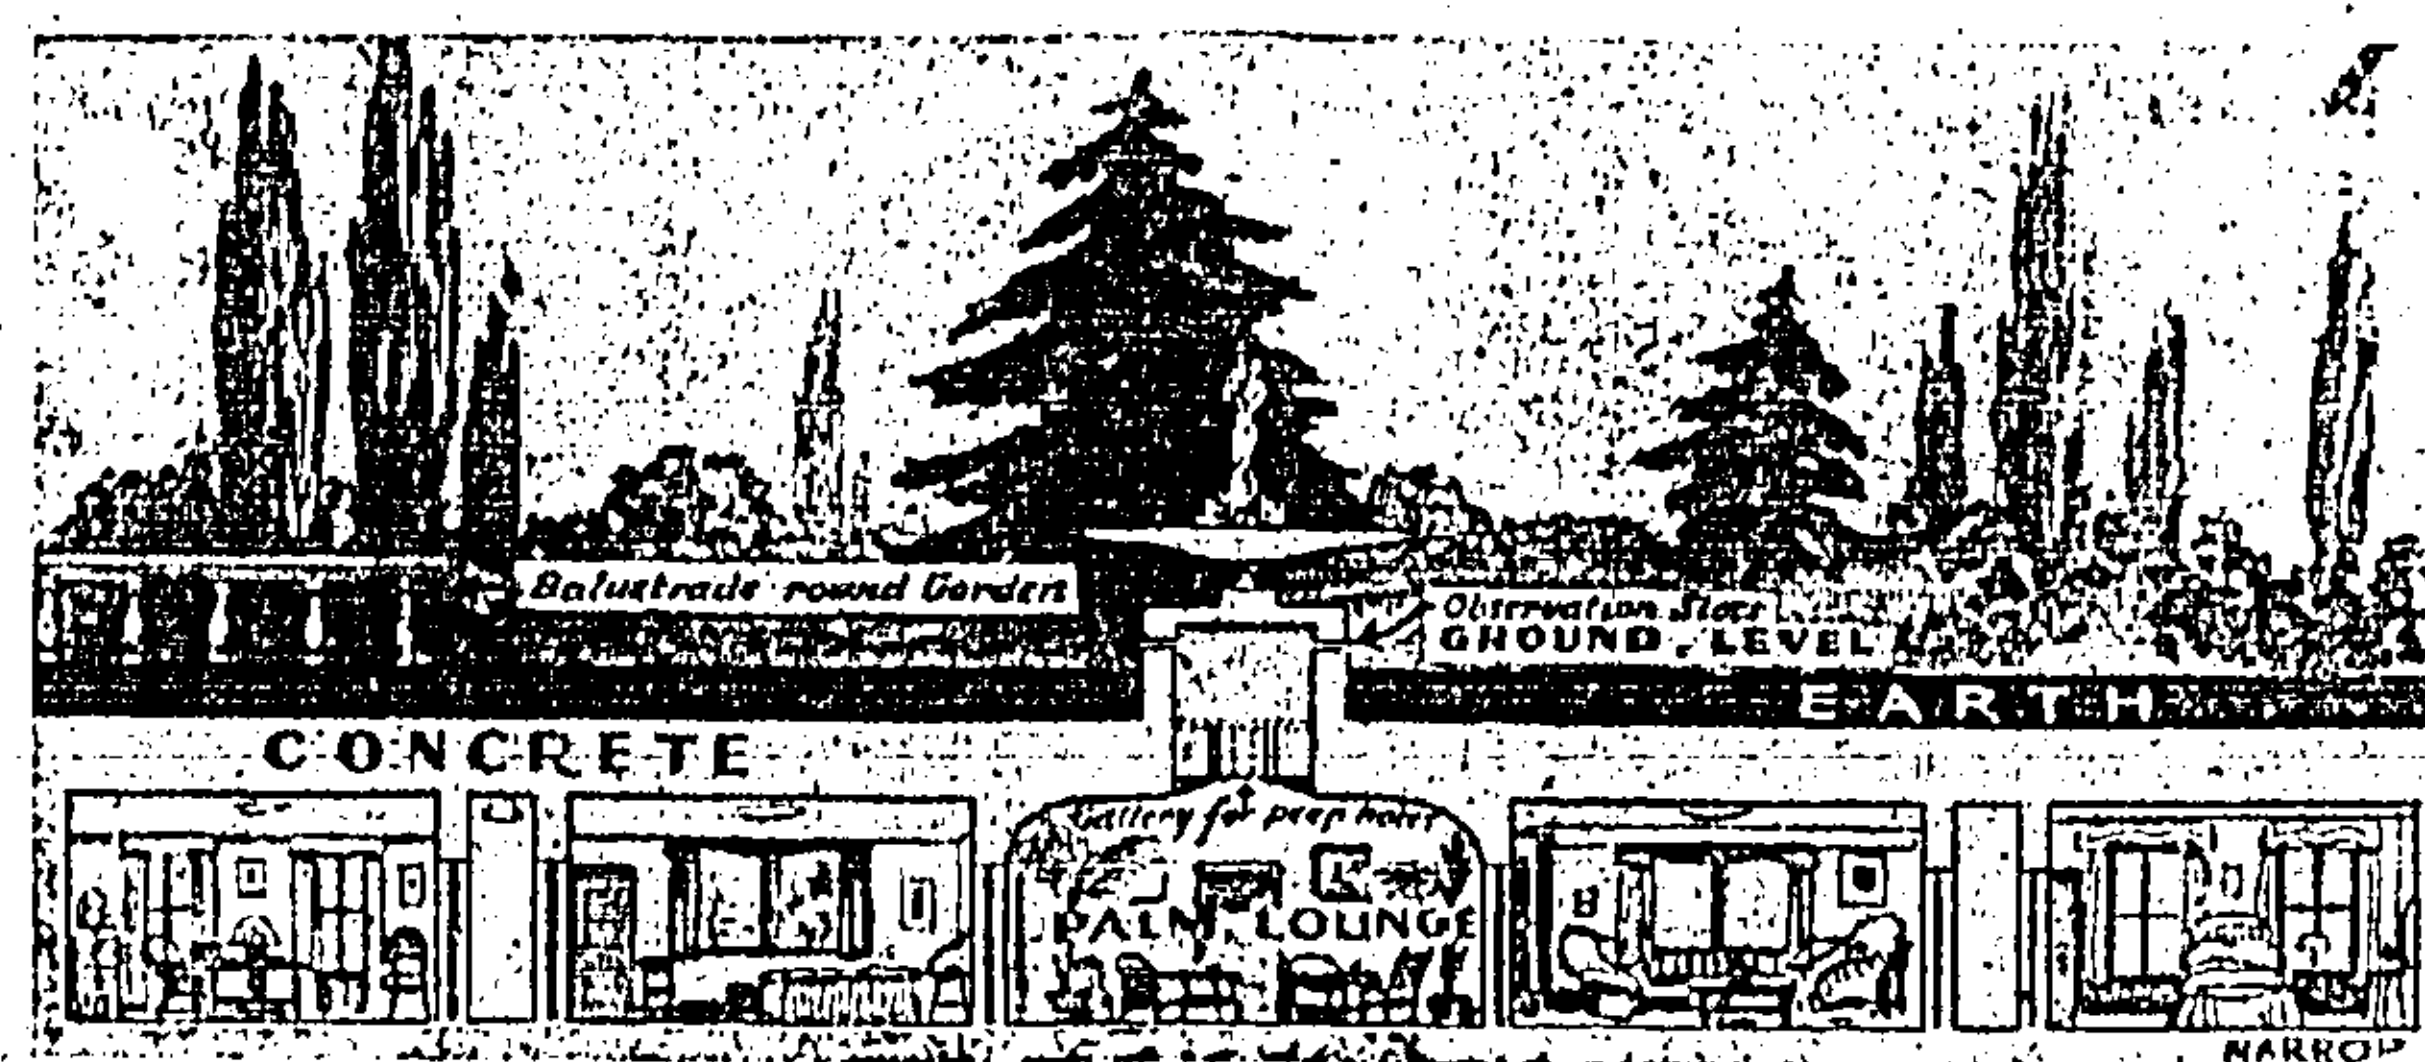

New York, May 28.

Arizona is too hot to hold Marlene Dietrich just now.

PRODUCTION of the new colour film "Garden of Allah"—in which the glamorous German star is appearing in place of Miss Merle Oberon—is being held up because of it.

Miss Dietrich was working yesterday in the desert, where some of the chief scenes are being shot, when she collapsed. The thermometer showed 138 degrees.

She was unconscious for five minutes.

The bombproof and gasproof underground home which is to be built at a cost of £30,000 for an unnamed millionaire—an artist's sketch from information supplied by the architect.

UNDER GROUND FLATS

BOMBPROOF HOMES FOR ALL

FAMILY DUG-OUTS (ALL CON., H. & C.) FOR £200?

BOMB-PROOF and gas-proof underground houses for all, costing from £200 upwards.

That is the aim of investigations being carried out by Mr. Alan Daly, an Elstree architect, who announces that he has been commissioned to build a £30,000 underground mansion beneath a Hertfordshire meadow for a millionaire.

Mr. Daly will not reveal the name of his mystery millionaire who is going to earth, but he says the house is to have over 20 rooms—four reception rooms, four bedrooms, eight or nine bedrooms, and servants' quarters.

It will be 12ft. below the surface and will have a 4ft. thick concrete roof.

PERISCOPE VIEWS

There will be air conditioning, and artificial sunshine will stream through artificial windows which will look out on scenic landscapes. A different landscape for each season of the year will move into position at the touch of a switch.

The house is to be approached by tunnels leading from the nearest road. On the surface over the house will be a garden with trees, lawns and tennis courts.

An ornamental fountain is to camouflage a periscope.

HEALTHY, TOO

"I am now going thoroughly into the question of costs of underground building," Mr. Daly said.

With mass production methods there is no reason why houses should not be built under the ground to be completely bombproof at 50 per cent. above the normal cost, and I hope it will be possible to build single bombproof rooms for the ordinary householder at about £200 each.

"With air conditioning, ultra-violet ray sunshine, and proper damp-proofing, the underground house would be just as healthy as an ordinary country house."

CLIPPER BUILDER SAYS HUGE PLANES WILL SOON GIRDLE EARTH

New York, June 1.

With aviation now prepared to establish regular operations over the seven seas, it will be possible within a few years "to reach any point on earth within two or three days of comfortable travel aboard large passenger airliners which will compare favourably in every respect with medium-sized steamships," according to Igor I. Sikorsky, internationally-known designer and builder of aircraft.

"The fact that we are so close to this accomplishment is not the result of any particular development or invention," Mr. Sikorsky said in an address before the New York Museum of Science and Industry here last night.

"It is the consequence of a series of accomplishments and developments which cover various phases of aircraft design, construction, engines, accessories and methods of operation. In particular, the development of radio and navigation, gradual refinement of engines, increase in take-off power and the controllable propeller greatly contribute to the fact that routine operation with comfort and payload is now possible over such distances which a few years ago could be crossed only at the cost of great effort and all the hazards of a stunt flight."

Mr. Sikorsky said his company had done a great deal of engineering research and that it was prepared to produce flying craft of from 40 to 75 tons "which would be fully suitable for transoceanic service."

COMFORTABLE AS STEAMER

"We believed it must be a flying boat with four to six engines, probably twin decks, with a reasonable speed of from 160 to 180 miles an hour. The ship would have excellent living quarters fully comparable to the accommodations aboard a small steamship, comfortable staterooms that would have nice sleeping accommodations, a large dining room which would be used for meals, and also a lounge or dancing salon during the evening."

"The huge wings would include storage for fuel, various auxiliary mechanisms, extra luggage space and corridors through which the mechanics could pass while in flight, in order to inspect and maintain the power plant and various other mechanisms. "Within a few years we will see transoceanic air liners similar to the one described cross oceans and bring one to the remote points of the earth within two or three days. Considerable traffic exists and still more will be created as soon as this phase of transportation becomes available."

Midshipmen And Cadets

CHANGES IN UNIFORM

With the sanction of the King, the uniform of Paymaster Midshipmen and Paymaster Cadets who enter the Naval Service after September 1 has been brought into line with that of other midshipmen and cadets. It has been approved that they shall wear the round jacket on occasions when this garment is worn by midshipmen and cadets. Paymaster Cadets will therefore have a buttonhole of white twist, with a corresponding button, and Paymaster Midshipmen, the traditional white midshipman's patch or "turn back" with notched hole of white twist and button on the collar of their round jackets, undress coats, or "monkey jackets," and white tunics.

In addition, they will have a narrow stripe of white cloth, indicative of the accountant branch, on the cuffs of their round jackets and on the middle of the great coat, watch coat, white tunic and white mess jacket, and will also wear the disk on the same occasions as midshipmen and naval cadets. Instead of the round jacket, Paymaster Cadets now wear a jacket similar to the naval mess jacket, with the white distinctive stripe on the cuffs, and Paymaster Midshipmen a frock coat and a sword. The wearing of the white midshipman's patch, which dates from about the middle of the eighteenth century, and the disk, are innovations so far as junior officers of the accountant branch are concerned. The white patch, however, with the distinctive narrow purple stripe on the cuff, has been worn for some years by Midshipmen (E) under training as executive officers at the Royal Naval Engineering College at Keyham.

MUSSOLINI WRITES HIM A PERSONAL LETTER

Mr. Cecil Forster Walsh, the European journalist who was arrested while he was shooting rats from a ricksha in Bugis Street, Singapore, has sailed for Italy to have an audience and interview with Signor Mussolini, the new master of Abyssinia.

Mr. Walsh, who has been writing articles for English and South African newspapers during a tour of Malaya, China and Japan, wrote to Mussolini from Singapore asking for the interview on behalf of South African newspapers. Mr. Walsh told Mussolini that South Africa was very anxious to know all about Italy's policy and future intentions in Africa.

Mussolini replied in content terms. In the letter, Il Duce said that he would be pleased to explain what Mr. Walsh asked.

The letter from Mussolini was received by Mr. Walsh at the Metropole Hotel not long after he was fined for the rat-shooting incident.

SHOTS AT 4 A.M.

Mr. Walsh, who came to Singapore from Shanghai, got into a ricksha and the puller took him down Bugis Street. The puller was started to hear a loud report just behind him. With his first shot, Mr. Walsh hit a big grey rat in the neck.

He fired another shot and missed. The next development was the arrival of two Malay policemen.

They arrested Mr. Walsh as he sat in the ricksha with a smoking revolver in his hand.

FINED 125

Mr. Walsh was charged with having had possession of firearms without a licence and with having discharged firearms. He was fined $100, in default two months' rigorous imprisonment, on the possession.

WILL TEACH BOY

KING BY FILMS

Films are to form part of the education of 12-year-old King Peter of Yugoslavia, and an English woman, Miss Margery Lockett, has been appointed to select them.

Within three weeks she will leave London for Belgrade, to stay as the Boy King's guest, at his palace.

She will prepare a list of films in consultation with her host's tutor.

All of them will be British productions, with commentaries in English. King Peter will have no difficulty in following them, as he speaks the language fluently.

charge, and $25, in default three weeks' rigorous imprisonment, on the second charge.

It thought the big rats in Bugis Street were a good thing to shoot, was the only excuse he offered the court.

The magistrate asked Mr. Walsh whether he had enough money to pay. He replied that he had some in hand and was expecting more from England.

He paid the $25 fine in court, and settled the $100 fine within the required period of one week.

LUCKY JOURNALIST

In view of the busy time which Mussolini and the busy time ahead of him, Mr. Walsh is considered a lucky journalist to have been granted a special interview by Mussolini.

Mr. G. Ward Price, of the Daily Mail, which has shown some sympathy to Italy in the war with Abyssinia, is one of the few foreign journalists who has been granted a similar favour recently.

Want To Buy An Island?

FIVE FOR SALE

HEBRIDES

At an upset price of £4,000, five of the most fascinating Islands in the Outer Hebrides have come into the market. The Islands are—Ensay, Lingay, Groay, and the Larger and Lesser Saghay. Ensay is the largest, measuring approximately three miles in length and a mile and a half in width.

All these Islands are situated between South Harris and North Uist, in the legend-haunted tideway known as the Sound of Harris. Their climate is surprisingly mild; and the soil, which is peaty and sandy, is exceedingly fertile.

For generations Ensay has remained the property of the Stewarts of Ensay, whose family burying-ground at Luskentyre, on the mainland of South Harris, lies in one of the most picturesque and secluded parts of all Scotland.

Ensay itself is within a twenty minutes' journey by motor-boat from Obbe, where to this day may be seen the delicate pier and buildings constructed by the late Viscount Leveson-Gower when he transferred his interests from Lewis to South Harris, and began to develop Obbe—hitherto the merest clachan—into an industrial and thriving township.

Immediately below Ensay, whose windows afford one of the loveliest views of the Sound of Harris and of the elfin hills of Harris beyond, stretches a fine crescent of sand, from which a stone staircase leads up to the sea-gate, admitting the traveller by sea to the precincts of the house itself.

ANCIENT FONT

Near at hand stands the ancient Chapel of St. Columba, which was restored about twenty years ago. Close to the chapel's entrance may be seen a stone basin of great antiquity—probably an ancient baptismal font. A little way scrambles over the chapel wall, and veronica scents the doorway.

The chapel is referred to by Martin Martin in his "Description" (circa 1695), wherein mention is made of the discovery of a grave on the west side of Ensay, in which were found a pair of brass scales and a small hammer, both of which were finely polished.

The Islands of Groay and Lingay offer fine pasturage. During low tide the latter can be reached dry-shod from the shore of North Uist.

The Saghay group, which includes the islet of Quindan, lies between Ensay and the shore of South Harris, quite close to Obbe. No member of this group has been inhabited for a considerable number of years.

According to Martin, already referred to, "nice don't live on this island and when they chance to be carried thither among the Corne, they die quickly after."

The sea-ways in and around these Islands are rich in Hebridean legend and tradition. They are the habitat of the Clan MacCormac, the Children of the Seal, and also of the Clan Andy of the Widgeons. The natives of these parts still recount the legends of the Seal-folk; and of the section of the Clan Andy that confided human form for that of the longtailed Jack or widgeon.

STARTED 'OXFORD BAGS'

SCHOLAR

Originator of "Oxford Bags" Dr. Thomas Ethelbert Bagge, the Greek scholar, died recently in a nursing home at Godalming, Surrey. He was 80.

He was a well-known "character" and, regardless of dress conventions, wore incredibly baggy trousers of amazing cut for half a century. With them he had a black jacket and bowler hat.

A "Touch Of The Sun"

Many people at this time of year get what is commonly known as a "touch of the sun", the outstanding feature of which is a blinding, devastating headache.

Whilst it is true that heat and glare are responsible in some considerable degree for these hot weather headaches, the fact that they do not attack everybody proves that the general condition of the health also has much to do with them; thin blood, faulty digestion and weak, ill-nourished nerves are predisposing causes.

So sufferers from summer headaches should give immediate thought to improving the condition of the blood, for in this way they will also strengthen their digestive processes and revitalize every fibre and nerve of the system.

One of the most important constituents of good, healthy blood is iron. Iron means health and vitality too. Modern foods often do not contain enough of this precious mineral, hence the need for an iron tonic such as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

This remedy supplies iron in a form which your system readily and speedily assimilates. As your blood becomes enriched with this iron, your nerves and whole body are strengthened, headaches and other health troubles vanish, and you soon again enjoy abundant energy and robust health.

If you are feeling run-down, or are suffering from any of the consequences of impoverished blood, indigestion, nervous disorders, headaches, general debility, rheumatism, scurvy, women's ailments, do not delay, but begin a course of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to-day, the "iron tonic" which has stood the test of time! Sold by chemists everywhere.

qualifying to meet Australia in the Inter-Zone contest this year. France is Germany's only serious opposition in the European Zone, and the odds will be greatly in favour of Germany should these countries meet.

It was to Germany that Australia lost last year in the final of the European Zone, the Germans going on to lose gallantly to the Americans in the Inter-Zone final.

CRAWFORD RECKLESS

A later message from Reuter, describing matches at Germantown says that Crawford volleyed recklessly yet with precision. His success was due to forcefulness, as he took risks despite the importance of the occasion.

Nevertheless Allison was not up to championship form. Quist often noted easy shots against Budge, and lacked the American's astonishing stamina and speed.

TUESDAY, JUNE 2, 1936,

The question whether effective means can be taken against air raids is much in the public eye at present. The view generally held is that in any future war on a large scale big cities would be almost completely at the mercy of air raiders. Past experience, however, has shown that the advent of new weapons of war has almost invariably been followed by new and more effective methods of defence. In coping with increased dangers from the air there will probably be no exception to the rule. Defence experts have not been idle in latter years; the result is that vast improvements have been made in anti-aircraft guns, not only in the height to which they can fire, and the rate of firing, but also in the methods and undoubtedly aggravated by the Hitler regime in Germany. In the establishment of this National Home for the Jews exorbitant sums have been paid by Jews to Arab landlords which was worthless price to the former's advent. Fortunately have been made in illicit commission, but, as there are little or no morals in regard to such matters in the country, a man who has failed to enrich himself by such means is regarded as being a fool.

There is no income tax. The Government held an inquiry as to whether one should be introduced. The Arab had the impudence to assert that the Jew would keep duplicate books, while the Jew replied that the Arab would keep books at all. The Arab hates British for fostering Jewish migration, and the Jew in retaliation carries on a campaign against the Arab.

The advent of civilisation not impressed the better classes Arab. He looks upon the Jew his natural enemy, and is convinced that one day he will a rude awakening, to find the of his birth finally and total-the hands of the invader.

The fellahin, or peasant, however, cares little, and minding his own business accordingly. The Jews, again, Jews in Egypt seem to be unmindful of their co-religionists in Palestine, owing, I presume, to their minority and avoidance of politics. They are never molested by the Egyptians.

To-day the Jews in Palestine are a very mixed crowd indeed, and the strength of the Arabs lies in the fact that they are one. They speak the same language and the religion is shared between Moslem and Christian Faith, the majority being in the former favour, but they are united in their antipathy to the Jew.

The Arab is docile and chaste and by kindness can be easily won. On the other hand, many of the Jews come from Russia, Poland, Rumania, and being so accustomed to generations of oppression automatically react to truth when they land in Palestine and realise that they are now free.

It is true that, since the Jewish regime, the Jew has brought the time out of a slough of despondency and desolation to animation and progress; how long this trend will last is a thing of doubtful thought. Is the epoch ephemeral or macrobiotic? Only arable land is along the coast and in the plains of Eretz Israel where cultivation by the Jew tense, while the hills of Judaea and Galilee are useless. Attempts have been made to find water in the Beer-Sheba region, in the hope of extending Jewish enterprise; but only brackish dribbles have been discovered.

The major industry and export trade of the country is citrus. Everyone who had money to spend or burn purchased virgin soil or ready-made groves, all at fancy and ridiculous prices. Now, although the peak of production is far away ahead, the home markets have reached saturation point. Spain, and other countries compete with Palestine, and Palestine, being mandated territory, does not share with our Colonies a reduction in Customs tariffs.

Imports far transcend exports in fact, there is no comparison. Therefore, economically, the situation is false and unsound. Recently the Jews sought to join hands with the Arab in protesting to the Government over the unhealthy situation of the citrus industry. The Arab merely turned a deaf ear, because he welcomed any disadvantage the Jew could be placed in. In other words, the Arab landlord has made his pile out of the Jew, and now wishes him to Hades. He could now efface the Jew's name from more scores

The hatred of the Palestine Arab for the Jew is inherent and will never be eradicated in spite of the blandishments of successful Colonial Secretaries. We have Russian v. Pole, Turk v. Armenian, South Irish v. British, German v. French, and, finally, a great section of the world against the Jew.

The British Government want to give Palestine a Legislative Council. The Jew objects, as he rightly avers that the Arab would have preponderance of votes; so the plan is status quo ante. The Arab of contiguous countries want federation among themselves, so they go to that of Iraq. If this happens, then good-bye to the Arab for the Arab will become a mount.

the Jew wants to live in peace, but this can never be. The Arab feels it his right, will always be the aggressor. The trouble proceeding will not end; if it does it will only be a lull in the trouble, events, and no proclamation of Government condemning disturbance, and expressing determination to maintain order, will have the slightest effect. Such proclamations have always been issued when the damage was done, but they have as much effect as the

The maintenance of public order in Palestine is a serious business. During the time that I was of the Police at Tel-Aviv and I personally never experienced incivility from either Jew or Arab. But that did not make my men's lot a happy one.

The most ardent supporters of the Soviet regime in Russia, outside that country, know little about it and less about its trends. They speak of it as Communism and Red Rule, but the social and economic policies in Russia are widely incompatible with Communism. What the Communists want is a classless land. What is happening in Russia is the growth of a new aristocracy. It is the new intelligentsia there that is forming a separate social stratum. One writer who has travelled through the sands of miles through the Soviet Republics, says that Russia is succumbing to "capitalist vulgarity" unredeemed by "proletarian manliness," and "the proletarian initiating itself with artless condescension into the forgotten graces of the bourgeoisie, is—for the moment—faintly and pathetically reminiscent of a savage in a to-

The culture of Russia is the same as the so-called culture in any other land. The Government encourages jazz, gives free advice about painting, waves, and puts a premium on sport. The culture that is being inculcated, is anything but everything. It may be poetry, plunk-punk, arithmetic or the rumormongers. This culture is only for the urban dwellers; the peasants have to be satisfied with bread. As for the Red Army, it has been introduced to polo, among other of the great life.

The proletarian, the class that remains defunct, has all initiative and efficiency strangled by red tape. There is what the correspondents quoted describes as "a network of check and counter-check that swallows the recesses of everyday life and devastates the national energy." The theoretical efficiency supposed to be applied to the collective life brings in its wake ignorant managers, poor crops and wretched stock. In effect, the Soviet Union is a paradise for the few and a prison for all. In commenting on conditions there, The London Times says:

"No man is free, and only dumb are safe. Your friend encouraged to store up merit for himself by quoting an indiscretion to the State I. Your child may win a decoration sending you to exile by revealing the fact that you habitually..."

the measures being devised to offset new dangers from the Others are being kept secret. It is, at any rate, reassuring to feel that air-raiders are unlikely to have things all their own way should a major attack again break out.

IN VIEW of the serious disturbances between Jews and Arabs in Palestine, and having regard to the outbreaks there in 1922, 1929, and 1932, it is just as well to recall the events which have in a large measure produced them. It is all the more necessary to consider the matter because, bearing in mind the nature of the Arab and the nature of the Jew, and weighing the reasons which have brought them to the present conflict, it is difficult to believe that the conflict can ever end. A thing is as it cannot.

On November 2, 1917 (we took Jerusalem on December 9 following), the Foreign Secretary, the Earl of Balfour (then Mr. Balfour) issued his famous Declaration to the effect that his Majesty's Government viewed with favour the establishment in Palestine of a National Home for the Jews, it being clearly defined that it was in no way to prejudice the civil or non-Jewish rights of communities in Palestine.

To-day Lord Balfour's name is still hallowed by the Jew and vilified by the Arab. Mr. Lloyd George, who was Prime Minister at the time of the Declaration, has never been publicly identified with the Zionist movement, and therefore, strange to say, from our point of view does not enter into the picture. Mr. Lloyd George has never visited Palestine, but Lord Balfour ventured there on July 24, 1918, to lay the foundation-stone of the Hebrew University. Later, while visiting Damascus he had to be smuggled out of the country owing to the sudden rising among the Syrian Arabs against him in sympathy with their Palestine brethren.

I was on duty in Jerusalem days before Lord Allenby made historic entry, and was responsible for his safety. In those days the religious element among the population was very strong. Practically all were all Orthodox. It is a different story to-day.

Tel-Aviv was then an Now it has a population of 150,000, with cinemas, cafes, jazz bands, sports clubs, other so-called amenities. It boasts of a symphony orchestra, while the "colonies" are hiving industry, engaged in all kinds of agricultural pursuits.

It must be remembered the British Government in India have their coffers filled to the brim with the proceeds of about £6,000,000, mostly earned through the Customs, and duties on the sale of lands. They have so much money that they do not know what to do with it. The boom has to a great extent been occasioned by the anti-Semite prevailing throughout the

"WOMAN IN RED" RETURNS HOME

WEEPS AS THEY SEND HER BACK TO RUMANIA

MRS. ANNA SAGE, the "Woman in Red" who betrayed Jack Dillinger, ex-public enemy No. 1, to Federal police in Chicago and decoyed him to his death before their guns outside a cinema, reached Queens-town, Ireland, last month in the liner President Harding.

She was on her way to her native Rumania under a deportation order.

Mrs. Sage claimed bitterly that she has been "double-crossed" by the police.

She said: "All I wanted for my part in the Dillinger affair was that a deportation order against me should not be executed. The men who wanted Dillinger so bad said they'd take care of my case."

She received about £1,000. But she still has to go back to Rumania, which she left for America when she was aged seven.

She is now forty-four years old, dark-complexioned, with a broad, almost colourless face, in which jet black eyes shine bitterly, and then fill with tears as she talks of "double-crossing" by the police.

In a queer mixture of Chicago American and Rumanian accents Mrs. Sage told in abrupt, staccato sentences how she bargained Dillinger's freedom for her own.

"I never saw Dillinger until ten days or so before they got him," she says. "It was an accident that brought me in touch with him. Polly Hamilton, who used to work at my hotel, was broke, and I let her stay sometimes in my apartment. She brought in Dillinger. He called himself Jimmy Lawrence."

"I did not know who he was until one day when he was reading a paper to Polly he showed her a picture, and said: 'They've put me somewhere else to-day.' I saw it was Dillinger's picture. I told Polly to get Jimmy out of the house. She didn't know who he was, and didn't turn him out. I became scared and went to Zarkovitch."

Sergeant Martin Zarkovitch, of the East Chicago police, called in Melvin Purvis, head-of-the-Department-of-Justice agents in Chicago.

Says Mrs. Sage:

"I told Mr. Purvis I would put on my hat if we were going any distance on the following Sunday, and would be barched if we went to the Biograph cinema. As we were leaving the apartment that Sunday I asked Jimmy if we were going far. I said I wanted to put on my hat if we were."

"He said we would go to the Biograph. One of Purvis's men said I had no hat. That let him know where we were going."

After the pictures, when Dillinger and his two women companions had walked about forty feet, some one slipped up behind him and put a bullet through the killer's brain.

WHY FILM STARS ADOPT BABIES

Motherhood Means Loss Of Salaries

Norma Shearer's £80,000 Sacrifice

Hollywood, May 28.

A CANVASS of homes of leading actresses here has disclosed that film stars who yearn for motherhood but feel they cannot afford it are acquiring adopted babies with increasing frequency.

There is near Chicago a clearing house for motherhood—a scientifically conducted establishment which selects perfect babies from those brought to it by mothers unable to support them and delivers them into the custody of film stars.

Altogether this institution has found homes for 3,000 babies in the past few years.

Liberty—a well-known American periodical—gives an interesting list of the more prominent actresses who have acquired babies in this fashion. It points out that the inordinate cost of motherhood for Hollywood stars is responsible for this growing practice.

MIRIAM HOPKINS Visited clearing house for her foster-son.

They have to abandon magnificent salaries for months on end and they have to consider the producers, who naturally object to substitutes in pictures on which they may already have spent millions of pounds.

Also actresses often find, after a year's absence from the screen caused by motherhood, that their public has left them. Helen Twelvetrees, for instance, estimates that she sacrificed something like £40,000 for the privilege of having her son Jack. The initial cost was a year's salary, amounting to £25,000. To this had to be added the fact that she lost the leading part in "A Bill of Divorcement," which went to Miss Katharine Hepburn. Miss Norma Shearer sacrificed an even larger sum for her son, Irving Thalberg, and her daughter, Katherine. She took two maternity leaves from the screen, each year losing £80,000 in salary.

Warned by these losses, Miss Miriam Hopkins visited the famous clearing house and found her little Michael, a handsome blond boy, who looks just like her.

A BROTHER FOR HER A star who imitated Miss Hopkins's example was Miss Gracie Allen, wife of Mr. George Burns, who took from the institution little Sandra, and then, anxious lest Sandra as the only child might grow up to be selfish, asked the institution for a brother for her.

The institution had in Ronald John just what she was seeking—"a baby with the exact colouring Sandra had at his age, so that the two actually looked like brother and sister."

Miss Barbara Stanwyck, who barely announced that she intended to have two babies of her own; whom she named in anticipation Michael and Kathleen, finally adopted a red-haired baby, nine months old, called Dion.

BABY'S FILM DEBUT Miss Zasu Pitts fell in love with the adopted baby of Miss Barbara Lamarr, and when that actress died adopted the little boy herself. Mr. Wallace Beery has an adopted daughter, Carol Ann, aged four, who has already made her debut in "China Seas," and Mr. Harold Lloyd, though blessed with children of his own, has adopted Peggy.

Other foster-parents are Miss Constance Bennett, whose son Peter, now five, comes from the clearing house, and Miss Gloria Swanson, who with two daughters of her own, has acquired a son called Joseph.

UNIVERSITY GROUPS TO STUDY SOLAR ECLIPSE

JUNE 19TH TREK TO RUSSIA

Cambridge, Mass., June 1. Elaborate spectroscopic studies of the sun's outer layers will be made by Harvard and Massachusetts Institute of Technology scientists now en route to Soviet Russia to observe the June 19 solar eclipse.

The band, headed by Prof. Donald H. Menzel of Harvard, will set up their instruments near Ak-Bulak in the southern Ural mountains, centre of the totality belt. Eight women scientists are members of the party.

The scientists have at their disposal the most modern instruments available for detecting rare chemical gases and elements. These will be focussed on the sun's outer layers—chromosphere and corona—in efforts to establish definitely their chemical content.

Previous observations have pointed to existence of a new element, coronium, although scientists suspect it may be some well known element—such as oxygen—reacting under conditions peculiar to the sun. The Harvard expedition hopes to substantiate or disprove the coronium theory. The observations, chiefly spectroscopic, will be made by "still" and "movie" cameras. Two movie devices will record the eclipse throughout its various stages. Still machines will make records at one second intervals during the height of the phenomenon. Other studies will be made on the effect of the eclipse on radio signals. Measurements will be made on the reflection of radio waves from the ionosphere—the earth's outer atmosphere which serves as a reflecting ceiling—to determine the sun's influence over this layer.

The Harvard-M.I.T. expedition is being made at the invitation of Dr. Boris P. Gerasimov, director of Pulkova observatory in Leningrad and former associate professor at Harvard. Ak-Bulak was chosen as the site for observations because clear weather is more certain there than in other points in the totality belt. The eclipse will be observed from a 75-mile belt from the Mediterranean sea, across Greece, the Black Sea, Russia and Siberia out into the Pacific ocean. It will not be visible in the Western Hemisphere.

In addition to Dr. Menzel and Mrs. Menzel, other members of the expedition include Dr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Boyce of M.I.T., Dr. R. E. Atkinson of Rutgers, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Benfield of Oxford, Jackson Cook of M.I.T., Mrs. Wallace R. Brode of Ohio State, Miss M. O. Crowe of Albany, N.Y., Miss Catherine Stillman, Vassar, and Miss Henrietta Swope, Dr. and Mrs. Irving Gardner, Henry Hemminger, Paul King, J. A. Pierce, H. Selvidge and E. P. York, all of Harvard.—United Press.

12 Would-Be Brides Disappointed

OLD SOLDIER CHANGES HIS MIND

A dozen hopeful women, nearly all septuagenarians and all wearing new dresses, waited one day last month at the Institution of the Plymouth (Devon) Guardians expecting an immediate proposal of marriage.

Their hopes were in vain. The 70-year-old prospective bridegroom, an old soldier, who had declared his intention of choosing a bride from the Institution, had found her elsewhere. He proposed to a neighbour and was accepted.

LOCAL MOTORIST FINED

FAILED TO REPORT MISHAP

A fine of $10 was imposed by Mr. W. Schofield, at the Central Magistracy this morning, on G. Marselle, of the Asiatic Petroleum Company, who was summoned for having failed to report an accident in Des Voeux Road in which car No. 1251, in which he was driving, was involved on May 9.

Mr. H. N. Chau appeared for the defendant, who was not in Court, and tendered a plea of guilty, saying that defendant did not make a report, because he thought it was only necessary to report where a person or animal was injured. In this case, defendant had reported the accident to the Tramway Company, and had offered to pay damages.

The summons was taken out as a result of a collision in Des Voeux Road opposite the American Express Company, when defendant's car ran into a tram standard. Damage was done to the tram standard and the car.

Sentence of Ave months' hard labour was passed by Mr. Balfour at the Central Magistracy this morning on Li Mun, 25, unemployed, who pleaded guilty to the theft of a handbag from a woman, Leung Wai-mui, of 25, Stanley Street. Detective Sergeant P. O. Guild said complainant was walking in Queen's Road Central near the Central Theatre when the defendant came up and snatched her bag from under her arm. He was chased and caught by a district watchman. The handbag contained $11.75, a lipstick, seven keys and a cigarette lighter.

Tsoi Shum-lau, 53, who walked into the China Emporium and lifted a handbag off a counter, was sent to prison for one month. He was caught as he was about to leave by two detectives who were on duty there.

VON CRAMM TAKES REVENGE

BEATS PERRY IN FIVE SETS

Auteuil, June 1. Von Cramm has waited a long time for his first important success against Fred Perry, England's leading tennis player, but it came to-day when he beat his old foe in the final of the French national championship after a five-set match rendered unusual by the scores.

The German won 6-0, 2-6, 6-2, 2-6, 6-0, this being the first time Perry has ever lost a championship final by conceding the first and last sets to love.

The success was all the sweeter to the German ace in that it wiped out his defeats last year by Perry in the final of the French championship and at Wimbledon.

CRACKING PACE

Such a cracking pace was set, observes United Press, that Perry was exhausted in the final set and scored only seven points. Earlier fortunes had fluctuated in a bewildering manner. Von Cramm pushed his way through to a love set at the start of the match; Perry retaliated by winning the second in the eighth game; Von Cramm improved his position by winning the third set in the same score, only to see Perry return and annex the fourth by a similar margin. But the fresher Von Cramm than the Englishman at his mercy in the final stanza and won at will.

In the final of the women's championship, Mme. Sperling scored a fine success over Mme. Mathieu of France, beating her in straight sets 6-3, 6-4.

Attractive Tennis Programme

A full programme of "A" Division tennis league matches have been arranged for this afternoon, but it is extremely doubtful whether any will be played owing to the sodden state of the courts.

K.C.C. are at home to the Chinese Recreation Club first string, this being the chief encounter of the afternoon, but another extremely interesting tie is that between I.R.C. and Club de Rekreio at Sookunpo.

If the matches are played indications are that C.R.C. will beat K.C.C., that I.R.C. will just about nose out the Rekreio, that South China will beat H.K.C.C. and that C.R.C. will gain a narrow decision over U.S.R.C.

Here are the matches, the home teams appearing first.

K.C.C. v. C.R.C. (1)
I.R.C. (2) v. U.S.R.C.
I.R.C. v. Rekreio
H.K.C.C. v. S.C.A.A.

BUDGE WALLOPS QUIST

IN THREE SETS

Germantown, Pa., June 1. United States fought to the utmost to avoid defeat to-day in the American Zone final of the Davis Cup but failed. Jack Crawford beat Wilmer Allison after five sets of nerve-racking tennis in the first match of the day to give Australia a winning lead of three rubbers to one.

Afterwards Donald Budge went on the court and slew the youthful Quist in three sets, but there was little interest in the result.

A Reuter message says that Crawford beat Allison 4-6, 6-3, 4-6, 6-2, 6-2, while Budge beat Quist 6-2, 6-2, 6-2.

The Americans made a gallant effort to retrieve a well-nigh hopeless position. Allison played tip-top tennis for three sets, but Crawford, driving immaculately down the Texan. As he did against Austin in the Challenge Round last year, Allison lost his touch after the ten minutes' interval between the third and fourth sets, whereas a refreshed Crawford increased the pace of his shots and launched attack after attack to monopolise the court.

Allison was playing a losing game in the last two sets which the Australian won with the total loss of four games.

WHIRLWIND BUDGE

Budge, determined to make the final score look better, set about Quist in the same way as he did about Crawford on Saturday, but this time met with feeble opposition and swept through three sets to a spectacular victory.

Quist could make no impression on the lucky Californian, who sent over a stream of punishing drives on both hands and made judicious raids to the net with telling results.

Budge rushed through the first two sets winning each in the eighth game. Quist made a bit of a stand in the third set, but he could only extend it to the tenth game.

Thus Australia has qualified for the Inter-Zone final which will be played at Wimbledon on July 18, 20 and 21. This will be the fifth time in which Australia has contested an Inter-Zone final during the last 13 years. She reached this stage in 1934, but lost to the United States at Wimbledon after Crawford and McGrath had won the first two singles. Prior to 1934 Australia had figured in the Inter-Zone final on two occasions. In 1923 the first year in which the competition was divided into zones Australia beat France in the Inter-Zone final and lost to America in the Challenge Round. The following year this was repeated, France first being beaten, only for the Australians to fall before the Americans. In 1925 the Inter-Zone final was again reached, but then France took revenge by winning.

"Unmitigated Disappointment" Of Curtis Cup Result

ENGLISH GIRLS' MENTALITY NOT GOLF WAS CAUSE

Great Britain and the United States (holders) halved the third international match for the Curtis Cup, and the last putt of the day, a seven-yarder which Miss Jessie Anderson, of Perth, held at the 18th to win hole and match, saved us from defeat.

That we did not win, after all the high hopes, was an unmitigated disappointment, and once again it is not the golf but the mentality where we seem to have gone wrong.

Of the American side Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare was heroine, for she not only halved her foursome, but won her single; of the British, Mrs. Holm and Mrs. Garon may be said to divide the honours, with a share for Miss Anderson on account of that historic putt.

Mist was driving across the course when play began, reducing visibility now and again to the extent of a No. 1 iron. When the mist lifted it was because a bitter north-easterly wind had freshened. Small wonder that both teams took fur gloves for between the shots, and Mrs. Cheney took refuge in a big top coat between each striking of the ball. Small, equally, that their match took three hours to play.

The first foursome showed Mrs. Garon, as always, the supreme and perfect partner, and Mrs. Vare converted from the listless "don't care" of practice rounds to an electrified wire whose play was a delight to watch. You may see the concentration coming out as she steps to the first tee for the big match, so you could in little Miss Patty Berg, run-up to her in last year's American National Championship, and just the player to delight the gallery, because she is so entirely oblivious of them. For her the ball and the club and the hole exist—and absolutely nothing else in the world.

HER USELESSNESS. A LESSON Nervous she undoubtedly was; even the first putt was not sufficient excuse for the puffing and panting which went on as she scaled it, but it never took her mind off the business in hand—a very valuable lesson to some of our players slightly older than her.

The truth had better be told briefly and at once. Miss Wanda Morgan entirely failed to do herself justice, and her putting was a thing to make British onlookers weep in sympathy with the weather. Mrs. Garon, on the other hand, was superb, getting one hand and Mrs. Cheney who was put into with supreme ease, and playing the attacking shots into the bargain.

Mrs. Garon's side turned 1 down and lost the next, but America took three putts at the 11th, Mrs. Garon held a long run up at the 12th, and the match was square again. For the second time a stroke came to Mrs. Garon's rescue at the 13th and the side was 1 up after winning the 15th. Then came one of Miss Morgan's tragic little putts dorny at the 17th and America was dorny. Miss Morgan rose fiery to the occasion and put her iron third two yards from the pin, so that they won the hole and halved the match.

(Miss Maureen Orcutt) lived up to an unbeaten record in international foursomes. That Mrs. Crews had the better of Miss Barton in length was perhaps immaterial except in morale; what was counting was the fluffing of chips by Miss Barton and the missing of short putts by Mrs. Walker. Such is not her habit and the American pair, 5 over 4's for the match, having rid of a deficit of 2 early in the round, never looked back.

Four Athletes For Modern Pentathlon

At the conclusion of the British Modern Pentathlon championships at Aldershot recently, the following team of four, one being a reserve, was chosen to represent Great Britain at the Olympic Games in Berlin.

Lieutenant J. A. McDougall (Duke of Cornwall's L.I.), Captain C. H. D. Legard (5th Royal Inniskilling Dragoons), 2nd Lieutenant A. F. M. Jack (Royal Engineers), and Lieutenant D. A. Pringle (Royal Signals).

Lieut. McDougall won the British championship, and Captain Legard was runner-up.

But Impress With Exhibitions

Never before has Hongkong seen in simultaneous action such a galaxy of athletic luminaries as yesterday when, on the occasion of the visit here of the Philippine World Olympic delegation, exhibitions were given in swimming, track-and-field events, basketball and boxing. Unhappily weather conditions were unfavourable and in neither swimming nor athletics, did the visitors come within distance of Olympic time records.

Albeit they gave some extremely entertaining performances. Naturally they swept the board when in opposition to Colony talent. A typical example of their superiority was given when Wilfred Lawrence, Hongkong's best distance swimmer, was left over a length in arrears by J. Adjuluddin. The Filipinos also filled first and second places in the 100 yards free style with Norman Lee of Hongkong swimming third.

Lau Po-hei gave a creditable performance in the 100 yards backstroke and but for misjudging his distance would have made a closer race of it. N. Christiansen, who last week established a new Far Eastern record in this event, demonstrated a magnificent style and great power of stroke.

One of the most attractive swimmers on view was A. Alpud, who deputised for E. Hilderson in the 200 yards backstroke. He turned in a first class performance to win at the expense of Wong Lu-man and Fung Chung-yu, in 2 mins. 34.2/5 secs.

The detailed results and times follow.

100 yards free style.—1. J. Adjuluddin (P.I.), 2. J. Obial (P.I.), 3. Norman Lee, Time: 55.1-5 secs.

100 yards free style handicap (members only).—1. A. Gutierrez, 2. A. Noronha, Time: 73.3-5.

100 yards back stroke.—1. N. Christiansen (P.I.), 2. Lau Po-hei, 3. Young Lu-kwai, Time: 65 secs.

200 yards breaststroke.—1. A. Alpud (P.I.), 2. Wong Lu-man, 3. Fung Chung-yu, Time: 2 min. 34.2-5 secs.

50 yards free style handicap (ladies).—1. Mrs. McMahon, Time: 33.1-5 secs.

440 yards free style.—1. Adjuluddin (P.I.), 2. W. Lawrence, 3. Norman Lee, Time: 5 min. 15.2-5 secs.

Medley relay race (three men)—50 yards).—Backstroke N. Christiansen (P.I.) and Lau Po-hei, breaststroke A. Alpud (P.I.) and Wong Lu-man, free style J. Obial (P.I.) and Chan Chan-hing. Won by P.I. team. Time: 1 min. 22 secs.

TRACK AND FIELD PROGRAMME

No Records On Heavy Course

So much rain fell during yesterday morning that at one time grave doubts were expressed whether it would be possible to stage the athletics at Caroline Hill Stadium. But eventually the weather cleared sufficiently, although the track was very heavy and rendered impossible the creation of important records.

Chief interest lay in the fact that Nemesio de Guzman beat Antonio M. Salcedo in the 100 metres for the first time in his life. But it was accomplished in the slow time of 11 seconds Salcedo being a fifth of a second behind.

Ramirez made an attempt to beat the Colony record for the long jump (22 ft. 3 ins.) established by Ong Ching-su of Diocesan Boys' School, but he found the going too heavy. Further, he was distinctly unlucky at his second attempt when he over-balanced and tumbled the ground with one of his hands which shortened his jump by 10 inches. Actually Ramirez measured 22 ft. 1 in. which was an excellent effort under the circumstances.

In the track events the Filipino runners delighted with their fine style and ease of movement. The local boys, of course, were out of the line, but several of them appeared to run better than in any of their previous appearances, and the experience of running against such high class performers will without doubt be of great benefit.

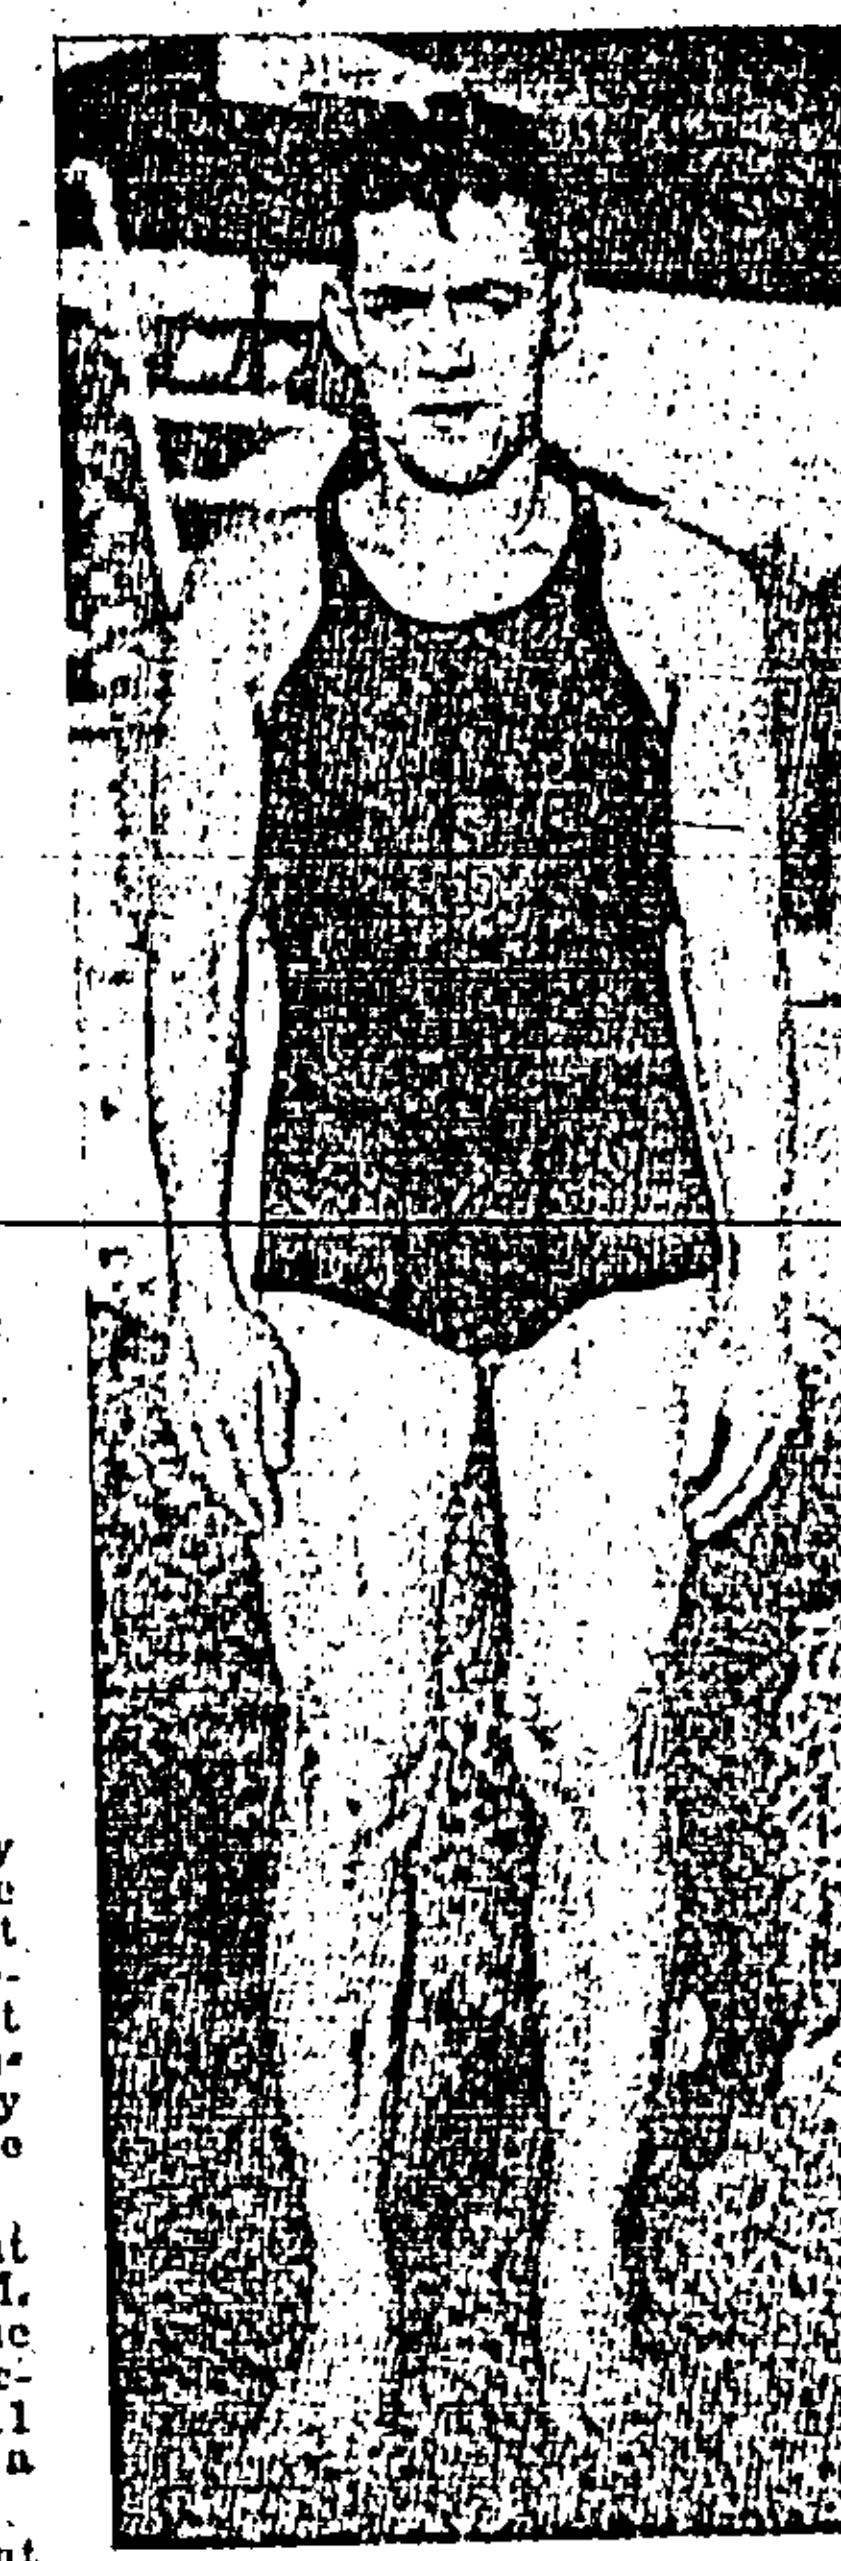

The full results were:

400 Metres Hurdles.—1. Miguel S. White (P.I.); 2. Teodoro P. Malasig (P.I.); 3. Leung Yuen-hung, Time: 61 seconds; 63 seconds.

100 Metres.—1. Nemesio de Guzman (P.I.); 2. Antonio M. Salcedo (P.I.); 3. Tam Sik-poon, Time: 11 seconds; 11.6 seconds.

Broad jump.—1. Nino T. Ramirez (P.I.); 2. Mak Shiu-hung, Distance: 22 feet 1 inch; 20 feet 11 inches.

BASKETBALL MATCH

The Philippine Islands Olympic basketball team were seen in action last night when they met and defeated the local Chinese Young Men's Christian Association by 55 points to 38 in an interesting encounter. The winners were the better team throughout.

AND THEY BOXED AFTER ALL!

Programme Called Off—Then On

In spite of the announcement made during the morning that the boxing display by the Filipinos would not take place, a last minute decision to the contrary was made last evening, the visitors boxing each other in exhibition bouts. The rest of the programme consisted of bouts between Hongkong boxers.

Felipe K. Nunag (111 lbs.) was in aggressive mood against his opponent, Oscar de Larrabal, and kept the bigger man on the run most of the time. Nunag gave evidence of being well endowed with a powerful left which his knowledge of the science of the game earned a lot of approval from the 200 odd spectators.

The willingness of the Filipino lads to mix in and have a real scrap with sparring gloves was a pleasant feature of the programme. In the next fight between Gabuco and de Castro, the former weighing out at 126 lbs. and his opponent at 146, both men went for it hammer and tongs and were warmly applauded for a fast and engaging contest.

Gabuco, the Philippines' leading featherweight, was in the least disturbed by the extra weight of de Castro. He used his feet and hands with fine skill and de Castro rarely landed a telling blow, although it was clear he possessed a k.o. punch. The scraps were something of an anticlimax, although some of them went all out to provide the onlookers with some excitement.

Cpl. Hall beat "Iron" Bux, Jr. after a hard-hitting but unscientific three rounds engagement.

"Battling" Gutz was awarded the verdict by the referee in the third round of his scheduled six-rounds match with Young Panchito. It was a milling contest with little or no heed paid to the finer points of boxing. Two popular British soldiers, Whelan and Owens were billed for the next scrap, added interest being invested in the encounter by the fact that they met recently in the Army Championship when Whelan gained a points decision. Last night they worked in for some vigorous and entertaining toe-to-toe fighting and quite rightly the judgement was a draw. It was a happy little fight which greatly pleased the crowd.

Other results were: Wright beat Gray on points; "Battling" Rio lost to Ross on points; McBeattie lost to Morgan on a technical K.O.; and Gleave beat Raven on points.

All these fights were over three rounds. McBeattie was unlucky in slipping in the first round and knocking himself out so effectively that the meeting had to be abandoned. The two soldiers, Gleave and Raven, provided one of the best fights in the evening and a fitting conclusion to the programme.

Christiansen Sets New Far East Record

BACKSTROKE PERFORMANCE

Manila, May 30. Adolf Lils Christiansen, the Philippines' entry in the 100-metre backstroke event in the World's Olympic swimming meet, cracked the Far Eastern record in that event yesterday afternoon in that event yesterday afternoon to turn in the only record-breaking performance in the farewell appearance of the Philippine delegation before their departure for the Berlin Games.

Christiansen, swimming without any competition and against time only, negotiated the backstroke event in 1:10.4 which is four-tenths of a second better than the Far Eastern mark set here in 1934 by the Japanese, Kawasu, runner-up in this event at the Los Angeles Games in 1932.

It was the fourth time Christiansen bettered the Far Eastern mark in the backstroke event since he started training for the Berlin Games. He has been clocked at 1:07, 1:08 and 1:09.

Fair time was made by Teofilo Hilderson, veteran backstroke event yesterday. He negotiated the distance in 2:47.5 which is two seconds slower than his own Far Eastern and Philippine records. Jikrum Alajudin and Arasad Alpud, two Moro swimmers, finished second and third, respectively. Jikrum, who paced the trio, lost out in the last lap when Hilderson began to stretch out. Jikrum's time was 2:40.6 and Arasad's was 2:52.5.

Jose Obial, who will represent the Philippines in the sprints, swam the 100 metre event in 1:02.

HOPES ON LIGHT HEAVYWEIGHT AND FLYWEIGHT CHAMPIONS

Two Olympic boxing titles are already counted upon as the property of France when her team of boxers meet the world's best amateur sluggers at the Berlin Games in August.

The two boxers who are expected to turn the trick are veterans as far as non-professionals are concerned for both of them took part in the last Olympics at Los Angeles in 1932. The first, light heavyweight Roger Michelot lost in the final and was crowned European champion, while flyweight Gaston Fayaud was eliminated in the first round by the Hungarian Stephen Enakes, who went on to win the Olympic title. In 1931 Michelot went to Chicago with a French team and won the Golden Gloves title.

GREATLY IMPROVED

"These two men have improved greatly since 1932," Paul Rousseau, president of the French Boxing Federation, told United Press. "While it is risky to make any predictions so far ahead of time and without personally knowing the foreign fighters, I confidently expect these two youngsters to give a good account of themselves and possibly score triumphs for France in Berlin."

Some newspapermen and critics are more outspoken than Rousseau and confidently count upon Michelot and Fayaud to win. Of the two Fayaud is undoubtedly the classier fighter. In March he won the French flyweight crown for the fourth successive time and in April won the British crown for the second year running. Fayaud, who is 26, is fast, clever and boxes with the sureness of a professional. In winning the British title in 1935, he accomplished something that no other Frenchman had ever done before.

Michelot is the more experienced and has been light-heavyweight champion for six years. Despite his outstanding class he had to give his best to eke out a close victory against Jean Deguerre, France's latest find. It was his experience that proved the deciding factor, and it is this experience that will win him his

NOT A LARGE TEAM

France will not send a large team to Berlin. Rousseau said that only seven men would be sent to the German capital, which is one representative from each class except the heavyweight. There is no man "worthy of representing his country in this class," sadly reflected the French president.

While no great hope is held out for the other five men of the team, they are nevertheless counted upon to make a creditable showing with two of them looked upon as semi-finalists and finalists. These two are featherweight, Robert Wagner and lightweight Francois Aupetit, both of whom are champions in their respective categories.

Wagner is a comparatively new in the game and succeeded to the title held in 1935 by Robert Peyre, who was not able to defend it. Both men are on a par but it is far more likely that Wagner will be picked to go to Berlin. Despite his lack of experience Wagner is fast, strong and very game. These qualities coupled with the fact that he is a southpaw may decide the issue in his favour.

Aupetit won the title for the first time this year. If the games were a full year away he might be included with Fayaud and Michelot. He was the revelation of the season but is still too crude to get by the strong foreign competition in Berlin.

Roger Trit, middleweight champion, will have to fight it out with Jean Andreotti for the Olympic post. Trit successfully defended his title in a very close fight from Andreotti. As Trit, because of his style of boxing—holding and stalling—is not very popular here, it is quite likely that the younger Andreotti will be picked for the team.

CAMP TRAINING

Pierre Bonnet, bantamweight champion, and Robert Grant, middleweight titleholder, may round out the team. The latter is not very sure for Jean Despeaux, the latest find, is pressing him closely for the post.

As the team will not be designated until the last week in July anything may happen between now and then. All of them have plenty of fighting to do in the next two months and some lads not heretofore considered as prospects may forge ahead of the present favoured ones.

Rousseau told United Press that all of the likely prospects will be sent to the military camp at Joinville, on the outskirts of Paris, in July where they will undergo intensive training. During the last week, he said, the team will be picked and they will be sent to Berlin on the 20th in order to give them a full week to adjust themselves and become acclimatized to the new conditions. One thing you can be sure of. That is that when my boys get into the ring in Berlin they will give a good account of themselves for French fighters have always done well in foreign rings."

FRENCH OLYMPIC SWIMMING PROSPECTS VERY BLACK

Jacques Cartonnet Will Be Notable Absentee From Berlin

France's Olympic swimming hopes have always been rather black. This year they are blacker than ever.

Jean Taria, the best French swimmer extant, took second place in the 400 metre free-style event at Los Angeles in 1932. If he finishes as far up as fourth in Berlin in August, his performance may well be considered exceptional, considering the progress made by American and Japanese swimmers since the last Olympics. Taria, if anything, has deteriorated.

The one straw of hope to which the French cling is a possible Olympic victory by their water-polo team. The Federation officials say there is a good chance for victory in Berlin but with the same breath they admit the existence of high grade competition. The last time the French sent a water-polo team to the Games, they won the Olympic title. That was back in 1924. Hungary won it in 1932 and is a heavy favourite to repeat. Germany, Belgium and Holland, at worst can still be considered on a par with the French team. The Federation's hope is not likely to be realized.

ONLY DOZEN COMPETITORS

France's swimming team to Berlin will probably not exceed a dozen competitors men and women included. This is partly due to lack of funds and to lack of first class swimming material.

The most notable absentee will be Jacques Cartonnet, until recently the holder of two world's records: the 200-yard and 200 metre breaststroke marks. Strongheaded, lazy but pleasant, he has been consistently in hot water with the Federation. At present he is very much in that body's bad graces.

Repeated failures to make appearances at meets at which he was scheduled to swim forced the Federation to take sanctions against him. Furthermore he has always shown strong antipathy against systematic training methods, which further irritated the august body. The final blow was Cartonnet's ultimatum that he would gladly represent France at the Olympics, but only on his own terms. Naturally the Federation has decided not to include him on the team.

Taria, whose best time for the 400-metre free-style is 47", will be France's representative in this event. He is by far Europe's best swimmer at this distance but that bit of glory won't get him far against the American and Japanese swimmers. Taria also participate in the four-man 800-metre relay. The other three swimmers are Alfred Naeche, Marco Drener and Rene Cavalero. Their best time is 9' 20". If they finish among the first six, said a member of the Federation, "we consider that progress."

Paris. The spring-board diving assignment will be handled by Roger Heinkel. He is inferior to Henri Poissard, French champion who recently retired and who finished seventh at Los Angeles. The other distances and events will not have French entries.

Prospects of a woman's triumph are still dimmer, with the excellent field of American and Dutch swimmers as opposition. France's women swimmers will be making their Olympic debut.

Rene Blondeau, who will participate in the 100-metre free-style, has only 1' 8.8" to show for her best time.

Her sister Therese, who will be France's representative for the 100-metre back-strokes, has 1' 21" as her fastest time. The third swimmer, 16-year-old Louise Fleuret, has turned in 5' 47" for the 400-metre free style. These times will not even qualify these girls for the semi-finals in Berlin.

Spring-board champion Mme. Roby Durrer and a 400-metre four-woman relay, which will probably include the Blondeau sisters and Mme. Fleuret, will round out the women's team.—United Press.

everywhere except on the green. In fact, at the start of the round she even holed some good putts and the match was square with five holes played. Then after reaching the one 7th in two impressive shots she took 3 putts and allowed Mrs. Vare to emerge from the deep gulley on the left to snatch a half. Three putts again at the 8th, where Mrs. Vare made one suffice, three again at the 9th, and instead of being 2 up, Miss Morgan was 1 down. Her 4 at the 10th squared matters, for Mrs. Vare had three putts there, but after that Miss Morgan could not win another hole, and Mrs. Vare won as she richly deserved by 3 and 2.

Mrs. Holm, meanwhile, had only played one bad shot and one bad hole against Miss Patty Berg. Mrs. Holm was level 4's, omitting the 5th, and was one of the only players all day to reach the long short 14th into the teeth of the ever-strengthening wind, from the tee. Still all square. News drifted across the hills that Mrs. Barton was level 4's too, was 3 up, A up, and then the joyful fact appeared in person. She had won 7 and 5.

But Miss Barton was 2 down by then to Miss Glutting, and there were only five holes left to play. Miss Barton attacked bravely then, got down in one putt to win the 14th, nearly holed a chip at the 15th, won the 16th and went to the last hole only 1 down. But a pulled second and gorse bush meant she could do no more than halve the hole, and there was the whole match standing square again.

Mrs. Walker had been believed to be in extremes, 3 down and 4 to go. But all her fighting Irish blood rose then, whilst Mrs. Crews had become miserably chilled with the ever-increasing wet and cold; they came for the last green with every chance of Mrs. Walker winning that hole too.

to halve her match. Her long putt nearly went down, but she missed the return, and there was Great Britain urgently needing the only remaining match out to halve on the day.

Miss Jessie Anderson, after winning the first hole in a great 3, had been last heard of 2 down with 6 to play; later news still was of her bunkered at the 10th. But she came out grandly, and holed a 3-yrder to win it in 3. Mrs. Cheney unaccountably taking three putts. All square and the 17th halved. Both nicely on the 18th in 3. Mrs. Cheney, putting first, put her eight-yarder stone dead. Miss Anderson was left with one a trifle shorter for her match and Great Britain's half. She studied it just long enough, struck it perfectly, and it dropped.

A cheer went up which awoke the echoes in the mist-shrouded hills. Great Britain was saved, and it was a Scot who had done it.

CHEER

Paris, June 1.
A suffragette demonstration was a noteworthy feature of the formal opening of the new French Parliament.
Before the opening the women surrounded the Chamber carrying posters reading "Good luck to the new Legislature, but don't forget us."
Later, the dozen of the Legislature, 70-year-old M. Antoine Salles, had just finished his speech when the feminists suddenly appeared in the public galleries, which filled like magic. They spread their posters over the sides of the galleries. Some of them read, "French women must vote."
The deputies, led by the extreme Left, loudly applauded, but ushers rushed the gallery and tore away the posters.
Some of the women were taken to the Quai's office. — Reuter Special.

H.K. Amusements Subsidaries

WINDING-UP ORDER GRANTED BY COURT

Petitions for the winding-up of two subsidiary companies of Hongkong Amusements were presented and granted at Supreme Court this morning, the petitioner being Mr. Donald Black, liquidator of the parent body.
Mr. Justice J. J. Hayden, Acting Chief Justice, heard the petition, which was made by Mr. H. C. Macnamara, instructed by Mr. H. J. Armstrong of Messrs. Deacons.
Addressing his Lordship, counsel said the petition was in respect of the Duma Films, Ltd., and Theatre Equipment, Ltd., subsidiaries of Hongkong Amusements, to which they were indebted to the extent of over two lakhs in July last year. The companies had assets, but the liquidator desired they should be distributed in an equitable manner and the petitions were the only way of attaining that object.
His Lordship said that under the particular section on which this petition was brought, it was necessary to prove to the satisfaction of the Court that the companies were unable to pay their debts when demands for payment were made. It was not sufficient to make a bald statement in the affidavit that the companies were insolvent, but some evidence must be given. He did not want to be an obstructionist, but he did not want to make the order here if the petitioner was not a creditor. Oral evidence would be sufficient for the purpose.
The Court adjourned in order to await the arrival of Mr. Donald Black who was then put into the witness box to testify that there was no cash to meet debts. He added that the nominal capital of the companies was $50,000 each and this was far below their debts. The assets were very small.
The petition was granted, Mr. Macnamara stating that he would lodge certificates of no opposition later.

THREE STOWAWAYS FINED

FOUND ON BLUE FUNNEL LINER

Three stowaways appeared before Mr. E. H. Williams, Magistrate, this morning, charged with obtaining a free passage to Singapore on the Blue Funnel steamship Agamemnon without the consent of the owners. They were Ng Choi, a 38-year-old native of Australia, Cheung Yik, 40, and Chau Ming-tai, 21, from Ningpo, near Shanghai.
Sgt. Reddish said the men stowed away on board the vessel on May 20, and when they reached Singapore, they were handed over to the police. They were sent back on the Company's ship Calchas, which arrived in the Colony on June 1.
Mr. Wilson, the Purser of the Calchas, told the Magistrate that a passage to Singapore costs $10, whereupon defendants were fined $10 each or three months' imprisonment.

A gambling raid by the police on the first floor of 9, Jubilee Street, resulted in seven Chinese being arrested. Li Fong, 39, butcher, charged with being the keeper, failed to appear before Mr. Balfour at the Central Police Court this morning and forfeited $30 bail. Only two of the gamblers appeared and they were fined $3 each, while the absentees' bails of $3 each were forfeited. The game played was pai kau, a table money, totalling $221, was added to the Poor Box funds. Detective Sergeant Guild had charge of the raid.

BECAUSE MEAL WAS NOT READY

Because she had failed to prepare his morning meal, Cheung Yung, a licensed taxicab driver, residing at No. 178 Jaffe Road, yesterday gave his 22-year-old wife, Li Chau, such a severe beating with a rattan cane that she had to be admitted to the Government Civil Hospital.
Cheung Yung was charged before Mr. W. Schofield, at the Central Magistracy this morning, with having assaulted his wife, and was ordered to pay $250 and was bound over in $250 with one surety to keep the peace and be of good behaviour for one year.
Detective-Sergeant C. Dowman said that yesterday morning the complainant failed to prepare defendant's meal, so he scolded her and beat her with a rattan cane.
Mr. Schofield: I see you have given your wife a very bad shock, according to the doctor's report, which also says she is four months' pregnant. The complainant, who appeared in Court, showed extensive bruise marks on her left arm.

FRENCH LINER KEEPS RECORD

New York, June 1.
The official time of the Cunard-White Star liner, Queen Mary, for her voyage from Cherbourg to Ambrose Lightship was revealed to-day as: 4 days 12 hours 24 mins.
Her average speed was thus 29.13 knots per hour.

The Normandie's time for her maiden voyage from Cherbourg, during which she captured the Blue Riband of the Atlantic from the German and Italian challengers, was: 4 days 11 hours 33 mins.

The Normandie is still Queen of the Atlantic. But the Queen Mary, slowed by fog for a day and not driven at her best speed at any time during the crossing, was even so only 51 minutes behind the French record. — Reuter.

Charged with the theft of three lbs. of lead from the Kowloon City Rifle Range, Chan Ah-sin, 18, had an additional charge of returning from banishment brought against him by Inspector W. R. Chester Woods before Mr. E. H. Williams at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning. He admitted both offences and was fined $5 for two weeks on the larceny charge and sentenced to 12 months for the breach of the Deportation Ordinance.
Lam Kit-long, 17, also appeared on a charge of stealing two lbs. of lead from the Rifle Range and was similarly fined $5 or two weeks. ## NAVAL RIVALRY

BRITAIN UNEASY OVER DEADLOCKS

London, June 1.
British naval diplomacy is blocked on three fronts. Firstly, it is deadlocked in the Anglo-Soviet conversations; secondly, there are indications that Germany will refuse the Anglo-German agreement in the event of the collapse of the Anglo-Soviet negotiations; thirdly, the implied Japanese intention of retaining 20,000 tons of submarines, which under the London Treaty should be scrapped by 1937.

British naval circles, pending the June 4 meeting with the Soviet delegates, are reviewing the Russian contention that the potential Japanese threat is greater for Russia than for the United States or Britain due to the closer proximity.

Meanwhile Britain is uneasily awaiting Washington's response to the note of May 6. In view of the Japanese attitude it is believed the United States will suggest retention of excess submarines and destroyers. It is noteworthy that the United States may invoke the London Treaty's escalator clause, automatically allowing American and Japanese tonnage increases proportionate to those permitted to Britain. — United Press.
